Why, afore a week was over, so far from us keeping it snug, I reckon there was fifty people in the Yaller Gulch washing away and making their piles. Afore another week was over some one had set up a store, and next day there was a gambling saloon. Keep it our selves! Why, stranger, I reckon if there was a speck of gold anywheres within five hundred miles our chaps'd sniff it out like vultures and be down upon it.

It warn't no use to grumble, and we kept what we thought to ourselves, working away and making our ounces the best way we could. One day I proposed we should go up higher in the mountains; but Hez said he'd be blowed if he'd move; and the next day, if he'd wanted me to go, I should have told him I'd be blowed if I'd move; and all at once from being red-hot chums, as would have done anything for one another, Hez and me got to be mortal enemies.

Who should come into the gulch one day but an old storekeeping sort of fellow, with as pretty a daughter as ever stepped, and from that moment it was all over between Hez and me. He'd got a way with him, you see, as I hadn't; and they always made him welkim at that thar store when it was only "How do you do?" and "Good morning?" to me. I don't know what love is, stranger, but if Jael Burns had told me to go and cut one of my hands off to please her, I'd ha' done it.

But it wouldn't do. I soon see which way the wind blew. She was the only woman in camp, and could have the pick, and she picked Hez. I was 'bout starin' mad first time I met them two together—she a-hanging on his arm and looking up in his face, worshipping him like some of them women can worship a great big, strong he; and as soon as they war got by, I swore a big oath as Hez should never have her.

But Hez and Jael were spliced up and I allus kep' away. When I wanted an ounce or two of gold I worked and when I'd got it I used to drink—drink, because I wanted to drown all recollection of the past. Hez used to come to me but I warned him off. Then Jael came and when she began to talk to me about forgiving him, it only made me the more mad than ever, and so I went and pitched at the lower end of the gulch and they lived at t'other.

Times and times I've felt as if I'd go and plug Hez on the quiet, but I never did, though I got to hate him more and more, and never half so much as I did nigh two years arter, when I come upon him one day sudden, with his wife, Jael, looking pootier than ever, with a little white-haired squealer on her arm. An' it riled me above a bit, to see him so smiling and happy and me turned into a blood-shot, drinking, raving savage that half the Gulch was feared on and t'other half daren't face.

I had been drinking hard for about a week, when early one morning, as I lay in my ragged bit of a tent, I woke up, sudden-like, to a roarin' noise like thunder, and then there came a whirl and a rush, and I was swimming for life, half choked with the water that had carried me off. Now it was hitting my head, playful like, agen the hardest corners of the rock it could find in the Gulch; then it was hitting me in the back or pounding me in the front with trunks of trees swept down from the mountains, for something had bust—a lake or something high up—and in about a wink the hull settlement in Yaller Gulch was swept away. I got on a bit o' rock, and there was the water rushing down thirty or forty feet deep, with everything swept before it—mules and tents and shanties and stores, and dead bodies by the dozen. Just then I hears a wild sorter shriek, and, looking down, I see a chap half swimming, half swept along by the torrent, trying hard to get at a large tree that stood on the other side.

"Why, it's you, is it, Hez?" I says to myself as I looked at his wild eyes and strained face, on which the sun shone full. "You're a gone coon, Hez, lad, so you may just as well fold yer arms, say amen and go down like a man. How I could pop you now, lad, if I'd got a shooting iron—put you out o' yer misery like. You'll drown, lad."

He made a dash and tried for a branch hanging down, but missed it and got swept against the rocks, where he shoved his arm between two big bits, but the water gave him a wrench, the bone went crack, and as I sat still there, I see him swept lower and lower, till he clutched at a bush with his left hand and hung on like grim death to a dead nigger.

"Sarve yer right," I says coolly. "Why shouldn't you die like the rest? If I'd had any go in me, I should have plugged yer long ago."

"Hellos!" I cried then, giving a start, "it ain't—'tis—tarnation! It can't be!"

But it was.

There on the other side, not fifty yards lower down, on a bit of shelf of earth that kept crumbling away as the water washed it, was Jael kneeling down with her young 'un, and, as I looked, something seemed to give my heart a tug, just as if some coon had pulled a string.

"Well, he's about gone," I says; "and they can't hold out but about three minutes. What's it got to do with me? I shan't move."

Just then, as I sot and chawed, telling myself as a chap would be mad to try and save his friends out of such a flood, let alone his enemies, darn me! if Jael didn't put that there little squealer's hands together and hold them up as if she was making it say its prayers—a born fool!—when that thar string seemed to be pulled, inside me like, agin my heart; and—I couldn't help it—I jumped up.

"Say, Dab," I says to myself, "don't you be a fool. You hate that lot like pyson, you do. Don't you go and drown yourself."

I was about mad, you know, and couldn't do as I liked, for, if I didn't begin to rip off my things, wet and hanging to me. How they did stick!—but I cleared half on 'em off, and then, like a mad fool, I made a run and a jump, and was fighting hard with the water to get across to Hez's wife and little child.

It was a bit of fight. Down I went, and up I went, and the water twisted me like a leaf; but I got out of the roar and thunder, on to the bit of a shelf where Jael knelt; when, if the silly thing didn't begin to hold up to me her child; and her lips, poor darling, said dumbly, "Save it! save it!"

In the midst of that rush and roar, as I saw that poor gal, white, horrified, and with her yaller hair clinging round her, all my old love for her comes back, and I swore a big oath that I'd save her for myself or die. I tore her dress into ribbons, for there warn't a moment to lose, and I bound that bairn somehow on my shoulders, she watching me the while; and then with my heart beating madly, I caught her in my arms, she clinging tightly to me in her fear, and I stood up, thinking how I could get back, and making ready to leap. The flood didn't wait for that, though. In a moment there was a quiver of the bank, and it went from under my feet, leaving me wrestling with the waters once more. I don't know how I did it, only that, after a fight, and being half-smothered, I found myself crawling up the side of the Gulch, ever so low down, and dragging Jael into a safe place with her bairn. She fell down before me, hugged my legs and kissed my feet; and then she started up and began staring up and down, ending by seeing old Hez clinging there still, with his sound arm rammed into a bush, and his body swept out by the fierce stream. The next moment she had seized me by the arm, and was pinting at him, and she gave a wild kind of shriek. "He's a gone coon," I says, though she couldn't hear me, and I was gloating over her beautiful white face, and soft, clear neck, as I thought that now she was mine—all mine. I'd saved her out of the flood, and there was no Hez to stand in our way.

"Save him! save him!" she shrieked in my ear.

What, Hez? Save Hez, to come between us once more? Save her husband—the man I hated, and would gladly see die? Oh, I couldn't do it; and my looks showed it, she reading me like a book the while. No, he might drown—he was drowned—must be. No; just then he moved. But, nonsense! I wasn't going to risk my life for his, and cut my own throat like, as to the future. She went down on her knees to me, though, pinting again at where Hez still floated; and the old feeling of love for her was stronger on me than ever.

"You're asking me to die for you, Jael!" I shouted in her ear.

"Save him—save Hez!" she shrieked.

"Yes, save him!" I groaned to myself. "Bring him back to the happiness that might be mine. But she loves him—she loves him; and I must."

I gave one look at her—as I thought my last—and I couldn't help it. If she had asked me dumbly, as she did, to do something ten times as wild, I should have done it; and with a run I got up well above Hez afore I jumped in once more to have a fight with the waters till I was swept down to the bush where he was. I'd got my knife in my teeth to cut the bush away and let him free, but as I was swept against it my weight tore it away, and Hez and I went down the stream together, him so done up that he lay helpless on the water. Something seemed to tell me to finish him off. A minute under water would have done it; but Jael's face was before me, and at last I got to the other side, with her climbing alongside us; and if it hadn't been for the hand she stretched down to us I should never have crawled out with Hez—I was that done.

As I dropped down panting on the rock, Jael came to my side, leaned over me and kissed me, and I turned away, for the next moment she was crying hard, and bringing her husband to, and I was beginning to feel once more that I was a fool.

I ain't much more to tell, only that the flood went down almost as quick as it came up, and Hez got all right with his broken arm, and did well. They wanted muchly to be friends; but I kept away. I felt as I'd been a fool to save him, and I was kinder shamed like of it; so I took off to 'Frisco, where, after chumming about, I took to going voyages to Panama and back, and the sea seemed to suit me like, and so I stuck to it.

The Centennial Exhibition

Was opened with great enthusiasm at Philadelphia, on Wednesday, the 10th. The city was lavishly decorated, and thousands of strangers were present. The day was magnificently fair. President Grant, Dom Pedro, the Emperor of Brazil, Gen. Sheridan, Secretary Fish, Gov. Rice of Massachusetts, Gov. Cheney and staff of New Hampshire, Ex-Speaker Blaine and many other notable men were present at the opening exercises on the Exhibition grounds. On the arrival of the President, the "Centennial Inauguration March," written by Richard Wagner, was played by the grand orchestra. Gen. Hawley of Connecticut called the assemblage to order, and prayer was offered by Bishop Simpson. John G. Whittier's centennial hymn was then sung, the music having been written by Prof. Paine of Harvard college. John Welsh, Esq., in behalf of the Board of Finance made the speech of presentation of the buildings, and Gen. Hawley accepted in behalf of the Centennial Commission. Sidney Lanier's cantata was sung, and Gen. Hawley in turn presented the exhibition to the President of the United States, who responded happily, declaring the exhibition open. The procession was a magnificent pageant and when the exercises were commenced in the grounds, 50,000 people were present.

Two men were killed and seven wounded by a horse-car accident at Bergen Hill, New Jersey, on Tuesday.

The "Molly Maguires" of the Pennsylvania coal regions are now said to be identical with the "Ancient Order of Hibernians," to which none but Catholic Irishmen can belong. A detective who has been a member of the organization for several years and has held high office in it, has testified on the trial of the murderers of Policeman Yost, giving all the signs, grips and pass-words. He says the test oath binds the members to murder any one obnoxious to the society or its members, and that the murder of an "outsider" occasions the murderer's promotion. According to his story, which though almost too horrible for belief is strongly corroborated, they have a regular "market rate of murder."

Ship Neptune, of New York, was wrecked on Sable Island, April 12th. One man was lost.

Schooner Gem, of and for Boothbay, Me., before reported ashore at Cape Porpoise, Me., has been sold as she lays for $325. She is full of water and will probably be a total loss. She was valued at $2000, and was not insured.

Brig Hattie E. Wheeler, from New York for Portland, with coal, is ashore on Horse Shoe Shoal, in Vineyard Sound, and will be a total wreck.

Brig Martha Upton, of and from New York, was run down and sunk on the trip to the West Indies. Crew saved.

British ship Lake St. Clair, which sailed for New York from Glasgow, Jan. 19, has not since been heard of and is doubtless lost with all on board.

The gold mine, discovered on the Dr. Jerry Clifford place of Loudon, is now in active operation, under the management of experienced miners from New York, who have bonded the property for $400 and a percentage of the profits. The ore yields about $40 to the ton. A sufficient number of men is employed to work the mine day and night, and it is proposed to sink a shaft fifty feet during the present season.

A Boston firm are about to publish a new atlas of New Hampshire, from new surveys, including the U. S. coast survey, geological survey, etc.

General Terry and staff, accompanied by General Custer, left St. Paul on the 9th. They will march for the Yellowstone Valley. General Custer will command his regiment, and will be second to General Terry in command of the Fort Lincoln columns. Orders from Washington restored him to duty with his regiment and gave him permission to go with the expedition. He was suspended from his regimental command and was likely to be left at Fort Lincoln all summer in command of a small guard. He made, through military channels, a personal appeal to the President, asking to be spared the humiliation of seeing his regiment march out on active service, leaving him, its senior officer, in the Department behind. The order is the President's reply to Custer's appeal.

Daily Chronicle.

—"Mother," said a promising boy, as he came in whistling from school, slung his satchel full of books down on the stair landing, and elicited a howl of agony from his infant sister by giving her a sly punch in the ribs: "Mother, I hear 'em saying at school to-day that this Belknap business is all a 'stall;' is it?" "A what, my son?" inquired the doting mother. "A 'snide,' you know. A first-class 'bilk' on the community." "I don't understand you, Willy, dear; what horrid words those are; explain yourself." "Ah, mother, pull down your vest." I mean wasn't it a fraud, a put-up job you know, to get Bel' to give himself away, and then have Cale Marsh light out for Canada, so's he can't swear it on 'im. Don't you twig? Where's th' old man?" Whack! bang! came an application of slipper suddenly from the rear—the "old man" having just entered unobserved in season to wind up the dialogue.

—A vicious horse in New York has just been induced to adopt the habits of civilized equinine life by means of the following treatment: The animal was put into a kind of frame-buggy with thills so long that he could not kick with any result, wheels so wide apart that he could not upset it, and a contrivance behind which bore upon the ground when he attempted to rear and forcibly prevented him. Moreover, he could not run away because of a strap fastened to a hind leg, which promptly pulled up when he so attempted, leaving him but three, which were enough; and so he had but one resource left, which was to lie down, and this he did once for twenty-four hours, at the end of which time he was forever cured of the propensity.

"A Drop of Joy in Every Word."

Flemington, Hunterdon Co., N. J., June 27, 1874.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—It is with a happy heart that I pen these lines to acknowledge that you and your Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets are blessings to the World. These medicines cannot be too highly praised, for they have almost brought me out of the grave. Three months ago I was broken out with large ulcers and sores on my body, limbs and face. I procured your Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets, and have taken six bottles, and to-day I am in good health, all those ugly ulcers having healed and left my skin in a natural, healthy condition. I thought at one time I could not be cured. Although I can but poorly express my gratitude to you, yet there is a drop of joy in every word I write. God's blessing rest on you and your wonderful medicines is the humble prayer of Yours truly,

JAMES O. BELLIS.

When a medicine will promptly cure such terrible eating ulcers and free the blood of the virulent poison caused thereby, who can any longer doubt its wonderful virtues? Dr. Pierce, however, does not wish to place his Golden Medical Discovery in the catalogue of quack patent nostrums by recommending it to cure every disease, nor does he so recommend it; but what he does claim is this, that there is but one form of blood disease that it will not cure, and that disease is cancer. He does not recommend his Discovery for that disease, yet he knows it to be the most searching blood cleanser yet discovered, and that it will free the blood and system of all other known blood poisons, be they animal, vegetable or mineral. The Golden discovery is warranted by him to cure the worst forms of Skin Diseases, as all forms of Blotches, Pimples and Eruptions, also all Glandular Swellings, and the worst form of Scrofulous and Ulcerated Sores of Neck, Legs or other parts, and all Scrofulous Diseases of the Bones, as White Swellings, Fever Sores, Hip Joint and Spinal Diseases, all of which belong to Scrofulous diseases.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden, Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much of the time, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE,—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, and got no relief, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think the best proven a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.

Yours respectfully, MRS. B. T. LANE.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.60 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Memorial Day.

The committee on route of procession and programme, of which Col. William H. Sise is chairman, have selected the following route by ascent of Chief Marshal Pierce: Form on Market Square, march at two o'clock through Market and Deer streets to Railroad Avenue, and halt. Detachments of veterans will then decorate the graves in the cemeteries on Elm street, after which the procession will resume its march to Bridge, through Bridge to Islington, Cabot, Middle, State, Chapel, Daniel, Pleasant and South streets to the cemetery, where the usual ceremonies will take place. The procession will then reform, march up Richards Avenue and be dismissed on Market Square about five o'clock.

It was voted to employ the Naval and Portsmouth Cornet bands. The procession will be a large one, invitations having been extended to the officers at the navy yard, the Marine Corps, (an organization which has nobly responded to every call for escort duty on these occasions, the three) Artillery companies, the city government, the Fire Department, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, Knights of Honor, Reform Club, and other organizations. The various committees have entered with zeal into the work and we trust that our citizens will willingly respond to the calls of the finance committee to pay the comparatively small expense.

The evening meeting at the hall will be presided over by our honored and esteemed Ex-Governor, Hon. Ichabod Goodwin, and the exercises will be varied and interesting as the committees can make it, being similar to those of last year.

Ruffianism.

On Tuesday night Mr. Albert Ham reported at the police station that he had been assaulted by some person to him unknown, as he was going toward his home at about midnight. The cowardly ruffian struck him in the face without provocation or warning, and then ran away. Mr. Ham's face was badly bruised and two of his teeth knocked out by the blow.

Between one and two o'clock, Wednesday morning, as two policemen were going their rounds in the lower part of the city, two large stones were thrown at them and came unpleasantly near their heads, the two fellows that threw the missiles then running away to escape the officers, who had at once turned and charged upon them. The fugitive scoundrels not complying with the officers' demand for them to stop, the latter fired two shots at them from their revolvers, but unfortunately failed to kill them; and before the policemen could have any more pistol-practice the roughs ran into a building on Russell's wharf. The officers now felt sure of their game, but the fugitives—probably two of the "wharf rats"—were too well acquainted with the locality, and made their escape.

There are some dozen or more of bummers and loafers now infesting this city, who have been growing bolder and bolder in their ruffianism ever since the democratic party got possession of the city government; and unless the authorities soon do something decisive to rid the city of their presence, or at least to keep them crowded back into the dens where they belong, private citizens will have to assume their own protection. Devotion to party is a good-enough thing in its proper place, but to allow a score or so of roughs and bullies to "run" a city, for fear that opposing them might "injure the party," we think is poor policy even from a partisan point of view.

Jottings.

The Eastern and Boston & Maine railroads have indulged in some pretty expensive rivalry in the past, resulting in the present ruin of the former and the prospective ruin of the latter road; but they are not sick of it yet, and are now running opposition trains from Portland to Boston, each striving to get over the distance a little quicker than the other. The Eastern train so far beats the one over the rival road by about five minutes on the entire distance, one hundred and eight miles—not quite three seconds to a mile; but the chances for a first-class smash-up are probably increased in about an equal ratio on each road. These two railroads beat the Kilkenney cats; there won't be a tail of either left, one of these days.

A man representing himself to be the master of the schooner "George Clark" (and also of schooner "Lizzie Davis") recently tried to "put up a job" on some of our citizens. He engaged Capt. A. K. P. Deering to take out one of the George Clark's masts, stating that the schooner then lay in the lower harbor, and would be brought up to the city next morning by the mate; then, as he had to go to Portland right away and had inadvertently left all his money on board the vessel, he felt impelled to borrow enough for his immediate needs from Capt. Deering. The idea was good and the plan artistically carried out, but Capt. Deering didn't feel impelled to lend the money, and didn't advance any. The same master mariner also contracted with a sailmaker for a new spanker for the George Clark, telling the same story as to her whereabouts and trying the same borrowing dodge, but was again disappointed, the sailmaker also declining to take any stock. The schooner has not yet appeared at the wharves nor can she be found in the lower harbor, and it is supposed the "captain" became so disgusted with the lack of business enterprise among our Portsmouth mechanics that he determined to sail away to some other port with his badly-sprung mast.

The base ball match at the Plains, Wednesday afternoon, between the Granite State club and a picked nine, was won by the club—score 31 to 11. Umpire, Joseph R. Curtis.

The popular pantomime of "Humpty Dumpty," is to be presented at the Temple, next Tuesday evening, by Messrs. Maffitt & Tyler's company. They will bring all the favorites of the old troupe, Miss Boshell, Chapman, Ravel, and Dunbar, with the Almonte Brothers and a singer. Mr. Maffitt of course appears as "Humpty;" a mirth provoking clown, a funny pantaloon, a nimble harlequin, a graceful columbine, pleasing variety features, clever tricks and stage-illusions, and a right jolly entertainment in every respect are assured, and no end of sport is certain.

A man named Frost recently sued the Eastern R. R. for damages by reason of a car load of potatoes being frozen in course of transportation. A Carroll county jury declined to interfere between the frosts, and gave a verdict for the railroad.

The Springfield Union talks about it in this light: The Boston & Maine and Eastern Railroads, which run side by side and often in view of each other from Portland to Boston, are indulging in the pleasing practice of racing passenger trains. On Monday the race lasted from Portland to Boston, the superintendents of both roads in their enthusiasm ordering the trains to run without regard to schedule, and the greatest excitement prevailing along the route. By good luck no accident occurred, but if the superintendents who thus risked the lives of two trains full of helpless passengers in a senseless and puerile rivalry, got their just deserts, they would be sent to the penitentiary.

The choir of the Unitarian church has been re-engaged.

By special request another dance, similar to that given in Mechanics Hall on May night, will be given by the same club in Congress Hall this (Thursday) evening. All cordially invited. Tickets 50 cents.

The Reform Club will hold two rallies this evening; one at the South Ward Room under the direction of Vice President Marden, the other at the Club Headquarters (Rechabite Hall) under the direction of President Treat. Good speaking and singing will be the order at each meeting, and the pledge will be circulated. The club now numbers 2121.

A beautiful grove indeed is being planted in Elwyn Park, and almost everybody is desirous to have a hand in the good work. Several families will set one tree for each member, and various societies, lodges, etc., are to plant groups or clumps. The high school will set a tree—perhaps a tree of knowledge—and our citizens generally have an interest, if not an arborical representative in the new park. All varieties of trees will be set.

Mr. Stephen W. Clark, Principal of the High School, has been called out of town by the death of a relative and will probably be absent during the rest of the week.

The best, cheapest and most comfortable way to go to the Centennial Exhibition is by the steamer Isaac Bell, which is advertised to leave Newburyport for Philadelphia on the 27th inst. This vessel is of ample dimensions for six times the passengers she proposes to take; her saloon is equal to a parlor, and is as cleanly and well provided in all respects—bed and board, as any hotel in Boston. It would be folly to go by rail, sweltering and dusty, to take the chances for a hotel, when this ship will skirt along the shore, give views of the finest scenery on the coast, and furnish the best accommodations, where excursionists can associate with friends and neighbors, for less money. Nobody could ask anything better or cheaper.

Political.

The uncle William Allen business in Ohio is apparently ruining Senator Thurman's political prospects once more. If the venerable ex-Governor does not have strength enough in the State Convention to secure a delegation in his favor, he will be strong enough to prevent a Thurman delegation. There is evidently no hope for the nephew till the uncle dies. The Senator was born a century too soon.

Charles Francis Adams tells a reporter that Tilden, Blaine, Conkling or E. B. Washburne would make a good President.

General Sherman for President is said to be the first choice of many Iowa republicans, including United States Senator Wright.

Blaine and Morton captured the primary meeting at St. Louis, as against the friends of Bristow.

A Nashua correspondent of the Boston Globe mentions O. C. Moore, Esq., of the Telegraph, Col. Gilman Scripture, C. V. Dearborn, Esq., and Geo. W. Davis, Esq., as candidates for district delegates to the Cincinnati convention from Nashua. Another correspondent predicts 5000 majority for Bristow in this State if he should be nominated.

The New York Tribune, thinks "there is no Great Unknown for Mr. Blaine to fear. All the competitors he will have are on the track already, and he will have quite enough to take care of to distance them. This year of all others parties must make nominations that mean something. The candidate must be known, must have a character and a record with which the public is familiar."

HAVING NOTICED

The statements in the city papers, that certain persons have been injured by eating pressed corned beef put up in Chicago, and feeling that if not explained these facts will result in injury where it does not belong, and as after a thorough investigation we find that the best complained of is in every instance beef packed in rolls and enclosed in tin foil by parties unknown to us, and not at all similar to canned beef; therefore we, the undersigned, in simple justice to the public and to the reliable firm that pack the canned article, wish to state that we have for a long time sold Pressed CORNED Corned Beef and Beef Tongues packed in 2, 4, 6 and 14 ℔ cans, by Messrs. Libby, McNeil & Libby of Chicago, and we cheerfully recommend this brand of goods as a safe, nutritious and economical article of food.

NOTICE.

Having my ware-room (which is the largest this side of Boston) full of the best of

MARBLE WORK,

I would respectfully invite the people of Portsmouth and vicinity, who have lost relatives or friends, or have occasion for the use of any kind of stone work, to call before purchasing elsewhere. My stock consists of Monuments, Headstones, Marble Posts, Mantel Shelves, Pier Tops, &c., the stock for which was bought and men employed for work the same, since the commencement of the present hard times. I have not sufficient room in which to place more work, and do not wish to discharge any of my hands. For the above reasons, I feel confident that no one can underself me with the same quality of stock and work. Take occasion to call the attention of all who are repairing or building houses, to my large stock of Mantel Shelves and Pier Tops!

I also have Three LOTS, enclosed with Granite Curbs and Posts, in Harmony Grove and Sagamore Cemeteries, which I will sell at a discount.

The Keely Motor.

"If I have luck and no further breakages I think I shall be able to exhibit the motor at work to the directors of the company and those of the public who choose to come, about June 1," said Mr. Keely, the chief projector of the new engine which is to revolutionize the procuration of force, as he yesterday escorted a Times man into a workshop in the rear of his residence. "You cannot conceive," he continued, "the power of this machine and what we have had to overcome in experimenting. This register shell, for instance, weighs 7,000 pounds, although it is only 42 inches in diameter outside and 30 inches inside, being 6 inches thick. It is spherical, is of wrought steel, and holds 61 gallons; it took two weeks to cool after manufacture. I can charge it in less than one second with vapor, generated by about three thimblefuls of water, that will run a 500 horse-power engine nine hours. This gauge registers 54,000 pounds to the square inch—4,000 pounds over that of gunpowder. We have tested it eight times. The safety-valve which you see here," and Mr. Keely touched with his foot a wrought iron pipe a foot in diameter and three inches in thickness, which enclosed loosely a smaller pipe, "cannot do much harm if it bursts, as the outer casing prevents the pieces flying. Here is one we split," and he placed his hands upon a huge "valve" that had been riven like a reed. "The material we now use almost entirely is of steel, forged in solid masses and bored out. The compressing cocks which are attached to that cylinder are my own invention. Understand what we are fighting against is thirty tons to the square inch. This machine will develop 8,500 horse-power—enough to run all the cars in Philadelphia and New York put together—and can be charged with seventy gallons of pure vapor per minute. We have about fifty men employed all told; the work generally is done outside by J. P. Morris and Morris & Tasker, and simply put up inside. Yes, that patch in the wall is where a bolt that blew out went through a short time ago. The greatest care is needed, and yet some of our appliances appear very fragile. This copper tube, which you see is not much thicker than a lead pencil, and has a passage not larger than a pipestem, will stand a pressure of 100,000 pounds to the square inch. A magnificent motor is being put together by Messrs. Sargent & Cunningworth in New York; it is, of course, for our company."

Mr. Keely then conducted the reporter to his model-room, where a number of delicately constructed specimens of liliputian motors and machines invited inspection. "There are so many points about the invention that it would take me three or four days to describe them, and your paper far more room than it could spare in a year to publish them. The present century has given birth to many marvels, steam, telegraphy, etc., and we are going to astonish the world in a greater measure than even great scientists can imagine. You may tell the readers of the Times that, barring accidents, the motor will be in working order by the Fourth of July." The interview then terminated.—Philadelphia Times.

—Dr. Griffith of Wyoming, Kent County, Delaware, has discovered that gulf-weed is a safe antidote for obesity. No care need be exercised as to the amount of the tea the patient drinks. He tried it on himself, taking no other drinks, and in a few weeks his own corpulence had greatly diminished. He tried it on three stout neighbors, who within two or three months lost from twelve to thirty pounds. Dr. Griffith says that great care should be used in collecting the weed.

Counter-Irritants.

Bristow and Reform.

The Bristow Club had its origin in the demand, so generally felt, that the Reform movement ought to be organized.

Everybody recognizes the need of reform. The state of our politics has never been so bad as it is now. Corrupt men control to a dangerous extent the working of our political parties, and even the highest administrative functions of the government are seriously affected by the vices of the age. A member of the Cabinet is now standing his trial by impeachment at the bar of the Senate. "Rings" of miserable, self-seeking, greedy politicians control more than one of our large cities. Associations for cheating the government out of millions of taxes, to whose schemes officials of the government lend themselves, have become so formidable that they well-nigh defy even the strongest assaults. Nor is this all. The Federal office-holders are trained to work for their political chiefs, and in every election, State as well as National, their well-drilled ranks are a power which is hostile to the freedom of our institutions. Obedient to orders, sinking their own individual preferences, they are always to be found in full force at the primary meetings, where they rob the citizen of his privilege of selecting his candidates, and at the polls, where their numbers tell, frequently with crushing effect, in contests where, but for them, the result would be in accordance with the enlightened opinion of the public. This state of things is intolerable, and must be stopped. But the Bristow Club goes one step further.

We believe that there must be a leader in every movement; and we believe that in Secretary Bristow we have found the leader which this Reform movement demands. We believe at all events, that the time to decide on a leader has come.

We believe that the people should now indicate their preference, in order that their delegates at Cincinnati may ratify it, and place in nomination those men whom the sentiment of the American nation has approved. And the time is short,—barely six weeks. If it is for the people to select as their candidate for the Presidency a man who is to lead this reform, the man must be decided on at once.

Now, then, we believe that Benjamin Helm Bristow is the man to lead this great movement. We point with pride to his loyalty, so conspicuous during the war, to his courage, both physical and moral, exhibited on the field of battle, and in no less trying assault upon fraud and corruption as shown in the "Whiskey Ring;" to his conduct as a citizen, a professional man, and an officer of the government, always free from selfish aims, and marked by an unfaltering and efficient discharge of public duty. We believe that he has the sort of character which we need in this emergency; that he is not only a man upon whom the deteriorating influences of political life have had no effect, who has passed clean and pure through the manifold temptations of a political career; but that he is more than this and better than this,—that he is determined to make war upon the system which makes this political corruption possible, and to turn aside from no difficulty, however formidable, to hesitate at no task, however gigantic, until the work be thoroughly accomplished.

We believe that he has the reform of the civil service thoroughly at heart, and that, were he elected President, he would carry it through. We know that the best friends of reform throughout the land are in accord with him, and trust him. We believe that the people are everywhere looking for such a man as he is,—strong, fearless, incorruptible, active, efficient, full of public spirit, devoted to duty. And we believe, finally, that the people will recognize in him the man they need.

In order, therefore, to give effect to our intentions and opinions, we have formed the Bristow Club, and we urge all who believe with us not to be content with silent assent, but to organize similar bodies, to hold public meetings, and to promulgate their opinions boldly and zealously, that those in possession and control of the republican party may recognize that the people have spoken.

By order of the Executive Committee,
JOHN C. ROPES, President.
BRISTOW CLUB, BOSTON, 28 School St.

The Massachusetts State Convention.

This gathering was intended by certain parties to be a Bristow affair, but as it proved not to be, they resort to misrepresentation, and claim it as such. Certain men claiming to be republicans seem to think it the proper way to run the republican party by abusing it and its most eminent men, in other words are seeking to run it into the ground.

By getting the convention called in Boston, and forming mutual admiration Bristow clubs, issuing addresses, and making a great noise generally, they meant to have matters all their own way. By cunning management—these men are none of them politicians, you know—they secured a presiding officer and had the committees made up and all the speeches before the convention provided for in their own way.

On the other hand, the quiet, self-respecting supporters of Mr. Blaine, with no clubs, no concert of action, no speeches arranged, no machinery of any kind at their command, went into the convention at a great disadvantage, and feeling it, and ignorant of their own strength, and distrusting it.

Now what was the result? Plainly apparant to all present who would exercise their common sense, that it was a Blaine victory. When the name of Bristow was mentioned, the applause was faint. When the name of Blaine as a presidential candidate was suggested, the applause was immense, overwhelming, and so prolonged, burst after burst, it seemed as if the storm could not subside.

The self-complacent none-suches, who undertook the management of that convention, say the only mistake was in Dr. Blackwell's introducing his Bristow resolution. It was a bad mistake for them. It gave a chance to introduce a counter resolution for Mr. Blaine and for that outburst of enthusiasm which revealed the Blaine men to each other, and showed them how greatly they had under-estimated the popularity of their favorite and the strength of their cause.

And what did the election of delegates show? Mr. Dana was elected, as it was a foregone conclusion he would be, for personal reasons, by a good majority, and as his name headed the Bristow ticket it doubtless carried with it many votes from the friends of Mr. Blaine. Mr. Dana was elected, and was the only man on the Bristow ticket elected by ballot, while Mr. Hoar and Mr. Forbes on the Blaine ticket were chosen, Judge Hoar running ahead of Mr. Dana seventy-seven votes. So far as the issue was made in the convention, then, the Blaine party carried the day, and would have elected the other delegate but for the unpopularity of the man brought forward for that purpose.

In estimating the relative strength of the two parties in the convention, the vote of Mr. Dana should not be regarded, as he did not represent the issue and had not his name been on the Bristow ticket, the whole Blaine ticket would have been chosen. The other names on the Bristow ticket fell far short of an election.

Not a Bristow triumph, surely, but clearly a convention that declared its first choice to be the Hon. James G. Blaine. If the delegates to Cincinnati truly represent the convention that elected them, and the sentiment of the masses of the republican party, Massachusetts will stand sturdily by the side of Maine in the National Convention, and to do what she can to secure the nomination of that statesman, the illustrious, tried, always hitherto victorious and acknowledged leader of the great republican party.

One other point should be alluded to; Mr. Chadbourne was nominated by acclamation as the fourth delegate after a large part of the convention had left, and upon the plea that the western part of the State should have a delegate.

The Blaine men went into this convention without preliminary organization or consultation that amounted to anything, without plans and without leaders, and won the victory.

If in the coming struggle we wish to give enthusiasm to our party, and bring out its full strength, and add to that strength and make victory certain, we must take our standard bearer from the Pine Tree State. Massachusetts went down to Baltimore once and threw overboard Hannibal Hamlin, the Maine candidate for Vice President, and gave us the four disastrous years of Andrew Johnson. Let her not repeat that bit of history.—Old Colony (Plymouth, Mass.) Memorial.

The Auction Closed.

The auction sale of a United States Senatorship by the democracy of the Connecticut legislature closed on Wednesday night, when the prize was knocked down to William H. Barnum, he being the highest bidder. The price paid is not yet made public, but it must be very large, as the other bidder, James E. English, is (like Barnum) a very wealthy man, and never backward in "putting out his money for the good of the party" when office is in the prospective. The contest all through has simply been a battle of the money-bags, even the democrats not pretending that brains or fitness for office had anything to do with it. But then, you know, the democrats are engaged in "purifying" the public service by throwing mud at the republicans, and cannot be expected to pay any attention to such a trifling matter as the open sale of a Senatorship by their own party.

There was a lively time in the caucus, which was attended by nearly every democratic member of the legislature. The friends of Senator English demanded a viva voce vote, which was objected to by the Barnumites; but the Englishmen, led by the Speaker of the House, who declared that unless the majority allowed the minority to put themselves on record they would bolt the caucus nomination, succeeded in carrying their point. The vote was: Barnum 100; English 74; Ingersoll 1. The Boston Herald's report says: "So the fight, one of the bitterest and most hotly-contested ever known in Connecticut, is ended, and English is to be unseated and Barnum sent to the Senate. The result must be that the democratic party will now be divided, and that in the Fall Connecticut can be surely counted for a republican electoral vote; so the friends of English declare."

News and Notes.

The State census in New York shows that there has been a decrease of population in ten of its agricultural counties in the last five years, amounting to 6,177. All the counties having a large city, except Jefferson, show a decided increase, which reveals the fact that the tendency of our population is more and more toward cities. All the increase of the State in the last five years, which amounts to 322,000, has been in cities and villages. This tendency has been marked in New England for the last fifty years, and is destined to go on in the future. Nothing can be more certain than that in the older States the consumers of agricultural products are rapidly increasing, while the farming population is decreasing, or barely holds its own. It follows from this that farm products must increase in value.

Old Mr. Growser, who lives in Durham, caused considerable excitement in church on a recent Sunday afternoon; during the sermon the old gentleman quietly dropped asleep with his hand resting on the back of the pew in front of him, and his nose by some means got wedged into the book-rack in such a manner that it was impossible for him to free himself without help. He snorted and banged round till the sexton split open the rack and got his nose out in a damaged condition.

The number of vessels belonging to, or bound to or from ports in the United States, reported totally-lost and missing during the month of April is 37, of which 15 were wrecked, 3 abandoned, 2 burned, 3 sunk by collision, 1 foundered, 2 capsized, and 11 are missing. The list comprises 2 steamers, 3 ships, 4 barques, 6 brigs, and 22 schooners; and their total value, exclusive of cargoes, is estimated at $510,000.

Several newspapers, including the New York Herald and Times, Harper's Weekly and Frank Leslie's Illustrated, have organized an expedition for the purpose of encompassing the earth in eighty days. The London Times has joined the enterprise, and will send Dr. Russell, known as "Bull Run" Russell, and an artist connected with the Illustrated News will also accompany the expedition. The expedition will leave New York about June 1, in a special train for San Francisco, which is advertised to go through to that city in eighty hours. This fast train will travel to Chicago over the Pennsylvania line, from whence it will go forward to Omaha by special engines under the direction of Mr. Stenoett. The excursionists will remain in Chicago no longer than is necessary to transfer the train to the track of the Northwestern road. At San Francisco the newspaper party will take a steamer to Yokohama, and thence they will proceed to Calcutta, Cairo, and through the Mediterranean to France. They will proceed to Queenstown and embark for New York.

The crew of the British barque Caswell mutinied and killed all the officers, on the passage from Rio Janeiro to Queenstown, recently.

Schooner Richmond, from Boston for Calais, in ballast, was struck by lightning on Sunday night, the 7th, off Thatcher's Island, and lost foremast and maintopmast. She was towed into Gloucester on the 9th.

The Florida orange crop for the present season is 25,000,000, worth on an average at the groves $15 per thousand, making $375,000. It is estimated that there is now more than 3000 acres of young trees from four to six years old from the bud, some bearing as many as 100 oranges the past fruit season. For the next five years it is believed the crop will gradually increase from growth of trees to 150,000,000, yielding a product of $2,250,000 or about one-seventh of the product of Palermo.

The four great northern cities, Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, seem to be centralizing within their grasp the foreign trade of the Republic as effectually as they did the railway system, and probably the one is a corollary of the other. In the year 1874 they transacted no less than $832,200,000 of a total of $1,288,900,000. And this proportion increases steadily and remarkably, so that there does not really appear to be any rivalry or competition in their way. Three of the four were so long overshadowed by New York that they made no progress. But a great change has occurred, and the three ports are now going ahead astonishingly.

A Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Times sits down on Gen. Boynton and the Washington correspondent of the Boston Herald, Ed. Hudson, by referring to them as: "Oily Boynton and his man Friday, the little nincompoop who sends slop to the Boston Herald."

A Reenforcement.

The rebel brigadiers in Congress have been reenforced by their brethren of the South. Gov. Coke of Texas, democratic Senator-elect from that State, did long and gallant service as a confederate soldier in the war to destroy the Union, but he isn't ashamed of it—not a bit. On the contrary, when he was working for the election he made a speech in which he recounted at length his services as a rebel soldier, and declared that he would do just so again should the opportunity offer, so the Texan democracy promptly sent him to Washington as the most fit and proper person they could find to represent them in the councils of the Nation. And we notice that some of the northern democratic papers—all of them that pay any attention at all to Gov. Coke's merits—warmly welcome the new Senator to a high position in the government he fought so hard to overthrow, and upon which he would again make war, he says, should he ever have another chance.

—A Wisconsin editor illustrates the prevailing extravagance of the people of the present day by calling attention to the costly baby carriages in use now, while, when he was a baby, they hauled him around by the hair of the head.

—Mr. Murray says that "Heaven is not populated with singing thieves or palm bearing bankrupts, who settle with their creditors at twenty-five cents on a dollar Wednesday, and ride to church the next Sunday in a $1000 coach with a man in livery on the box."

—It would make Horace Greeley turn over in his grave if he could hear the Iowa papers calling Miss Clagett, of the Keokuk Constitution, an editress. We presume these same papers look upon her as a brilliant young journalistess, and understand that she will be her own business manageress, and we hope that she will succeed equally well as an editress and publisheress, and a moulderess of public opinion, and predict that she will be a leaderess in local literary circles, a position which her attainments as a scholaress and ability as a writeress entitle her to take.—Burlington Hawkeye.

HAVING NOTICED

The statements in the city papers, that certain persons have been injured by eating pressed corned beef put up in Chicago, and feeling that if not explained these facts will result in injury where it does not belong, and after a thorough investigation we find that the beef complained of is in every instance beef packed in rolls and enclosed in tin foil by parties unknown to us and not at all similar to canned beef; therefore we, the undersigned, in simple justice to the public and to the reliable firm that pack the canned article, wish to state that we have for a long time sold Pressed CANNED Corned Beef and Beef Tongues packed in 2, 4, 6 and 14 lb cans, by Messrs. ELWYN PARK.

NOTICE.

THE PUBLIC are respectfully informed that the beautiful grounds lying between South Street and the Mill Pond, donated for a Park by the late HON. JOHN ELWYN, will be opened to the public use forever, with appropriate ceremonies on the premises, on TUESDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 23

At 3 o'clock,

in which every citizen, and every Son and Daughter of Portsmouth wherever residing, is generally and specially invited to join, without further notice.

On this occasion, (or at any time previously) there will be set in the Park, of all varieties; and any citizen, Society, or Association desiring to furnish one or more trees for this purpose, may send them to the Park at any time, or report at the Bookstore of Mr. JOS. H. FOSTER, or to either of the Trustees, or to Mr. JOHN F. MARDEN, on South Street.

Or parties wishing to aid the cause, and preferring to be represented by one or more trees, rather than provide them, can do so by a donation of $5.00 (or any sum they see fit) to the Treasurer.

Citizens willing to contribute labor gratuitously toward the construction of the Park, either of men or teams, are invited to report at the grounds at any time previous to the 23d inst., to assist in setting trees, building fences and embankments, clearing the grounds, etc.

Most respectfully, for the cause,

Jottings.

The rainy season having set in renders it an excellent time to set out trees.

The Knights of Pythias, the Odd Fellows generally, and two of the Artillery Companies, are designing to locate beautiful and appropriate floral symbols in the new Park. Capt. Williams' Company have already set out a row of thirteen trees, being one for each of the original thirteen States. Several families will also set groups of trees, one trees for each member—Rev. Mr. Elwyn, with his clump of eight trees, being assigned a prominent position at the front entrance to the Park.

Filth Diseases and their Prevention; by John Simon, M. D., F. R. C. S., Chief Medical Officer of the Privy Council and of the Local Government Board of Great Britain. First American Edition. Printed under the direction of the State Board of Health of Massachusetts. 16mo., cloth, $1.00. A most plain-speaking and truth-telling exponent of the multiform physical nastinesses that breed disease and death in closely compacted cities and towns, and a blunt, straightforward, unflattering gospel of that cleanliness which, in the Talmud, is declared to be next to godliness, is Dr. John Simon's book of the above title, recommended by our State Board of Health. For sale by J. H. Foster.

Roberts Brothers, Boston, have issued a little volume of 200 pages entitled "1776—Revolutionary Times," in twelve chapters descriptive of the cities and towns, political geography, public communications, general features of character and life, domestic concerns, education, literature, the Press, the churches and clergy, professions and trades, men and women, odds and ends—of a hundred years ago. Edward Abbott is the author. For sale by J. H. Foster for $1.

Mr. Parkhurst inquired yesterday, in view of the numerous planting of trees (not cannon, let us be thankful,) by the numerous Portsmouth Artillery,—whether there is any prospect of our having a park of artillery. Let us have piece.

The light, open fence in front of the Cutter mansion on Congress and Middle streets, which has just been replaced by a new one, was built by the late William and John Miller, the latter of whom died in 1813, seventy-three years ago, aged only forty years. Mr. John Miller was father of the late Rev. T. H. Miller, and was an enterprising and capable architect. He built several of the best houses on Islington street, and owned lands on Christian Shore, where he laid out Woodbury and Sparhawk streets; and at the time of his death had the lumber on the southern shore of the North pond, to build a bridge across at his own expense, which would evidently have been one of the greatest improvements possible to the city, even to this day. His son, the late Rev. Mr. Miller, while pastor of the church at Kittery Point, procured the construction of the bridge across the river to the Foreside, among his other public improvements; and now his son, who is one of the Park trustees, is desirous to carry out the long-talked of project of a bridge across the South pond. Perhaps this characteristic was inherited.

"Burleigh" writes the Boston Journal as follows, concerning the Thirty-fourth Street Reformed Church in New York, whither Rev. Carlos Martyn has gone: "This parish has a fine house of worship, but has never been a success. It is borne down by a heavy debt, and is in a neighborhood from which churchgoing people have taken their departure, and their places have been filled by Jews, Germans and Catholics. Earnest men have preceded Mr. Martyn, and after years of discouragement have turned away, regarding the field as hopeless. May a better fate await the new comer."

The Temperance Reform Club, having secured the use of Rechabite Hall for a reading and club room, have appointed the following committee to fit up the Hall: Messrs. James Sanborn and John Dame, Mrs. A. W. Haven, Mrs. B. F. Thorndike, Mrs. Silas Philbrick. The committee earnestly invite contributions of any articles, useful or ornamental; books for the library, subscriptions of newspapers and periodicals for the tables, games, pictures, etc.; and all, whether members of the Club or otherwise, are solicited to help in any way possible. Articles sent to the Hall, which is open day and evening, or to any member of the committee will be gratefully received.

The troupe which performs at the Temple to-morrow night is fortunate in such comedians as Sheridan, Mack and Kelley, and such good singers as Missos Corelli, Jourdan and Leigh. Miss Corelli inherits fine vocal abilities from her mother, Rose Czillag—once so well-known to opera-goers—and is undoubtedly one of the most promising young singers of the country. Miss Jourdan has no superior in her line, and Miss Leigh is one of the best of serio-comic singers.

On Thursday John E. Morrison started from the North church at one o'clock P. M., walked to Rye Centre by way of Sagamore Creek, thence to Breakfast Hill and Greenland Parade and back to the starting point by the Creek road, arriving at 4:03. The distance is seventeen miles, and the walk was for a wager of $50, Mr. Morrison winning with thirty-seven minutes to spare. He was followed by two teams, and had a dead-ahead wind from the time he started until he reached the Concord depot in Greenland on his way home—more than three-fourths the entire distance.

Frank Mayo will appear at the Temple, as "Davy Crockett," on Saturday evening, May 20th.

The railroad-train racing between the Boston & Maine and Eastern roads came to an end Wednesday, the former road returning to schedule time regardless of the Eastern.

The second trial of John K. Lyons of Manchester, a repeater who voted the democratic ticket frequently in March, 1875, resulted in a second disagreement of the jury on Thursday.

The republicans of Ward Two elected Messrs. Elbridge G. Peirce, Jr., and John Pender as delegates to the State convention, Thursday evening.

There will be a match game of base ball at the Plains on Saturday, between the Granite State club and a picked nine. Game called at 2 o'clock.

North Hampton.

As several faulty statements have appeared in the papers in regard to the new school building recently finished and dedicated, we will endeavor to give a few particulars connected with it. The house is finely located on a lot purchased of the Congregational Society, and near the church. It is a two-story wooden structure. The two districts, united, moved all the old material (consisting of brick and stone) that was suitable to put into the foundation of the new structure, and also moved the new materials from the railroad station, and Mr. Hobbs proceeded to erect the building. The basement (which is ten feet) is built of brick and stone, lain in cement, and was done by Mr. J. Teague of East Boston. The wood work throughout was in charge of E. H. Brown, of Boston, who brought several mechanics with him and employed quite a number in this vicinity. The plastering was done by Mr. Fraser of Portsmouth. Mr. Coffin of same place had the job of painting the building, two coats inside and outside, and other jobs in his line of business. The building is 70ft. by 45ft. The first-story is twelve feet high, the second eighteen feet. On the first floor are two school rooms, capable of seating more scholars than the district will be likely to furnish, three ante-rooms for clothing, etc., a kitchen with sink and closets for table ware, a dining room and the necessary entries. These rooms are finished with hard pine floors and heavy ash mouldings and trimmings, and the school rooms are furnished with inside blinds. The school furniture consists of one hundred of Andrews' improved school desks, made in Chicago and purchased of the Boston Agent, Mr. Bridgman; they are very comfortable and attractive, and the best made. The second story contains an attractive, hall 51 ft by 45 ft., with two dressing rooms, and a front and rear stairway. The second story is finished in hard and white pine. Over the main entrance at the west end of the building is a porch and a tower rising sixteen feet above the top of the roof, surmounted with a spire and handsome vane, with the cardinal points of the compass. The roof is covered with slate of best quality, and supplied with copper gutters. A part of the water from the roof is conducted into a cistern, outside, prepared for the use of the building, and is drawn from a pipe in the basement. The building is heated by a furnace in the basement, put in by Messrs. Magee and Dearborn.

The grading around the building has been mostly done by volunteer labor in the district, with gravel given by Mr. Simon Brown.

The whole cost of the structure has been about $12,000. From the frame to the vane all the materials are of the best quality, and make a noble and imposing monument; and future generations will have cause to gratefully remember the originator and builder. In this building two schools, numbering respectively thirty-six and forty-one scholars, are now in successful operation, taught by Miss Abbie Bachelder, assisted by Miss Carrie Warner. J. W. B.

Political.

The Boston Herald says: "Belknap resigned to avoid impeachment, and the acceptance of his resignation was an offence on the part of the President." We have never noticed that the Herald found any fault with the democratic House of Representatives for accepting the resignation of the democratic journal clerk, after he had been proved unworthy, in order that he might be spared the disgrace of expulsion for improper conduct as an official.

The rebel House at Washington was very anxious to learn where Gen. Grant has spent his time since he was elected President. They know well enough where he was for four years before his election.

For ourselves, remembering that in the past elections when a Great Unknown has run, he has shown himself to be a Great Nobody like Polk and Pierce, we much prefer a candidate with a record, with convictions, with blood and brawn, and not a negative, flaccid, trimming afterthought, taken up at the last moment by a weary convention.—New York Herald.

Congressman Lamar is said to have received information from the South that if Congressman Wheeler should be nominated at Cincinnati, the democrats would have no hope of carrying Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, or North Carolina.

It is claimed by those who profess to know the "inside history" of Mr. Morton's strength, that considerably over 200 delegates are already as good as pledged to support him on the first ballot. Three hundred and sixty-seven nominates, and this number it is believed he will receive on the second ballot.

It is four years since Horace Greeley was nominated for President of the United States, whereby the best editor of the country was spoiled to make the poorest candidate. A noble man was Horace Greeley—true to his convictions, though often in the wrong. Some think the world would have been better off to-day, if he had been elected; but such set themselves up to be wiser than Divine Providence, otherwise the ordering would have been his election; but it was melancholy that his defeat should have killed him, as a like event killed Webster, and some of our other great men. He was too good a man to have been sacrificed as a candidate, and slaughtered by the neglect, coldness and treachery of the men who put him in nomination.—Newburyport Herald.

The Louisville Courier-Journal is afraid Gov. Hayes is going to be the republican candidate. It hopes Bristow will be the man, because then the democrats will nominate Tilden and win. If the republicans select Hayes, Mr. Watterson fears the democrats will think they can beat him with a second-rate man, and will throw away the contest.

The Offspring of Dyspepsia.

No class of invalids are more to be commiserated than the dyspeptic, since the malady from which they suffer is the parent of more numerous offspring of tormenting symptoms than any other disease. On the other hand, they are to be congratulated that there is a potent, safe and agreeable botanic remedy for all the torture that they undergo. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters powerfully invigorates the cellular tissue of the stomach, thus promoting an adequate secretion and flow of the digestive juices, vitalizes the shrunken and debilitated lining of the stomach, directs the bile into its true channel, and stimulates the inactive bowels and dormant liver. These radical effects are accompanied with the restoration of appetite, flesh and sound repose, and the removal of flatulence, heart-burn, nausea, palpitations of the heart, vertigo, high colored and scalding urine, water brash, headache, and many other harrassing symptoms of dyspepsia.

When you have a cough or cold be sure and use Adamson's Cough Balsam. It is an unfailing remedy. 35 and 75 cents per bottle.

Daily Chronicle.

—It takes a Connecticut man to escape by the skin of his teeth. The New Haven Palladium says that a few days since a man was walking up the Connecticut Western Railroad track near the Lake street bridge in Winsted, not noticing a train of freight cars coming silently down the road by the force of gravity. When crossing the bridge the forward car, going probably at the rate of eight miles an hour, hit him and caused him to turn several somersets, throwing him a little on one side of the centre track. The train went on several rods and was finally stopped at a point where the luckless man was pinned between the cross beams of the bridge, head downward and feet and legs bent downward and sidewise, and held in mid air by the car wheel on the tail of his coat. Station Agent Garvin went under the bridge, expecting that the man would drop twelve or fourteen feet upon the street, but he was held too tight, and could only be released by cutting off the skirt of his coat, which was done, and the injuries discovered to be not very serious. It was a marvellous escape, as four more inches movement of the train would have let him to the ground and probably killed him.

—"And you think, darling, you could be content to share my humble lot and live in a quiet way with love and me?" queried the blissful lover as he looked fondly into her translucent blue eyes. "Why, yes, precious; you have no idea how economical I am. Pa gave me a hundred dollars last week to buy a new silk, and I saved enough out of it to purchase four pairs of six-buttoned kids!"

—A father bent on instructing his three-year-old son, said: "If you had three apples and should give me one, how many would you have left?" "I wouldn't do it, pa," was the prompt reply.

"A Drop of Joy in Every Word."

Flemington, Hunterdon Co., N. J., June 27, 1874.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—It is with a happy heart that I pen these lines to acknowledge that you and your Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets are blessings to the World. These medicines cannot be too highly praised, for they have almost brought me out of the grave. Three months ago I was broken out with large ulcers and sores on my body, limbs and face. I procured your Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets, and have taken six bottles, and today I am in good health, all these ugly ulcers having healed and left my skin in a natural, healthy condition. I thought at one time I could not be cured. Although I can but poorly express my gratitude to you, yet there is a drop of joy in every word I write. God's blessing rest on you and your wonderful medicines is the humble prayer of Yours truly,

JAMES O. BELLIS.

When a medicine will promptly cure such terrible eating ulcers and free the blood of the virulent poison causing them, who can any longer doubt its wonderful virtues? Dr. Pierce, however, does not wish to place his Golden Medical Discovery in the catalogue of quack patent nostrums by recommending it to cure every disease, nor does he so recommend it; but what he does claim is this, that there is but one form of blood disease that it will not cure, and that disease is cancer. He does not recommend his Discovery for that disease, yet he knows it to be the most searching blood cleanser yet discovered, and that it will free the blood and system of all other known blood poisons, be they animal, vegetable or mineral. The Golden discovery is warranted by him to cure the worst forms of Skin Diseases, as all forms of Blotches, Pimples and Eruptions, also all Glandular Swellings, and the worst form of Scrofulous and Ulcerated Sores of Neck, Legs or other parts, and all Scrofulous Diseases of the Bones, as White Swellings, Fever Sores, Hip Joint and Spinal Diseases, all of which belong to Scrofulous diseases.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1873, and from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, Cured by Dr. Quain's Pills. Was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. The package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, ME., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, and nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Troubles for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I listened still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they will prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages. Yours respectfully,

MRS. B. T. LANE.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

PULMOCINE

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England.

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

KITTY'S NIGHT-WATCH.

"I do not like this Mr. Sedgewick."

"What have you against him, father? I am sure that many business men of this city have taken quite a fancy to him. Have you noticed his reception on 'change' yesterday?"

"I have just read of it," and the banker's eyes returned to the paper which he had laid aside with his first words to his daughter. "Still, for all that, Kitty, I do not like the man."

"Yours is one of those unaccountable dislikes, I suppose," she answered, with a pout, "and the world is none the better for such. I am sure that Sedgewick will overcome your repugnance and win your esteem. Perhaps he has not patronized the North American."

Kitty Ransom spoke the last words with a smile.

"Quite to the contrary, Kitty," responded her father. "His deposits in the North American run into the thousands, and we cash all the checks that he receives. But the man—the man, Kitty, I say frankly that I do not like him, and, perhaps, I could not tell you why."

The girl with a noticeable pallor on her face, walked to the window, and gazed vacantly into the busy street.

"No!" she murmured; "he never likes anybody to whom I take a fancy. One of these days I will tame him; yes, I will cure him of his dislikes."

Kitty spoke with womanly determination and her ruby lips closed firmly behind the last word.

To the handsome man whose reception on 'change' had been quite flattering she had taken quite a fancy. He had rented the elegant store room that adjoined the North American bank, and was stocking it with an assortment of goods which, he declared would prove the wonder of the thriving city. Of polished manners and fine business address, he was winning his way to the trust of the substantial citizens, and when it was learned that he was unmarried, many young belles smiled upon him, Kitty Ransom among the number. As the days wore away Arthur Sedgewick continued to rise in the estimation of belles and beaux. He seemed to pay especial attention to the banker's daughter, whom he met at social gatherings, while the father looked on with silent disapproval.

"Kitty will find him but tinselj by-and-by," he said to his wife, who did not look with favor on Arthur Sedgewick. "She is young, and some time she must learn that all is not gold that glitters. When I shall have discovered Mr. Sedgewick's true character I will dissipate Kitty's dream. He shall never cross this threshold as our son!"

But the hand of fate was at work, and Kitty Ransom was destined to discover her lover's true character in the gloom of the most memorable night of her life.

"Can I see Kitty?"

The speaker was a private watchman who slept in the bank, and he stood on the stoop of the banker's home.

A few moments later Kitty stood before him.

"Kitty," said the young man, and a blush began to suffuse his face. "Kitty, I cannot stay in the bank to night."

"Why not, Ben?"

"Because—because—Kitty, you will not say a word about it if I tell you?"

"Certainly not."

Then Ben Kittredge, than whom no trustier watchman lived in the city, came nearer to Kitty and said.

"I'm going to be married to-night."

"Why, Ben Kittredge," exclaimed the girl. "This announcement is very sudden. You should have invited me sooner. But I'm too fast, you have not invited me as yet."

"God bless you, Kitty Ransom," said Ben. "You are the first woman I would invite if there were to be any wedding guests. But I want you to do me a greater favor. I want you to sleep in the bank to-night in my place. I would trust nobody else, and I need not assure you the post is safe, for you know that the North American has never been disturbed by burglars; in fact Kitty it is burglar proof—the safes, I mean."

"I do not fear burglars," said the girl with a smile, "but would father let me do you this singular favor?"

"He need not know it till morning," was the quick reply. "You often stay from home at night, and he never questions your out-goings, as you have told me. Besides he will know that you will not see Mr. Sedgewick, as that gentleman has not been seen for several days. Tell your father that you will not be at home to-night. I will come for you by-and-by, and let you in the bank before they light the street-lamps."

Pleased with the romance of sleeping in a bank as the guardian of many thousands of dollars, Kitty Ransom assented to Ben's propositions, and saw him depart in good humor. Of late she had held many stolen interviews with Arthur Sedgewick, much to the chagrin of a certain young man whom her father had in secret chosen for her husband. Kitty respected him and might have loved him, had not the daring merchant crossed her path, and made the conquest of her heart almost before she knew it.

"Let her go!" said Shirley Dare, in bitterness, "let her discover that this Arthur Sedgewick is wearing a cloak of deceit."

Kitty went to the bank with Ben Kittredge, who left her there as watcher while he hastened to the woman whom he was to make his wife.

"I'll let you out early, Kitty," were his last words, and the girl heard him turn the key in the strong lock.

In the well-warmed back parlor Kitty made herself comfortable, and proposed to read before going to sleep on the settee which Ben had transformed into a cozey couch with something like womanly skill. Several walls, thick and strong, separated the banker's daughter from the great safe that contained the wealth of the institution, and Kitty recalled her father's remark of but that evening that the safe had never been so full as it was at that hour.

"I'll go and look at the safe," she said "but not until I get ready to retire," and then she fell to the novel which she had brought from home, and by-and-by silence reigned in the little parlor. Kitty read until her eyes grew heavy, and her watch told her that the city clock would soon strike the eleventh hour.

"Have I read so long?" she asked herself, startled at the lateness of the hour, and then she put the book aside and rose. At that moment a strange sound fell upon her ears. It seemed to come from a remote part of the building and resembled the gnawing of rats. The girl listened for many minutes, but at last smiled at the thought that she would tell Ben that the bank was haunted, and picked up the little night lantern. She intended to carry out her idea of inspecting the bank before composing her limbs for slumber. The gnawing ceased rather suddenly, and the silence that followed, so palpable, so dense, frightened Kitty Ransom, till she sat the lamp down and listened for another noise to re-assure her. After all somebody might be at work on the great safes, the gnawing sounds might be the noise of steel instead of bone, and when Ben came to release her, there might be an empty safe. But when the girl thought of the peculiar construction of the great steel guardian she smiled to herself. Once her father had taken her to the vault and explained how the explosion of powder in the lock would force unseen bolts at the burglars, and how the introduction of drills into the door would imperil the life of the felonious operator.

While Kitty thought, and when she was about to start forward again, there came a rumbling sound, accompanied by a shock that shook the furniture in the room, and almost sent the lantern from the table. Kitty's face grew deadly pale, and her eyes seemed ready to start from their sockets. She felt the shock had been caused by the explosion of powder in the lock of the safe, and secretly hoped that the hidden bolts of steel had effectually performed their deadly office. The shock lasted but a moment. Kitty felt a terrible and ominous silence fall about her like the shroud of night, and for a moment she seemed ready to sink to the floor with fright. But she mastered the fear with a strong effort and resolved to enquire into the affair. Ben had left the keys of the various apartments of the bank in her care, and had bidden her inspect the institution before going to sleep. She reached the door that opened into the vault, and listened intently. Not a sound reached her ears, and she pushed the portal open. A strange odor greeted her as she stepped across the threshold with the lantern above her head; but it was not disagreeable, and she advanced. She first saw the ponderous door of the safe standing wide open; but a dark figure lay before it, and Kitty was not long in seeing that it was a man. He lay on his back as he had fallen when struck by one of the deadly bolts, and not a muscle stirred when the rays of light fell upon his face.

"The bolts killed him!" murmured the girl, drawn by intense curiosity to behold the burglar's features. "Father said they would slay—"

She did not finish her sentence, for a wild cry of recognition pealed from her throat, and she started from the dead man as from an apparition. The burglar was Arthur Sedgewick. For a while the horror-stricken girl gazed on the silent man from the door, then she crept forward again and with resolution held the lantern over his face. She had been deceived; before her, with a drill in his cold hands, lay the dashing man to whom she had promised to link her heart. He was quite dead, and Kitty was spared the sight of the ghastly wound in the left temple, for his face lay partially on its side and hid from view. The contents of the safe had not been touched. The hole in the wall of the vault told Kitty that Arthur Sedgewick had perforated it from the cellar of the adjoining building which he had filled with goods to hoodwink the people while he toiled with his tools!

All was plain to Kitty Ransom now. She saw the hand of fate in the work of death, and the reader may know that she stole from the vault a sadder yet a wiser girl. Sleep came not to her eyes that night. In the parlor she sat, yearning for the day; and with the first sound of Ben's keys in the locks, she sprang up to greet him.

"Oh, Ben," she cried, "do not tell paps that I staid in the bank last night;" and the watchman promised that he would keep the secret. But it was Kitty herself who could not keep it. She had told her father the story of her night in the bank, and the banker said to his wife:

"It is the hand of fate, mother. Kitty's idol has been broken!"

The death of Arthur Sedgewick caused much surprise and excitement in the city; but few people knew how bitter was Kitty Ransom's repentance. By-and-by Shirley Dare returned to her side, and Kitty's wedding day was the brightest of her life.

—It costs something for a Queen of England to run her subjects down in their yachts and drown them. The total sum payable in respect of the collision between the royal yacht Alberta and the yacht Mistletoe was nearly £4,000. It was paid out of last year's surplus revenue.

News and Notes.

The residence of Chester Pike, in Cornish, with the furniture, was destroyed by fire early Thursday morning. Loss $35,000; partially insured. Mr. Pike lost a gold watch worth $300, and $400 in cash. The barn and out-buildings were saved. The fire took from an imperfect chimney, and was once put out by the servants, but broke out again.

One of the most disgraceful scandals uncarthed at Washington relates to the Chicago pension agency. The position is held by a Miss Sweet, and it appears from her own testimony that to obtain the place, she agreed to pay a creditor of her predecessor, Daniel Blakely, $2100, and when she was fairly installed in office the creditor demanded $2900 more, the balance of his debt. Miss Sweet refused to be blackmailed in this manner, but she was obliged to raise $2,000 towards making up a deficiency of $3000 on the part of Blakely, and for which she had receipted in full on taking possession of the office.

The Great Falls Journal says tickets are selling from that city to Philadelphia and return for $14, by the Boston & Maine route.

Dr. William A. Hall, editor of Hall's Journal of Health, fell in the street in New York, in a fit, on the evening of the 10th, and died in a few minutes. He was 63 years of age.

As Piper and Pomeroy's motives in committing murder are ascribed to be the same, viz: an uncontrollable impulse to shed human blood, how would it do, suggests a correspondent, to put them both into one cell and allow the "uncontrollable" to come on and have a Kilkenny cat-fight, and thus rid the world of both.—Globe.

One of the most notorious roughs of New York, William Varley, better known as "Reddy the Blacksmith," did a good thing on Wednesday. He died. The only other commendable action he ever performed, so far as is recorded, was his killing another scoundrel as vile as himself some years ago, whereat the Tribune remarked that Reddy had won the thanks of the community for ridding it of a pest, but that the other ruffian would go to his grave with the execrations of all decent people for failing to kill Reddy also.

Political.

Mr. Blaine scores nine more delegates, the West Virginia republicans having chosen them and passed a resolution of preference for J. G. B. One delegate favors Bristow's nomination.

The Coos Republican, heretofore for Blaine, comes out for Bristow.

The republicans of Rye have chosen Messrs. Emmons B. Philbrick and John D. Marston delegates to the State convention. An expression of preference for President and Vice President resulted in all but two declaring for Blaine and Bristow, the two being for Bristow and Blaine.

"Secretary of War Taft has directed the portraits of Davis and Floyd to be hung with the other Secretaries of War in the United States Government building at Philadelphia. What will the Concord Monitor say to that?" The foregoing is a Boston Globe conundrum. What answer, if any, the Monitor will give we cannot say, but we should see no impropriety in the act of hanging Davis and Floyd in person, not to mention their portraits all.

Judge Davis is spoilt for a Presidential candidate. A greenback convention in Wisconsin has "endorsed" him.

Two-thirds of the delegates to the Cincinnati convention from Michigan are said to be for Blaine, and one-third for Bristow.

All Alike.

There is a good deal of human nature in Johnny Bull as well as in Brother Jonathan; and under similar circumstances the guileless Britons and the wicked Americans seem very much alike—none of them any better than they should be. The Southern States have suffered ever since the war, and will no doubt suffer for very many years to come, from the effects of the caste pride and race hatred handed down from the days of slavery; but the British West Indies are no better off, if we may judge from the following article on the recent trouble in Barbados, which we take from the St. John (N. B.) Globe:

It is very difficult to get at the truth respecting the state of feeling in Barbados. We remember very well what it was in Jamaica during the time of the Gordon trouble. The white people, that is the aristocratic landholders, officials and placemen, are very much opposed to the enlightenment of the negro. They opposed his emancipation years ago; they complain that he is idle, lazy and shiftless. If he shows a disposition to improve himself he is regarded as an upstart, and is repressed, lest he thrust himself into the dignified presence of the white man. But the spirit of the British constitution permeates blacks as well as whites, and there are Englishmen in numbers with broad views. In theory at least all Her Majesty's subjects are alike to her. She has a tender care and regard for them all, and occasionally somebody will be found crochetty enough to attempt to put the theory into practise. Mr. Pope Hennessy, the Governor of Barbados, is such a man. It appears that he has made himself obnoxious to the handful of whites in the Island, by treating the blacks as though they were white men. It is gravely telegraphed to the New York Herald from Jamaica, that he is "doing mischief in Barbados, which will take many, many years to eradicate. He recently told a black man who had risen a little above his class that when he came to Barbados he expected to find several black men in the Legislature and in the public service, and he was very much surprised to find that this was not so." It is added that the effect of such a speech has been a vast amount of discontent among estate laborers, and great indignation against Mr. Hennessy. He is "cut" by every respectable inhabitant, and it would be no matter of surprise to anybody if they were to hear one morning that he had been shot. He feels his own insecurity, and therefore rarely moves out of the walls of the Government House, except in a close carriage, with an escort of four mounted policemen. Another account says that the "Governor had some of the lowest and commonest people at his table, desiring to stir them up by advocating a forty shilling house enfranchisement!" Mr. Hennessy may be somewhat injudicious; but certainly it is quite time that somebody recognized the fact that the people of the West Indies have rights, even though the color of their faces is black. The greatest trouble is that they have been so long neglected, and are still so neglected, that the very effort to give them a small share of their rights may produce riotousness.

Treatment of Stammering.

A newspaper correspondent writes: Go into a room where you will be quiet and alone, get some book that will interest but not excite you, and sit down and read two hours aloud, to yourself, keeping your teeth together. Do the same thing every two or three days, or once a week if very tiresome, always taking care to read slowly and distinctly, moving the lips but not the teeth. Then, when conversing with others, try to speak as slowly and distinctly as possible, and make up your mind that you will not stammer. Well, I tried this remedy, not having much faith in it, I must confess, but willing to do almost anything to cure myself of such an annoying difficulty. I read for two hours aloud, with my teeth together. The first result was to make my tongue and jaws ache, that is, while I was reading, and the next to make me feel as if something had loosened my talking apparatus, for I could speak with less difficulty immediately. The change was so great that every one who knew me remarked it. I repeated the remedy every five or six days for a month, and then at longer intervals, until cured.

—The Cornwall, Ont., Gazette, to use its own phrase, has "gone up." Its farewell address contains the following peculiar confession: "The public and private course of this paper has been a grievous burden to the community. We humbly dare to entertain a hope that the past career of this journal may serve to point a moral and be a beacon light to future kiteflyers and an evidence that the way of the transgressor is hard. We feel too much overcome with crushing humiliation of historical disgrace to utter aught more than a paroxysmal farewell." It also apologizes to Henry Sandfield Macdonald for bringing him into ridicule, and to Mr. Snosinger, M. P. P., "whose cause," it says, "we have deserted and betrayed."

The several pay rolls for April were ordered to be paid.

The following joint resolution was adopted.

Resolved by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth, That a committee of two Aldermen and two members of the Common Council be appointed to devise and report plans and estimates for the improvement of the sanitary condition of the South Mill Pond; that they have authority to direct such experiments for this purpose as they may think expedient; and that they be instructed to report as soon as may be by bill or otherwise.—[Sent down.]

The Board appointed Ald. Hatch and Betton on its part.

The Mayor was appointed to represent the city at the meeting of the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad, and to vote on its stock.

The Common Council gave notice that they had adopted the joint resolution relating to the South Mill Pond, and joined on their part, Messrs. Norton of Ward Three, Leach and Knight; they also gave notice that they had adopted the report of the committee of conference, and passed the Appropriation Bill for the year 1876, in which they asked the concurrence of the Board.

Adjourned for two weeks.

U. S. Circuit Court.

The first case was Wilburr vs. Abbott, heard on a motion to amend the writ. The defendant is the coach-builder of Concord, who is sued by a citizen of New Orleans upon a judgment founded on a contract to be executed in Louisiana. Abbott denies that any service of original process was ever made upon him.

Dearborn, assignee of Eastman appellee, vs. Hathaway & Swift and D. L. Stevens, appellants, was an appeal from the decision of the District Court. The counsel for the appellee, H. S. Clark, Esq., moved to dismiss the appeal on the ground that this court had no jurisdiction unless the damages claimed amounted to $500, and cited authorities in support of his position. The opposing counsel contended that this was a case where this court had jurisdiction.

Charles R. and Susan F. Morrison vs. the American Popular Life Ins. Co. of New York. Bill in equity to compel the company to issue a paid-up policy to plaintiffs. Defendants ordered to issue policy as prayed for.

Sullivan Machine Co. vs. Delaware & Hudson Canal Co. Action to recover value of a diamond drill destroyed in transportation by defendants. The case at last term was by agreement of parties referred to Hon. J. E. Sargent, and his report, which was against the defts., they asked to have set aside for erroneous findings.

The jurors reported Tuesday forenoon.

On the opening of the court, Wednesday morning, on motion of Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett, the following named gentlemen were admitted to practice in this court as attorneys and counsellors: Isaac N. Blodgett of Franklin; John B. Mills and Wm. R. Patten, both of Manchester.

On Friday, Hayes Lougee, Esq., of Moultonborough, was admitted to practice as an attorney and counsellor in the U. S. Courts.

Cyrus Dunn of Manchester, indicted for rendering a false inventory in bankruptcy and concealing property from his assignee, plead not guilty, and the case was continued until the October term by agreement.

In case United States vs. Managan, a motion for continuance was granted.

United States vs. Charles Croham, the recognizance of the defendant was forfeited.

Friday afternoon, in United States vs. Dennis O'Conner, bail was called and forfeited, forfeiture to be stricken off if respondent comes in at next term. Court then adjourned sine die.

A Court Sketch.

In the Manchester repeater case tried at the U. S. Court House on Wednesday, there appeared about as shabby a set of witnesses as were ever called to swear to a required fact. Ex-Speaker Hatch, who defended Lyons, felt that before this Court his array of swearing men was not quite up to the standard that gives tone and weight to testimony, and prefaced their introduction by dwelling on the "respectability" of his defence. The bell-weather that was introduced to give character to the defendant's side, was Albert Jackson, who with Dan Conner, the liquor and ale merchant, divides the responsibility of selecting the officers and managing the delegates of the democracy in Manchester.

Mr. Jackson was called. He looked venerable and plausible, but a trifle sly, as he mounted the witness box. The counsel suggested to Mr. Jackson that he had recently held the office of City Clerk of Manchester, and made a profound obeisance either in respect to the memory of the departed office, or the late incumbent. Mr. Jackson acknowledged the impeachment and returned the salutation. "You were moderator, sir, of the ward at the time referred to," said the lawyer, bowing in a dignified manner, apparently to give tone and character to the office. Jackson returned the salutation, showing the shiny part of his head to the counsel, the better to conceal a chuckle that danced about his countenance at the idea that there could be an approach to respectability in being moderator of Ward Five,—and so it went on. When it came out unwillingly from Jackson that he had been a Representative to the General Court, the highest office in the land known to the achievement of the late Speaker, Jackson fairly blushed with overflowing modesty; and after explaining to the Court that of the vast number of names on the list, a man of his position could know but few of the men personally, but when a vote was offered by John Smith, if that name was on the checklist, he received the vote, even if the man's name might have been (to him unknown) Tom Jones, the leading witness stepped down.

Judge Shepley in his charge rebuked the loose and illegal manner in which the moderator swore he discharged his duties, and we trust the lesson in this respect was not lost upon the manipulators of the voting material of the banner democratic ward that were present to save their man from punishment for the offence incurred in carrying out their wicked programme at the last Congressional election, by which the Second District is now represented in Congress by a gentleman who occupies the seat rightfully belonging to Mr. Pike.

Of Interest to Taxpayers.

A hearing is to be had this afternoon (13th inst.) at 4 o'clock, on a petition headed by Frank Jones, for a road to be laid out "commencing at the northeast corner of land of Frank Jones" and running through a salubrious and picturesque swamp, a mile or two, to the centre of population on the Sherburne road—there being one house near the proposed termination, and no other within a mile—at the rooms of the Mayor and Aldermen perhaps the header of this petition can tell who is to be benefitted by the outlay of the $5000 or so, this road would cost; if the tax-payers have had enough of roads of Frank Jones' engineering they had better look to this in season.

Jottings.

Elder J. Couch, of Boston, editor of the World's Crisis, will preach to-morrow in the Advent chapel on Hanover street. The public are cordially invited.

Samuel C. Knight, inspector in the Boston Custom House, will address the Reform Club at the Temple Sunday evening. Mr. Knight is a reformed man and his portrayal of his fall through the social customs of drinking is of thrilling interest, and has led many a wanderer back back to the path of subriety. The doors will open at 6:30, and the usual fee of five cents will be collected at the door.

Rev. Mr. Aldrich, of Rye, and Rev. James Noyes, of the M. E. Church in this city, will speak at the Bow Mission meeting Sunday evening; subject, "Whosoever will." Dr. Goodall will conduct the musical exercises, and "Bright Jewels" will be given. All are invited.

Rev. Charles A. Holbrook, rector of St. John's church, will give an address at the decoration exercises in Harmony Grove cemetery on Memorial afternoon.

Capt. Fernald's boat Alice, which made its first trip from Exeter to Portsmouth, recently, returned to Exeter with a cargo of lime, cement, laths and plaster for E. O. Lovering, and 105 hogsheads of salt for the fishermen on the Swamscott. The vessel weathered all the heavy seas in fine style, and doubled the cape with safety. Sea sickness was scarcely heard of among the crew.

The annual appropriation bill as it passed the City Councils, contains a clause appropriating $100 to aid in defraying the expenses of the observance of Memorial Day.

Schooner Gem, brick laden, before reported ashore at Cape Porpoise, Me., and sold as she lay to Capt. Oakes of that place for $325, was filled by him with oil barrels in an endeavor to float her, but she went to pieces and became a total loss, together with the empty barrels. Her sails, rigging and spars were all that was recovered.

The Boston Times says of Sheridan & Mack's company, which will appear at the Temple this evening: The vocal music, which was an important part of the entertainment, was far above the average, and was furnished principally by Miss Rosa Leigh, Miss Alecia Jourdan, Little Carrie Beshell, and Miss Blanche Corelli. The latter has a remarkably fine voice, well modulated and carefully cultivated, of great power and range, while her style is unrestrained and her method almost perfect. Miss Leigh's ballads were almost equally good. Miss Jourdan, though not a very fine singer, has a pleasing voice, and is a most wonderful protean artist, the rapidity of her changes being almost marvelous. Sheridan and Mack appeared in several of their well-known duet pieces.

Rev. Stephen S. Heberd, pastor of the Universalist church, has resigned his charge, to take effect June 1st.

Superintendent Furber, of the Boston & Maine Railroad, denies that there has been any racing of trains from Portland to Boston on that road, with trains over the Eastern Railroad.

The Direct Cable company is having a fine time of it, for since the breaking of the French and Anglo cables, the Direct Company have been overrun with business. They are averaging upwards of 900 messages every 24 hours; $7,000 to $10,000 a day.

It is stated that the cost of printing the testimony taken by the navy yard committee will exceed $50,000; 186 pages are printed about this yard here, but it is of little value.

The company of artillery commanded by Capt. Williams have secured Mechanics' Hall for an armory.

Mr. Marcellus Eldredge has offered to give $100 towards placing a bust of the late Hon. John Elwyn in Elwyn Park.

The Offspring of Dyspepsia.

No class of invalids are more to be commiserated than the dyspeptic, since the malady from which they suffer is the parent of more numerous offspring of tormenting symptoms than any other disease. On the other hand, they are to be congratulated that there is a potent, safe and agreeable botanic remedy for all the torture that they undergo. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters powerfully invigorates the cellular tissue of the stomach, thus promoting an adequate secretion and flow of the digestive juices, vitalizes the shrunken and debilitated lining of the stomach, directs the bile into its true channel, and stimulates the inactive bowels and dormant liver. These radical effects are accompanied with the restoration of appetite, flesh and sound repose, and the removal of flatulence, heart-burn, nausea, palpitations of the heart, vertigo, high colored and scalding urine, water brash, headache, and many other harrassing symptoms of dyspepsia.

The Bad Effects of Beer Drinking.

The worst results from accidents in the London Hospitals are said to be to draymen. Though they are apparently models of health and strength yet if one of them receives a serious injury it is nearly always necessary to amputate in order to give him the most distant chance of life. The drayman have the unlimited privilege of the brewery cellar. Sir Ashley Cooper was once called to a drayman, who was a powerful, fresh-colored, healthy-looking man, and had suffered an injury in his finger from a small splinter of a stave. The wound, though trifling, suppurated. He opened the small abscess with his lancet. He found, on retiring, he had left his lancet. Returning for it he found the man in a dying condition. The man died in a short time. Dr. Gordon says, "The moment beer-drinkers are attacked with acute diseases they are not able to bear depletion, and die." Dr. Edwards says of beer-drinkers, "Their diseases are always of a very dangerous character, and in case of accident they can never undergo even the most trifling operation with the security of the temperate. They most invariably die under it." Dr. Buchan says, "Malt liquors render the blood sizy and unfit for circulation; hence proceed obstructions and inflammation of the lungs. There are few great beer-drinkers who are not phthisical, brought on by the glutinous and indigestible nature of ale and porter. * * * These liquors inflame the blood and tear the tender vessels of the lungs to pieces." Dr. Mason says, "Intoxicating drinks, whether taken in the form of fermented or distilled liquors, are very frequent predisposing cause of disease." The Hospitals of New York show an equally unfavorable record of the intemperate, and private practitioners everywhere have the same experience. —Sanitarian.

—A preacher at Glasgow, Mo., hesitated to tell a dying man that he would go right to heaven till the dying man's brother stabbed him twice in the head and gave him more liberal ideas of the mercy of heaven.

"A Drop of Joy in Every Word."
Flemington, Hunterdon Co., N. J., June 27, 1874.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—It is with a happy heart that I pen these lines to acknowledge that you and your Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets are blessings to the World. These medicines cannot be too highly praised, for they have almost brought me out of the grave. Three months ago I was broken out with large ulcers and sores on my body, limbs and face. I procured your Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets, and have taken six bottles, and today I am in good health, all those ugly ulcers having healed and left my skin in a natural, healthy condition. I thought at one time I could not be cured. Although I can but poorly express my gratitude to you, yet there is a drop of joy in every word I write. God's blessing rest on you and your wonderful medicines is the humble prayer of Yours truly,

JAMES O. BELLIS.

When a medicine will promptly cure such terrible eating ulcers and free the blood of the virulent poison causing them, who can any longer doubt its wonderful virtues? Dr. Pierce, however, does not wish to place his Golden Medical Discovery in the catalogue of quack patent nostrums by recommending it to cure every disease, nor does he so recommend it; but what he does claim is this, that there is but one form of blood disease that it will not cure, and that disease is cancer. He does not recommend his Discovery for that disease, yet he knows it to be the most searching blood cleanser yet discovered, and that it will free the blood and system of all other known blood poisons, be they animal, vegetable or mineral. The Golden discovery is warranted by him to cure the worst forms of Skin Diseases, as all forms of Blotches, Pimples and Eruptions, also all Glandular Swellings, and the worst form of Scrofulous and Ulcerated Sores of Neck, Legs or other parts, and all Scrofulous Diseases of the Bones, as White Swellings, Fever Sores, Hip Joint and Spinal Diseases, all of which belong to Scrofulous diseases.

THE NEW AMERICAN STORY

ACHSAH:

A New England Life Study.

BY REV. PETER PENOT. 12 mo, cloth.....$1.50.

The manly, whole souled, and devoted young clergyman is no fancy sketch; Deacon Sterne, the sanctimonious hypocrite; the plain-talking old maid sister; the sneaking, spying aunt, are life-like and real, while the heroine, ACHSAH, is a lovely character, with whom the reader is in deep sympathy. These, with the various other characters of the story, are so combined as to produce a book full of interest from beginning to end.

DR. QUAIN'S

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden, Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I took medicine, and spent a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and concluded to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I commenced by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I have took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package for you to try among your friends, at himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.
SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them; I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be benefited by them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 44 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Trouble Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—A story is told of a couple of queer old Spanish planters living on the banks of the St. Johns river, in Florida, between whom there existed a deadly feud. After the death of one, his will was found to contain directions to bury him in close proximity to his enemy's fence, that he might be "able to haunt him and show him even in death he is unforgiven." While the burial was taking place, the unforgiven neighbor was hopping about on the other side of the fence, a cow-bell tied to each knee, shooting a gun and blowing a horn as a charm to lull the evil spirit. After the friends of the departed had retired, the old man built a large fire on the grave, and then went to his home, perfectly satisfied that his former enemy's evil spirit is laid, and will not annoy him.

—A New York paper gives the following account of the courtship of the late Barney Williams: In 1850 Barney was still in the company, and Joe Jefferson was the low comedian. Jefferson's first wife, Maggie Lockyer, whom he first knew as a young ballet girl of the Bowery Theatre, was dead, and he began to admire the pretty Mrs. Mestayer. Barney was also impressed by her, but both were too shy to offer themselves, and neither knew the other's feelings. One evening Joe asked Barney as they were dressing for the stage, to make Mrs. Mestayer an offer on his behalf. Barney was staggered, but he heroically resolved to abide by the lady's decision. He fulfilled his task between the first and second act of the first piece, saying, 'Mr. Jefferson has commissioned me to offer his heart and hand.' 'I am sorry,' said she, as her face clouded with mingled regret at the necessity of rendering Jefferson unhappy, and at the seeming indifference of Barney; 'I respect and admire Mr. Jefferson, but I can never become his wife.' 'Then will you have me?' eagerly inquired Barney. 'I will,' said she, brightening up as Barney seized her hand. A clergyman was sent for and the couple were married between the second and third acts."

HAVING NOTICED

The statements in the city papers, that certain persons have been injured by eating pressed corned beef put up in Chicago, and feeling that if not explained those facts will result in injury where it does not belong, and as after a thorough investigation we find that the beef complained of is in every instance beef packed in rolls and enclosed in tin foil by parties unknown to us and not at all similar to canned beef; therefore, the undersigned, in simple justice to the public and to the reliable firm that pack the canned article, wish to state that we have for a long time sold Pressed CANNED Corned Beef and Beef Tongues packed in 2, 4, 6 and 14 lb cans, by Messrs. Libby, McNeil & Libby of Chicago, and we cheerfully recommend this brand of goods as a safe, nutritious and economical article of food.

The Senatorship.

The Manchester Saturday Night Dispatch says: Like every public servant of to-day, E. H. Rollins has been subjected to severe criticism from those who imagine that only by maligning prominent republicans can the ascendancy of democracy be secured, but thus far none of the mud thrown at him has stuck to his skirts. His record for the past fifteen years will bear the closest scrutiny of friend or foe. Two years in the State legislature, one of which he served most acceptably as speaker, and six years in Congress, have familiarized him with the duties required of the position of U. S. Senator, which fact, when we consider the perilous times which are upon us, should influence in no small degree the choice of the legislature. As a straightforward, consistent republican, Mr. Rollins has always been found arrayed on the side of the Union and against its enemies, and during the war and since he has stood side by side with Hon. Fredrick Smyth as a friend and advocate of the soldiers, rendering them such little kindnesses as lay in his power, and according them a generous sympathy in marked contrast with the coldness of most of those who fill high places. For these reasons, and because we think he will honor the office, and do good service for the State in the halls of Congress, do we think his claims should be carefully considered by the legislature before making its choice.

News and Notes.

The National Tube Works Company have just completed at their Works at McKeesport, Pa., a sample pipe for exhibition at the Centennial. It is fourteen feet in length and of fourteen inches outside diameter and ten inches inside, the iron of which it is made being two inches in thickness. This is said to be the heaviest piece of lap-welded pipe ever made in this or any other country, and it is stated that such heavy work has never been attempted by any other establishment.

The Connecticut river has been inundating the intervales near Lancaster and elsewhere, the water being higher than at any time since the great freshet of 1850. For twenty miles the railway tracks of the Boston, Concord & Montreal and Grand Trunk railroads were under water, Friday. In Lancaster the water reached the bank on Main street, and southern trains were obliged to stop at Whitefield. The fields, looking from Lancaster westerly, appeared like lakes. At Dalton, farm houses were surrounded, barns flooded and cellars filled. At Northumberland Falls a torrent ten feet deep swept through the streets. The river farms are badly damaged. Freshets are reported on the Passumpsic and Union rivers in Vermont, the Androscoggin and Kennebec in Maine, the Ottawa and St. Lawrence rivers.

A delegation from Concord is in Washington strenuously opposing the removal of Postmaster Willard.

"It is now possible," says the New York Mail, "to buy for $2.25 a night dress of French percale of light quality made up by hand, with clusters of tiny tucks in the yoke, and neatly stitched collar and cuffs." Let the poor rejoice.

Hamilton Fish is the only cabinet officer who commenced with General Grant in 1869, and he has continued to fill the office of Secretary of State with distinguished ability. Few attacks upon his administration of the delicate diplomatic duties which he has performed have been made, and he will on his retirement leave a most honorable record.

Miss Dickinson lost one of her most valuable diamonds from its setting during her performance at the Globe Theatre in Boston, but it was found afterward. The four dresses she wore on the occasion were made in New York, and cost $9,000, besides the ornaments. The sale of seats amounted to $2,048.

Mr. Alfred Johnsen announces in the Cape Ann Advertiser his intention of crossing the Atlantic in a dory. Mr. Johnsen is Dane, bred to seafaring pursuits, and has been engaged in fishing from Gloucester for the past five years. He has had a stanch dory constructed for his voyage, and will take aboard the necessary supplies and aids to navigation, and sail from Gloucester about the last of May. He is confident of a successful issue of his daring venture, but of what benefit to himself or the world such a foolhardy experiment is to be we cannot conceive, even if it is successful.

A resolution has been presented to the Nashua Mayor and Aldermen for a reduction of the salaries of the city officials, but it meets with little favor with the great body of citizens.

Mrs. Labell of Great Falls died recently, leaving a husband and 11 children, the oldest being fifteen years, and the youngest one week old.

Jimmy Blanchard, whose chief end in life seems to be to make items for the papers, is now stopping for a few weeks at the Reform School to see what effect it will have on him.

The annual May training of the Peterboro' militia took place last week. The Peterboro' Cavalry, Captain Wilson, the Monadnock Rangers, Captain Diamond, and Section "C," New Hampshire Battery, Lieutenant Furbush, were drilled and the street parade was fair, notwithstanding the drizzling rain.

It is interesting to note the beautiful consistency which characterizes the Centennial management with reference to the Sunday question. Pious brethren throughout the land have passed resolutions of joy and thankfulness that the holy Sabbath is to be respected in the conduct of America's great show, and the Exposition grounds are closed to a curious world in accordance with the highly moral regulation. But within the buildings the hum of busy preparation is heard on the Lord's Day, and thousands of workmen are engaged in "getting things to rights" against the opening day.—Chic. Trib.

The Biddeford Light Infantry are arranging to take part in the celebration in Lewiston on the coming 4th of July.

It is said that the old Greeley homestead in Amherst, purchased from a Mr. Stewart by the elder Greeley, was, under Stewart's ownership, the headquarters of a gang of counterfeiters. The old house is now remodeled, but it once contained a sub-cellar which was the workshop of the counterfeiters.

Political.

It is said the Texan delegation in Congress find their friend Fitzhugh, ex-rebel, ex-sergeant-at-arms of the Confederate Senate, present doorkeeper of the U. S. House of Representatives and "a biger man than old Grant," too heavy a load to carry, so they mean to drop him. He will have to resign. The "reformers" could stand his war record,—that was all right,—and his putting his relatives into sinecure positions, and his vulgar presumption; but the fearful and wonderful grammar of the letter he wrote to a man to whom he promised an office and of whom he borrowed money on the strength of that promise, and who published the letter after he found he could get neither money nor office, is too much, too much! Poor Fitzhugh must go. His faithful service of the democratic party during the rebellion, and since, is not enough to counterbalance his neglecting his spellin' lesson so when he went to school.

The New York Evening Post says of the Connecticut democratic nomination: "It was an act of the most positive and defiant political shame." It adds: "The independent voters who have strained their eyes toward the two leading parties for the signs of reform will not be slow to interpret the spirit which supercedes a Schurz by a Cockrell and a Ferry by a Barnum."

A Charlette, N. C., despatch states that the memorial address at Elmwood Cemetery, by S. Taylor Martin, D. D., contained the following enunciations: "The South is to-day ruled over by the miserable thrall of Yankeedom, but they cannot muzzle our chivalry and patriotic devotion to the lost cause. We fought for our rights, but in God's disposition we are now vanquished but not cowed. Slavery was a divine institution, and we must have that institution or the South will ever be bankrupt. They speak of our cause as the 'lost cause.' If so, shall it be lost forever? No! a new question has sprung up, and at a not far distant day there will be the 'Stars and Bars' floating proudly over our Sunny South." The Rev. Doctor is evidently a candidate for Chaplain of the United States House of Representatives.

The county conventions in Missouri seem to be sending delegates to the State Convention about equally divided between Blaine and Bristow.

The democrats propose a reduction of clerks in the departments at Washington, and it has been determined to make the discharges from democratic clerks, there being more than enough employed there to fill the bill.

The most extravagant claim we have seen for Mr. Blaine is 333 votes on the first ballot.

The Concord People, the leading democratic paper of this State, favors the nomination of Tilden for President.

The Springfield Republican thinks O. C. Moore, Esq., one of the ablest men in New Hampshire.

A noticeable fact in the progress of the Presidential canvass is the increasing number of States where Congressman Wheeler is developing strength.

Parson Brownlow's first choice is Morton; second choice, Hayes.

A Philadelphia correspondent of the Bangor Whig enters into a careful calculation to show that Mr. Blaine in the first ballot at Cincinnati will lack only 46 votes of the number necessary to a choice. Then he intimates that Pennsylvania will change her vote from Hartranft to Blaine, and make it all right.

The Lowell Courier, though favoring Bristow, says: "We have yet to learn why Mr. Blaine cannot claim to be a 'reformer,' or why he would not give us as vigorous an administration in the way of retrenchment and honesty as Bristow."

—Tyndall's first professional act after his marriage was to write an article recommending the adoption of glass rockers for cradles. He attributes the prevalence of gout among infants to loss of electricity.

—Senators have their little idiosyncrasies like other mortals. A Washington correspondent says that Senator Thurman uses a red bandanna handkerchief, and blows the loudest nose in America. On one occasion Senator Jones of Nevada, who early in life had been a brakeman on a railroad, dropped to sleep at his desk. Senator Thurman, whose seat is near the bonanza statesman, solemnly waved his red bandanna and gave his nose a terrible snort. The sleeping Senator sprang to his feet, and seizing his desk commenced twisting it with all his might. He afterward explained that he thought Thurman's blow was an engine whistling down brakes, and the red handkerchief a signal of distress; hence his wrenching of the desk.

The Offspring of Dyspepsia.

No class of invalids are more to be commiserated than the dyspeptic, since the malady from which they suffer is the parent of more numerous offspring of tormenting symptoms than any other disease. On the other hand, they are to be congratulated that there is a potent, safe and agreeable botanic remedy for all the torture that they undergo. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters powerfully invigorates the cellular tissue of the stomach, thus promoting an adequate secretion and flow of the digestive juices, vitalizes the shrunken and debilitated lining of the stomach, directs the bile into its true channel, and stimulates the inactive bowels and dormant liver. These radical effects are accompanied with the restoration of appetite, flesh and sound repose, and the removal of flatulence, heart-burn, nausea, palpitations of the heart, vertigo, high colored and scalding urine, water brash, headache, and many other harrassing symptoms of dyspepsia.

THE CITY'S FINANCIAL SITUATION.

Nearly Half a Milion in Debt!

Retrenchment and Economy Demanded.

To the Tax-payers of Portsmouth: In looking over the lately published "Receipts and Expenditures" of the city for the last year, I express myself moderately when I say that I have been surprised at some of the contents of that pamphlet.

When the Mayor of the city makes an official statement of the public affairs the citizens have the right to expect that his positions will be truthful and his figures correct. This the high character of the office no less than the oath which binds to the honest discharge of its duties ought to secure to you, and this was especially to have been anticipated from the gentleman who now holds the position. From one enjoying the reputation of being an honest, square business man, an honest square, presentation of the city's affairs certainly should be looked for in any communication it may be his duty to make to the public. But such, I am forced to say, was not the character of the last inaugural address of the Mayor in its statement of the financial condition of the city. This will sufficiently appear from the subjoined extract from that document, to which I invite your attention:

"The debt of the city is now $174,195.15, $5000 having been paid last year and $5000 more will fall due on the first day of October. For the payment of this instalment, provision has been made. Like sums of $5000 will become due annually until 1882. The credit of the city is good, and the debt, which is small compared with the amount of our taxable property, will probably be extinguished within a reasonable time.

The city is also liable to the amount of $300,000 upon bonds loaned to aid in the construction of the Portsmouth & Dover railroad. These bonds are secured by the guaranty of the Eastern railroad in New Hampshire, with the additional guaranty of the Eastern railroad company, as well as by the value of the Portsmouth & Dover railroad. The interest is promptly paid semi-annually by the Eastern railroad."

Here first, we have the statement that "the debt of the city is now $174,195.15," thus implying, in effect declaring it to be this sum and no more, when, assuming the Mayor's figures here to be correct, the debt in reality is, or was at the date of the address, $474,195.15, or $300,000 more than he represents it to have been! We then, to get over this wide discrepancy, have the lawyerlike admission that "the city is also liable to the amount of $300,000 upon bonds loaned to aid in the construction of the Portsmouth & Dover railroad." It is certainly surprising if the Mayor himself wrote the address and looked up the data for its preparation, that he should have made a declaration so broadly at variance with the truth as that the bonds referred to were loaned. Every intelligent man, I might almost say child, in the city knows it is not so. The merest glance at the city books would or should have shown him he was giving utterance to a glaring error. These bonds were in no way nor sense loaned. They were made and paid out absolutely by a very weak or a very unscrupulous set of city officials for 3000 shares of stock of the Portsmouth & Dover railroad, were disposed of in the market by the receivers at a large sacrifice to obtain the money to build the road with, and are held by the purchasers to be collected in full of the city when they shall become due. The city is "liable" indeed, but it made no loan in the case. The transaction was one of borrowing instead of loaning on the part of the city. It bought the stock outright and borrowed the money, or what is the same thing, issued these bonds to pay for it, and must in turn pay the bonds when they mature, if the legality of the transaction admits of no question. Against this there is no guaranty—from this there can be no escape.

Next is the remarkable statement—remarkable in the light of the truth again—that "these bonds are secured by the guaranty of the Eastern railroad in New Hampshire, with the additional guaranty of the Eastern railroad company, as well as by the value of the Portsmouth & Dover railroad." It would hardly be worth while to spend many words at this time in discussing the value of the guaranty of the Eastern railroad, if it had really been given. But it is not true that either the Eastern railroad company or the Eastern railroad in New Hampshire has guaranteed these bonds. They have done nothing of the kind; but even if they had, and they were entirely responsible, their guarantys would not relieve the city in any way or degree from its obligation to pay the bonds. "These bonds are secured," says the address, as though they had really been loaned, as alleged, and these railroad companies had become bounden to the city for their safety and liquidation. This is entirely contrary to the truth. I repeat, the bonds were not loaned at all, but issued outright, and stand as so much indebtedness for which the city is solely and alone accountable, without guaranty of any kind or prospect of compensation except such as the stock purchased with them may afford. The value of this I will not attempt to compute, as it would be a difficult if not impossible undertaking to make figures express it.

It is not denied, of course, nor forgetten, that the Eastern railroad has leased the Portsmouth & Dover road for a long term of years, agreeing to pay six per cent. per annum on its cost as rent for its use; and it is, I presume, also true that the interest on the bonds of the city has been paid from this source up to January last. But is it positively certain that it will thus be paid for any considerable time in the future—even in July next? The belief, well founded, I think, very largely prevails, as you know, that the city has not only most certainly the face of the bonds to meet at maturity, but that the period is not very far in the distance at best when you will be called upon to tax yourselves to pay the interest also. This is the entertainment that is preparing for you, and of which you will almost surely be required to partake with no great delay. Indeed you have already been admonished of what is to come by the positive refusal of the lessee to pay the rent due on the first of January last—afterward reconsidered, through what influence you well know. You have been respited till July, perhaps for another year,—for the period of the next Congressional election must be bridged over if possible or the chief agent of the unwarrantable burden which has been laid upon the city will be hurt, sadly and badly. But it is only a reprieve. The doom still hangs over you and must in the end be met. Sooner or later you will have to pay the interest, as you assuredly must meet the principal of the bonds. I have said that the Eastern road has taken this lease, for although the lease was made to the Eastern in New Hampshire, the Eastern accepting and adopting it, this was done to obviate legal difficulty in the way of effecting the lease and not to afford additional protection to the lessor, as it does not. The pretense lately made that it does is an afterthought and cunning device, put forth in the present unpleasant aspect of affairs to give an impression of safety where no safety exists. But while it is a matter of no importance whatever, whether these bonds are guaranteed as the Mayor has represented or not, it is important that the chief magistrate of the city in assuming to enlighten the citizens upon the public affairs, and especially their financial obligations, should know and state the truth.

Thus, fellow citizens, it is seen, by the Mayor's own figures, that the debt of the city, which it really owes and is bound unaided to pay, instead of being only $174,195.15, as the Mayor has represented, is (or was on the 28th of September last, and varies but a trifle from it now) actually and unmistakably $474,195.15 or the modest sum of $300,000 more than he stated it to be! This is the plain and absolute truth in the case. The published city accounts establish and confirm it beyond the possibility of question, the figures of the City Clerk in one place squarely and flatly contradicting the statements of the Mayor in another part of the same phamphlet both as to the amount of the debt and the bonds being loaned and guaranteed. All that can be said any way in modification of this showing is, that the last named portion of the debt (the $300,000 in railroad bonds) has been non-interest bearing as against the city up to this time. How long it will continue so, how long this interest may be paid as heretofore, is, as we have seen, entirely problematical; but whether for a longer or shorter period, the obligation remains all the same upon the city to pay every dollar of the principal, as well as to meet the interest if it fails.

Now why, the question presents itself, this misrepresentation and prevarication in the Mayor's address upon a matter as important as the financial situation of the city? For what purpose—for of course it had design—was the municipal debt represented in a document which ought to be entirely truthful and reliable to be only $174,000, when it is, or was, really and clearly $300,000 more than this, or $474,000? What was the motive for this weak and dishonest attempt to make it appear that somebody or something is reponsible for the greater amount of this debt, when nobody except the city is accountable for a shilling of it? I acquit the Mayor of primary responsibility in the case. I will do him the justice to say that I believe him to be incapable of deliberate intention to deceive the public—incapable of originating so remarkable a statement. He evidently, I think, was himself deceived by some one in whom he confided to assist him in the preparation of his address, and who beguiled him, for a purpose, into utterances which he did not comprehend and would not of his own accord have dreamed. As to who inspired this portion of the address there is not much room for doubt. The earmarks of its authorship are prominent and unmistakable. The motive was two fold—first, to convey assurance by official declaration and endorsal of the Mayor that everything was safe and satisfactory in connection with the Dover railroad investment, the city being "secured," and secondly and mainly, by thus belittling the public debt to have the way for its further increase both on account of that object and to accomplish other schemes of the author. The debt "is small compared with our taxable property" is the assuring and encouraging declaration; therefore, by plain implication, we can afford to issue another batch of bonds to pay arrears of the Dover road and to dig out mill-ponds, build boulevars and the like. This doesn't sound like the conception of a prudent man—of the Mayor; it is manifestly an emanation of another and different style of brain, and well befits a leading promoter in the city council of the Dover railroad scheme, who, with his aids outside, performed a full part in befooling a former city government, Mayor and all, into sinking $300,000 beyond the reach of plummet in that valueless concern. But if the debt is small at $174,000, as given, (though by no means the trifle pretended at that) is it so at nearly half a million, what it really is? And, with liabilities of such aggregate magnitude now upon us, which must be paid to the last dollar if legally created, and with the prospect of an early large increase of our annual assessment to meet falling interest staring us broadly in the face; with decreasing business and diminishing incomes from non-paying investments, failing railroads, depressed commerce and withered industries, and with the heavy weight of taxation, national, State, county and municipal, now bearing upon us, can we afford to add to our burdens at such a time and under such circumstances by engaging in any new and extravagant schemes of public expenditure?

This is what was contemplated, fellow-citizens. This beyond doubt affords the key to the surprising statements of the Mayor's address upon which I have commented. The Mayor, or rather the adroit schemer who spoke through him in the address first grossly understated the public debt by counting out three-fifths of the true amount as against somebody else and not the city to clear the way for its further enlargement, and then introduced the two mill-ponds (meaning the South pond) as objects, joined with the deficiences of his previous enterprises, upon which it could be increased to proportions worthy our wealth and dignity! In this at least he is correct. Without probable intention on the part of the Mayor, he was made to endorse and approve the past grand assault of this wiley worthy and his associates upon the city's resources, and to commend in advance his further designs in that direction. Joint outside manœuvres were cunningly inspired to second this his latest scheme to involve the city and give it the appearance of public urgency and popular endorsal. The project has from time to time been brought up in the city councils and agitated in the papers, but has thus far hung fire doubtless from its formidable character and the difficulty of deciding upon the manner of accomplishing it. In the meantime the bottom of that safe guarantor, the Eastern railroad, has dropped out, arousing attention to the formidable character of our present obligations and causing hesitancy, no doubt, in the minds of some members of the city government. But I fear the scheme has not been abandoned. It will not be, we may believe, if the genius who conceived it can control it. I am afraid it has been deferred or suffered to slumber only for plans to be determined for its consummation. These may be of moderate scope at first, the better to insure success, but the project once embarked in, if not another Dover railroad investment in magnitude at least a heavy outlay and correspondingly large increase of the city debt will be the inevitable final results. The annoyance complained of is not sufficiently serious to justify this. It is no greater now than it has been for at least a quarter of a century, and there has been no time when we were less able to incur extraordinary expenses than now. The talk about danger to the public health is simply bosh. The health of the city never has been and is not likely to be disturbed by a locality that twice in each round of twenty-four hours is washed by the flow of the ocean, and is all the time more or less covered with sea water. The locality undeniably affords fine natural advantages to beautify the city, which all would like to have improved if we could afford the necessary outlay. But a "mint" of money would be required for the work, and it would be neither prudent nor wise to undertake it now. If the vast sum, or a part of it, of which we have been deprived without a shadow of consideration, had been spent for improvements here, we should have had something to show for our money and the present and future generations of citizens would have derived some benefit from the investment. But our means have been squandred, and we are in no condition to engage in expensive improvements at this time, however desirable. Our present heavy indebtedness forbids it. The business situation and prospects of the city do not warrant it. No expense should now be incurred that we are not willing to have directly assessed upon us and put into our current tax-bills. Retrenchment and economy—reduced outlays everywhere, and not a dollar's increase of the public debt should be, and we had the right to suppose would be, the governing watchwords of this reform democratic city administration.

Fellow-citizens, you have already had too much experience with the men at the bottom of this latest project to swell the city debt, to repose any confidence in their financial wisdom or prudence, not to say honesty, or to take stock in their recommendations or opinions. The past folly justifies the belief that in nothing is the public welfare the inspiring and governing spring of their action. It is to them that you are indebted for the increase of your obligations by the startling additional figures of $300,000, for which no equivalent has been secured. This vast sum was absolutely thrown away so far as any benefit to you and the city is concerned, and they now seek to pile your burdens still higher to further promote their personal and private ends. You will remember the prediction made by clear-headed citizens at the time the Dover railroad swindle was pending, that if the effort to invove the city in that scheme was successful, you would not escape with the sacrifice of $300,000, but in the end would be called upon for more. This prediction, let me tell you is now about to be verified. A deficiency of nearly a hundred thousand dollars is announced, and movements initiated to wrest the larger half of this sum from this city. It is not enough that $300,000 of your means have been sunk out of sight in a worthless project, but you are to be required to consign $50,000 more for the same purpose to the same irretrievable depths. Was "check" more sublime ever exhibited? But why do not these men retain this amount of indebtedness in their own hands if it affords so desirable opportunity for investment as they coolly pretend? If it is good for the city to take it is good for them to keep, and they are fully entitled to the reward it would afford them for the distinguished and disinterested services they have rendered, which few good citizens would object to their receiving. But of course their talk is pretense only to deceive. They know that the stock of the Dover road is intrinsically worthless. They see the breakers close aboard, and mean to unload upon the city and escape if possible. It therefore doubly behooves you, fellow-citizens, to oppose your earnest protest to these last moves to heavily augment the city's liabilities. Both your own direct interests and your duty to protect the future welfare of the city demand that you should resist with determination the selfish and reckless designs of these men, who for ways that are dark and tricks that are vain are more than peculiar. Arouse and give them to understand with emphasis that your property, which is already involved, chiefly by their unwarrantable act, to the extent of half a million dollars, must not be further mortgaged under any pretense for any purpose. For unless the public expenses are reduced and the increase of the city debt is arrested, our population will indeed be thinned out, our streets become deserted and the hum of our remaining industries be silenced, not by epidemic diseases generated by the South mill-pond, but by a hegira to escape the tax-gather's exorbitant and blighting demands.

Daily Chronicle.

—Apropos of theatricals, I have heard my mother tell a little story of the late Mrs. Butler, and General Butler as a lover. Miss Hildreth was a lovely young creature who had espoused the stage, and was fairly successful for those days when no such fame and fortune were made as in these. She came to Cincinnati to play an engagement, and had hardly begun when B. F. Butler, who had fallen in love with her some time previously, came after her. It was understood by the company that although she favored his suit, she was not disposed to marry as soon as he desired. He had to go to New Orleans on a short trip, and told her that he would give her until he came back to make up her mind. He left the city, was gone a short time, and one night made his appearance in the green-room. Miss Hildreth was playing Pauline in the "Lady of Lyons," and when she came off the stage, found the impetuous and obscure Ben., waiting most impatiently for his answer. She gave it in the affirmative and he hurried away with all the ardor of the first Napoleon on his second marriage. At that time Butler was a strong, well-knit young fellow with remarkable conversational powers. They must have been great indeed to have won so lovely and desirable a partner for life.—New York letter.

"A Drop of Joy in Every Word."
Flemington, Hunterdon Co., N. J.,
June 27, 1874.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—It is with a happy heart that I pen these lines to acknowledge that you and your Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets are blessings to the World. These medicines cannot be too highly praised, for they have almost brought me out of the grave. Three months ago I was broken out with large ulcers and sores on my body, limbs and face. I procured your Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets, and have taken six bottles, and today I am in good health, all those ugly ulcers having healed and left my skin in a natural, healthy condition. I thought at one time I could not be cured. Although I can but poorly express my gratitude to you, yet there is a drop of joy in every word I write. God's blessing rest on you and your wonderful medicines is the humble prayer of Yours truly,

JAMES O. BELLIS.

When a medicine will promptly cure such terrible eating ulcers and free the blood of the virulent poison causing them, who can say longer doubt its wonderful virtues? Dr. Pierce, however, does not wish to place his Golden Medical Discovery in the catalogue of quack patent nostrums by recommending it to cure every disease, nor does he so recommend it; but what he does claim is this, that there is but one form of blood disease that it will not cure, and that disease is cancer. He does not recommend his Discovery for that disease, yet he knows it to be the most searching blood cleanser yet discovered, and that it will free the blood and system of all other known blood poisons, be they animal, vegetable or mineral. The Golden discovery is guaranteed by him to cure the worst forms of Skin Diseases, as well as of Blotches, Pimples and Eruptions, also all Glandular Swellings, and the worst form of Scrofulous and Ulcerated Sores of Neck, Legs or other parts, and all Scrofulous Diseases of the Bones, as White Swellings, Fever Sores, Hip Joint and Spinal Diseases, all of which belong to Scrofulous diseases.

ACHSAH:

A New England Life Study.

BY REV. PETER PENOT. 12 mo, cloth.....$1.50.

The manly, whole souled, and devoted young clergyman is no fancy sketch; Deacon Sterne, the sanctimonious hypocrite; the plain-talking old maid sister; the sneaking, spying aunt, are life-like and real, while the heroine, ACHSAH, is a lovely character, with whom the reader is in deep sympathy. These, with the various other characters of the story, are so combined as to produce a book full of interest from beginning to end.

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Costiveness, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and concluded to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of my wife, who was a friend, and he speaks for himself. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can say anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. Send this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well night, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Neuralgia and Kidney Trouble, Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a single in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

a no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the luxury trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

— USE —

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Plymouth Church.

The Plymouth Church committee, consisting of Messrs. A. Healey, T. M. Spelman, E. C. Davis, Samuel Belcher and Mr. Pratt, appointed to investigate the charges of S. V. White against Henry C. Bowen, reported at the business meeting of the church on Wednesday evening, the 11th. The clerk read the report, detailing its numerous meetings, the absence and attendance of Mr. Bowen, the indefiniteness of his charges, his apparent equivocations, and his unwillingness to substantiate the charges by revealing the names of his informants or the names of those ladies with whom he professed to know Mr. Beecher had held unbecoming relations. The committee, therefore, considered that the church should inflict on Mr. Bowen its severest penalty, that of expulsion. Mr. Pratt, chairman of the committee, remarked upon the painful task that had devolved upon himself and associates in recommending the penalty in question against Mr. Bowen, who appeared to be an accomplished Christian gentleman. He complimented Dr. Ward upon his able defence of Mr. Bowen before the committee, who brought every possible point to bear in favor of his client except facts. He built fine castles, but could not make the ground for them to stand on.

After much debate action was postponed until May 18th. Considerable discussion ensued upon the unwillingness of Mr. Bowen to meet Mr. Beecher and Mr. Pratt, and tell them what he knew regarding his derelictions, unless Mr. Francis D. Moulton were with him. It was asked why a witness so especially hostile to Mr. Beecher had been named. Dr. Ward answered that Mr. Bowen had been advised by his counsel not to meet Mr. Beecher and Mr. Pratt without a witness, and he would abide by the advice. It was also a determination of Mr. Bowen to keep the names of the women implicated a secret from those who did not already know them, and for that reason he preferred Mr. Moulton as a witness. Mr. Bowen had also heard something in regard to Mr. Pratt that caused him to lose confidence in that gentleman, and although at first impressed with his apparent fairness and candor, he had reached the conclusion that Mr. Pratt was determined to shield Mr. Beecher at whatever cost, and, regarding him as the tool of Mr. Beecher, he would not meet him. Afterward, Dr. Ward apologized for using the word "tool," saying that it was a hasty expression, which he did not precisely mean. Mr. S. V. White then asked Dr. Ward why Mr. Moulton had been insisted on as a witness. Dr. Ward answered, warmly, "I would respectfully reply that it is none of your business." Mr. Raymond demanded of Dr. Ward his authority for making accusations of unfairness against Mr. Pratt. Dr. Ward replied that it was Mr. Bowen's counsel, but the counsel had obtained the information from another. He had called that morning on the counsel to ascertain the name, but the counsel professed not to know it, and said he would look for his card. The name of the counsel was then vehemently demanded by several, but Dr. Ward refused to disclose it. He would, however, ascertain the name of the informant, and give it at the next meeting. Mr. Bowen also spoke to the same effect, also refusing to name the counsel.

Mr. Bowen said that he would at once meet Mr. Beecher and tell him what he knew without a witness on either side, but Mr. Beecher replied excitedly that Mr. Bowen had years ago become inimical to him because he would not allow his sermons to be printed in the Independent, and that contrary to Mr. Bowen's past statements that he had alluded in his presence to the charges against his moral character, he had never done so, and that all conversations between them had been strictly upon business. On one occasion in later years a messenger came from Mr. Bowen asking him whether he would meet him and learn the charges he had heard against his moral character, but he had peremptorily refused. "He is," said Mr. Beecher "rotten and treacherous to the core, and I was not to be caught in any unwitnessed conference with him. He had several opportunities to inform me of the charges at the houses of several persons where we met to decide on the tripartite treaty, but he did not do so."

Mr. Bowen said that he thought no one would believe that he could make charges against Mr. Beecher without good cause. He believed Mr. Beecher to be guilty, but penitent, and he had refrained from speaking against him until forced. "You assert," said Mr. Bowen, speaking to Mr. Beecher, "that the conversations in our interviews were wholly of a business character. Did our three hours' conversation at the house of Mr. James Freeland touch upon nothing but business?"

Mr. Beecher—"No, sir!"

Mr. Bowen—"I say it did."

It was then proposed that Mr. Bowen should name any one present as a witness with whom to at once meet Mr. Beecher and Healy, but Bowen would not consent. On a second request he said he would name a person if the meeting would promise in advance to accept him. It was demanded by several that he should first name the individual.

A short consultation ensued between Mr. Bowen, and his son Clarence, and Dr. Ward, after which Mr. Bowen said: "I am willing to name a person who shall listen with Mr. Beecher to the facts I have to tell him, and which he already knows, provided the third person shall be restricted from disclosing what is told him. This restriction is not to apply to Mr. Beecher. He may tell anything he chooses. I name Rev. Dr. Wm. M. Taylor, of the Broadway Tabernacle, New York."

Mr. Raymond—I would like to ask Mr. Bowen two questions. Is the impartial listener to be restricted from saying which is right? If Mr. Beecher says something occurred and Mr. Bowen denies it, may the third person decide? Secondly, will Dr. Taylor consent?

Mr. Bowen—I do not know Dr. Taylor's feelings or sentiments toward any aspect of the case.

Dr. Ward—Mr. Bowen does not desire to tell, has not desired to tell, these facts to Dr. Taylor or to any one else. He desired to protect those who would be ruined by the exposures. You are pushing him. On you be the blame and the curse of it.

Mr. Beecher, in a deep, powerful voice, "I am charged with a most monstrous crime—"

"Yes, and you are guilty of it," said Dr. Ward, in a lower tone, but audible to all.

Instantly every man and most of the women were on their feet, and some of the most impetuous rushed toward the speaker. The gavel of the moderator could scarcely be heard in the shrill cry of "Shame! shame!" from the women, and the tones of the men who cried, "Pitch him out!" "Leave the house." The excitement was tremendous and was with difficulty allayed, although the moderator refused to recognize any one until all were in their seats. So fierce was the competition it was difficult to tell who was credited with moving that Dr. Ward be asked to retract what he had said or be expelled from the meeting.

Ross Raymond preserved his temper and shouted, "Let it be done in order," and quieted Deacon Howard and others. The motion was then put to a tolerably quiet house, but trembling with excitement. Their mode of voting by upraised hands gave them no opportunity to show enthusiasm in what proved to be a unanimous vote for retraction or expulsion. As the vote was announced, the congregation settled to a breathless stillness, and the moderator read the resolution to Dr. Ward, who rose to answer it. Facing the greater portion of the assemblage, but more directly facing Mr. Beecher, he said slowly but distinctly and firmly: "I have acted before the examining committee as becomes a man who believes Mr. Beecher guilty. I have had occasion at its meetings to tell him so. I still believe it. I was out of order and am sorry for it, but I can retract nothing."

A Voice—Put him out!

Dr. Ward—Is that the decision of the Chair?

Moderator—It is.

Dr. Ward bowed and passed out.

Mr. Beecher, who had remained standing, yielding the floor to a point of order, but holding his right to it when that should be settled, then continued his speech which was an impassioned denial of Mr. Bowen's charge that he had been "crowded" by Plymouth Church to reveal anything, but that he had without pressure used the press and every other means of circulating his charges.

Mr. Bowen as strongly denied making any charges. "I kept my mouth shut," said he. "Mr. White's committee could not find that I had told any one. Nor can one of the 2500 members of this church say I told him."

Two resolutions were then handed up in writing. The first approved Dr. Taylor's nomination as one of the council of three, and requested that he and Mr. Bowen and Mr. Beecher meet, Mr. Bowen to tell all that he knows derogatory to the moral character of Mr. Beecher.

The second was:

Resolved, That since Mr. Bowen assents to the foregoing only on condition that Dr. Taylor be restricted from divulging what he hears, that this church reluctantly accepts that condition.

Both resolutions were carried, and the meeting adjourned.

Daily Chronicle.

TUESDAY, MAY 16, 1876.

Going With the Tide.

Among the New Hampshire republican papers, the Nashua Telegraph, the Amherst Cabinet, the Claremont Eagle, the Exeter News-Letter, the Lake Village Times and the Manchester Mirror are for BRISTOW. The Lancaster Republican, the Keene Sentinel, the Concord Monitor and the Portsmouth CHRONICLE are for Blaine.

We clip the above from the Boston Journal. In our issue of March 28th we expressed our preference for Mr. BLAINE. At that time the tide set strongly in his favor in this part of the State. But we believe that a public journal should bow in deference to public sentiment, and there is no disguising the fact that a change has come over our people; many of our prominent republicans who were for Mr. BLAINE then are now advocating the claims of Mr. BRISTOW. We believe the most earnest desire of the masses of the republican party is a thorough reform administration, and to insure that something more than signal "party services" are necessary. If either BRISTOW or BLAINE receives the nomination at Cincinnati we are confident the party would give him a most cordial, united and enthusiastic support.—Coos Republican.

Now let's hear from the Monitor and CHRONICLE. We might as well make it unanimous.—Manchester Mirror.

The CHRONICLE, were it positively committed to any one candidate, would hardly take back water and espouse the opposing cause. And should it "follow the tide" in this section of the State it would be obliged to ally itself with the BLAINE element, which largely predominates hereabouts. It is alike favorably disposed to the two candidates who monopolize the attention of republican voters in New Hampshire. If these two favorites (or either of them) cannot be elected President the CHRONICLE has no interest in advocating their claims. The feeling that some of our contemporaries have shown in their self-absorbtive and over-zealous advocacy of the candidate of their choice has no response, favorable or unfavorable, in the CHRONICLE'S course. While it is so evident that there is imminent danger that the "Great Unknown" may distance the New Hampshire favorites before they are fairly "out of the woods" if any bickering or strife shall make their interests antagonistic, it is hardly to be expected that the CHRONICLE will follow the course of the tide in its changing flow and ebb, in ridiculous haste to keep even with public sentiment moulded by mud-slinging and office-seeking patriots whose preferences may be tinged with self-interest and total disregard of the wants and best sentiments of the people. It will be the duty of the Cincinnati convention to select a Presidential candidate—not the CHRONICLE'S. The duty of this paper is to give a full and impartial report of the ever-changing political kaleidoscope, and not to push its convictions on its thinking readers when those convictions may prove to be erroneous ones in the light of coming events. It deems it the duty of the Cincinnati convention to nominate the candidate who can most assuredly secure the largest electoral vote in November. If the convention make success a paramount consideration in its deliberations the CHRONICLE will be content, be the nominee SHERMAN, BLAINE, BRISTOW, WASHBURNE, WHEELER, HAYES, or any man who will receive the cordial support of reformers and those who have the best interests of the republican party at heart.

The Blaine Investigation.

The events of the next ten days will doubtless make or break the ex-Speaker as a Presidential candidate at this time. Either there is a foundation for the charges made, or Mr. Blaine has been most cruelly maligned and is being most unmercifully fellowed. He has boldly and defiantly denied the charge, and the investigations now pending should be so thoroughly conducted as to reach the bottom of the whole affair. A. G. Riddle, a prominent republican of Washington, thinks Mr. Blaine unjustly assailed the memory of Mr. James W. Knowlton, a deceased Washington correspondent, in his recent public explanation. According to Mr. Riddle, Mr. Blaine once visited the office of Stewart & Riddle and there had an interview with Mr. Knowlton, who afterward stated that Stewart came out of the private room where Blaine was and asked him to sign his name to twenty-five construction bonds of the Kansas Pacific Railroad as witness to a transfer, and that Stewart then took these bonds back to where Blaine was, and soon after the latter passed out. Afterward, Mr. Knowlton denied that it was Mr. Blaine who called on him. Mr. Riddle also refers to the charge made and retracted by the New York Tribune in 1872, concerning the ownership by James G. Blaine of $295,000 in the stocks and bonds of the Leavenworth, Pawnee and Western Railroad, etc. Mr. Riddle claims that John E. Blaine had but $10,000 of this stock, and that the records before the Supreme Court have been mutilated and manipulated to conceal the real Blaine interest. There is a necessity for Mr. Blaine to explain away these charges if he is likely to become the republican nominee for President. If he fails of an utter and complete refutation of the charges it may be his misfortune, but should not be foisted on the republican party. If the refutation be as complete as his friends hope, the reaction in his favor may prove of incalculable service to him and the party.

News and Notes.

Mrs. Sarah Stephens, who was arrested in New York on the charge of putting her baby in a stove and burning it up, has made a full confession of her crime. The woman is evidently a maniac. She says that she thought her child would be better off dead than alive. The child was only two days old She had read articles in the papers about the cremation, and they put it into her mind to burn the body. Mrs. Stephens' husband was a dissipated man, and his wife obtained a divorce from him some time ago and resumed her maiden name. It is supposed her trouble with her husband made her crazy. She is quite young, being only about twenty years of age.

During a gale off Madeira the American brigantines Nellie Clifford, of Bangor, and Maurice, also of Bangor, were lost. Both crews were saved.

Dr. Taylor declines to be a safe deposit vault for the secret charges to be made by Bowen against Beecher.

The Union Pacific Railroad investigation shows that Gen. G. W. Dodge, an ex-member of Congress, and at one time Chief Engineer of the Road, is of the opinion that the $250,000 or more of missing Treasury bonds belonging to the Road were stolen. It is said that several ex-officers of the Road and some ex-government directors will be implicated.

The captain, his wife and child, and the crew of schooner Mary A. Rice, ran down off Boon Island last week, were taken off by another vessel.

Three unknown men were drowned about fifteen miles east of Boon Island, on the 11th. They were adrift in a small boat, and capsized her in endeavoring to board a schooner. The vessel could not save them, as a gale was blowing and the sea heavy.

Blaine, Bristow, Conkling, Morton, Hartranft, Jewell and Evarts all slept under one roof in Philadelphia, Wednesday night of last week.

The Grand Union Hotel, opposite the Grand Central Depot in New York, has several special advantages over its rivals. It is so near the depot that the traveler is spared all annoyance and expense of carriage, baggage and expressage hire, while its location is such that street car and stage lines radiate from this point to all parts of the city. It has elegantly-furnished rooms, has all the latest improvements, and is run on the European plan. Travelers visiting New York, or on their way to or from the Centennial, will find this hotel par excellence in every respect. It is under the management of G. F. & W. D. Garrison, and has become one of the most popular hotels in the city of New York.

"A Drop of Joy in Every Word."

Flemington, Hunterdon Co., N. J., June 27, 1874.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—It is with a happy heart that I pen these lines to acknowledge that you and your Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets are blessings to the World. These medicines cannot be too highly praised, for they have almost brought me out of the grave. Three months ago I was broken out with large ulcers and sores on my body, limbs and face. I procured your Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets, and have taken six bottles, and to-day I am in good health, all those ugly ulcers having healed and left my skin in a natural, healthy condition. I thought at one time I could not be cured. Although I can but poorly express my gratitude to you, yet there is a drop of joy in every word I write. God's blessing rest on you and your wonderful medicines is the humble prayer of Yours truly,

JAMES O. BELLIS.

When a medicine will promptly cure such terrible eating ulcers and free the blood of the virulent poison causing them, who can any longer doubt its wonderful virtues? Dr. Pierce, however, does not wish to place his Golden Medical Discovery in the catalogue of quack patent nostrums by recommending it to cure every disease, nor does he so recommend it; but what he does claim is this, that there is but one form of blood disease that it will cure, and that disease is cancer. He does not recommend his Discovery for that disease, yet he knows it to be the most searching blood cleanser yet discovered, and that it will free the blood and system of all other known blood poisons, be they animal, vegetable or mineral. The Golden discovery is warranted by him to cure the worst forms of Skin Diseases, as all forms of Blotches, Pimples and Eruptions, also all Glandular Swellings, and the worst form of Scrofulous and Ulcerated Sores of Neck, Legs or other parts, and all Scrofulous Diseases of the Bones, as White Swellings, Fever Sores, Hip Joint and Spinal Diseases, all of which belong to Scrofulous diseases.

When you have a cough or cold be sure and use Adamson's Cough Balsam. It is an unfailing remedy. 25 and 75 cents per bottle.

Important to persons visiting New York or the Centennial. The Grand Union Hotel, New York, opposite the Grand Central Depot, has over 350 elegantly furnished rooms. Elevator, steam and all improvements. European plan. Carriage hire is saved, as baggage is taken to and from the depot free. Guests can live better for less money at the Grand Union than at any other first-class hotel. Stages and cars pass the Hotel constantly to all parts of the city, and to the Philadelphia depot. dawtf1977

The Naval Investigation.

The testimony before the House committee amounts to but very little, except to show that at Charlestown and Mare Island no Paymaster could secure the position of Purchasing and Disbursing Paymaster without agreeing to retain certain friends of Gen. Butler and Senator Sargent. Paymaster Abbott, who succeeded Paymaster George H. Plunkett, at Boston, testified that he found Plunkett's brother in the office in the position of paymaster's clerk. He discharged Mr. Plunkett and engaged a clerk of his own choosing, whereupon threats were made that unless the old incumbent was retained, Paymaster Abbott would be transferred. He had an interview with Gen. Butler and learned that the threats were well founded. He wrote to the Paymaster-General about it, and was instructed that unless he conciliated Gen. Butler his position would be forfeited. After weighing the matter he concluded to reinstate Plunkett. He also testified that he was compelled by friends of Senator Cragin of New Hampshire to give the timber contracts to Mr. John Trickey.

The embezzlement of Pinney, at Mare Island was one of the results of the Sargent arrangement. Pinney was the chief clerk, and in fact did the business of the office. A Paymaster was but a man of straw, and the one who finally succeeded in getting orders to Mare Island, Spaulding, was obliged to retain Pinney, who finally decamped in a vessel to a foreign land after defrauding the Government of $750,000 by means of false vouchers, the too-confiding Paymaster Spaulding having been in the habit of signing his name in blank for checks and inspection purposes for the convenience of his chief clerk.

Paymaster Ambrose J. Clark, now on duty in this city and a high-minded and honorable public official, was once, it is said, offered the Mare Island Disbursing Agency. He had had some experience with a defaulting clerk, in the person of one Bogart, whose accounts hardly tallied with the sums of money actually received and expended, to the extent of $30,000. Paymaster Clark's honor was assailed by this betrayal of confidence in his clerk and he bent his energies for the conviction of the thief, (Bogart,) spending considerable of his own fortune to secure the overwhelming evidence submitted. Bogart was tried by court-martial and sentenced to four years in the penitentiary, the proceedings having been sent to Washington for approval. If the approval was given the sentence was not carried out, for Bogart quietly sauntered down to the ferry at the Mare Island yard, crossed to San Francisco and had the sublime impudence to telegraph back for his trunk and other articles which were sent to him. Bogart has since frequented the cities of Washington and New York, a convicted criminal who evidently knew too much for somebody, and therefore went unpunished. For a year or two he has been engaged as a writer of scurrilous articles in the New York Sun and other papers of that sort, and has it is said been a chief reliance for democratic research in the investigations of the day.

Paymaster Clark, some years after the conviction of Bogart, was offered the position at Mare Island to which Paymaster Spaulding was finally assigned. Mr. Clark was told to see Senator Sargent, who wanted Pinney retained as chief clerk. Mr. Clark preferred appointing some man with whom he was acquainted, and finding Pinney a necessity to Mare Island, very fortunately declined to accept the terms. He was afterward ordered to the navy yard here, and subsequently relieved Pay Inspector Charles H. Eldredge as Purchasing and Disbursing Paymaster in this city when Mr. Eldridge was assigned to sea duty last July. Mr. Clark testified in Washington on Saturday, whither he had been summoned to appear as a witness by the House committee, that Bogart, who stole nearly $30,000 from the Government, was deliberately spared from the term of imprisonment for that crime and that he is free to-day, and picking up a living in Washington.

Live Oak.

It will be remembered that many schooner loads of live oak were landed at the navy yard last year, for which no contract had been awarded. Mr. W. C. N. Swift of Massachusetts was the owner of the timber and continued sending to the various yards cargoes of it long after it had been known that Mr. Southard of New York had put in a bid for the contract at much lower rates than those offered by Mr. Swift. The attention of workmen who had been discharged from employment at the yard here was directed to this unusual course, and it was thought that the funds which would have given them months of employment were being diverted for the benefit of a few persons who must have had a direct interest in the success of Mr. Swift. Finally, the contract was awarded to Mr. Southard, who furnished at one or more navy yards a certain proportion of the timber which he had contracted to supply, and then the Swift oak was required to meet the deficiency, on terms not yet made public.

At Charlestown, more timber was landed than could be properly cared for, and Commodore Nichols testifies that the yard has on hand timber enough to build a half-dozen ships, much of which cannot be stored in the basins. In regard to three schooner loads of live oak, received from Swift, he said: "I knew nothing about it until I received the orders from Washington; there were two cargoes of live oak timber which came here some time last Fall, if I mistake not, brought by Mr. Swift. I refused to permit the vessel to come alongside the yard. I refused to receive the timber unless a contract, an approved requisition, or an order could be shown for it. The schooners disappeared; where they went to I do not know. Some time after, I can't say how long afterward, I received an order from the Chief of the Bureau of Construction to the effect that Mr. Swift had some live oak at East Boston, which he had agreed to deliver according to Navy Yard measurement, or something of that kind, and authorizing me to permit the timber inspector of the yard to go over there and measure that timber for Mr. Swift. Subsequently I received a telegram to permit Mr. Swift to land his live oak timber in the Navy Yard. I telegraphed back to this effect: 'How much timber and at whose expense?' An answer came back, 'Twenty-five thousand cubic feet, Mr. Swift to land the timber, the yard teams to haul it away, and the Construction Department to be at no expense.' When Mr. Swift had landed his 25,000 feet I forbade his landing any more. I then received another telegram to allow him to land 25,000 cubic feet more, and subsequently an order came permitting the landing of more live oak. How much he landed at that time I do not know, but my impression is that it was more than 60,000 cubic feet. Then, not very long after, came the order to receive all of Mr. Swift's live oak in the yard and vicinity, which embraced the live oak in East Boston, also supposed and believed by me to be that which was on board the two schooners that came here to the yard previously, and the timber on which I had refused to land."

Mr. Swift will soon be called upon to explain how he manages to obtain and maintain a monopoly of this live oak timber business, and some developments of a local interest are expected.

Consistency.

Eds. Chronicle: In the article of Monday morning, signed "A Tax-Payer," the writer in attempting to convict some one with being a falsifier does as assuredly falsify as he attempts to prove others as doing so, especially when he says:

"The Mayor, or rather the adroit schemer who spoke through him in the address first grossly understated the public debt by counting out three-fifths of the true amount as against somebody else and not the city to clear the way for its further enlargement, and then introduced the two mill-ponds (meaning the South pond) as objects, joined with the deficiences of his previous enterprises."

Now, who is this adroit schemer? for the chief mover in the South Mil pond sanitary improvement was not in the city at the time of the Dover railroad excitement; therefore to connect the two in the above manner is flatly false.

"Joint outside manœuvres were cunningly inspired to second this his latest scheme to involve the city and give it the appearance of public urgency and popular endorsal. The project has from time to time been brought up in the city councils and agitated in the papers, but has thus far hung fire doubtless from its formidable character and the difficulty of deciding upon the manner of accomplishing it."

What this means is hard to conjecture, for a second and last scheme refers to a former one. Now, if it means a railroad scheme, there has no such thing been brought up. If it means Millpond, there is no such former scheme; consequently it is a falsification.

"But I fear the scheme has not been abandoned. It will not be, we may believe, if the genius who conceived it can control it. I am afraid it has been deferred or suffered to slumber only for plans to be determined for its consummation."

If a man believes any "scheme" (a stereotype word which has become chronic with "the tax-payer,") is right and for the good of all, he should work for it, and never surrender until he is convinced he is in the wrong, and then acknowledge his error, like a man!

"The annoyance complained of is not sufficiently serious to justify this. It is no greater now than it has been for at least a quarter of a century. The health of the city never has been and is not likely to be disturbed by a locality that twice in each twenty-four hours is washed by the flow of the ocean, and is all the time more or less covered with sea water."

We have heard the assertions of hundreds that the annoyance and danger is greater than even two years ago, and that from people who have sufficiently clear minds to distinguish between a Millpond and a railroad—and who have not been detected in attempting to mystify and falsify by muddling the two together.

"We are in no condition to engage in expensive improvements at this time, however desirable."

How does the writer know there is expensive improvement contemplated? I am prepared to state that no such thing is even hinted at, or thought of by any one who is active in desiring to protect the city from epidemics.

"But of course their talk is pretense only to deceive."

Such shrewd discernment—the writer ought to sign his full name, that his services might be called into the city government; but judging from his article we should not feel very safe at his hands, and as for connecting the Mayor's name with the Millpond improvement, we do not know when or where he has expressed an opinion, and we would be loath to follow the councils of any one who muddles up disconnected subjects as "tax-payer" has in his article; and we hope that the workers on the subject of the Millpond nuisance will continue their labors until councilled to discontinue by clearer and more honest councils than the writer of the article spoken of.

TOWN TALK.

Portsmouth & Dover R. R. Meeting.

A special meeting of the stockholders of the above corporation was held on Monday, at the City Rooms, for the purpose of devising means for the payment of the accrued debts of the road, to the amount of figures in the neighborhood of $90,000. President Jones occupied the chair, and called the meeting to order. Col. William H. Hackett read the records of the last meeting in which was foreshadowed the present occasion for summoning an attendance of all interested.

President Jones explained that the meeting should have been called at an earlier date than this, but the delay had been occasioned by the unfortunately critical condition of the Eastern Railroad, to whose management the P. & D. Railroad was leased. The President remarked that the meeting was open for any proposition that might be made or any discussion bearing upon the subject before the house.

Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett then immediately arose and submitted the following resolution, which was adopted without dissent:

Resolved, That a committee of five, to be nominated by the chair, be appointed to take into consideration the situation of the debts of the Portsmouth and Dover Railroad, and report thereon at an adjourned meeting a plan for the protection of the Road and the payment of its debts as they may judge favorable and expedient.

Mr. Wallingford of Dover said that he, as one of the representatives of the interests of the city of Dover in the P. & D. R. R., wished to express himself in favor of the payment of the debt by the two cities and thus save what had already been shouldered. [Inquiring faces peered at each other to ascertain what on earth there is to save, in a non-paying road backed by a bankrupt guarantor.]

Mayor Goodrich, in behalf of the city of Portsmouth, said that it would be well for this committee of five to report as early as practicable although the matter before them would require careful deliberation.

The committee recommended by the resolution of Mr. Hackett's was appointed by the chair, and consisted of Messrs. Geo. F. Hobbs, John Bracewell and Charles H. Horton of Dover, and W. H. Y. Hackett and Albert R. Hatch of this city. It was voted to adjourn to meet in the City Rooms, Portsmouth, two weeks from date, May 29, at thirty minutes past eleven o'clock A. M., sharp, to hear the report of the committee on ways and means.

The Common Council room was crowded with those directly interested in the unhealthy financial condition of the P. & D. R. R., and the long faces and glum looks were strongly suggestive.

We can, if we are philosophers, however, extract a deal of comfort in the reflection that this is "the nearest route to the great West!"

The financial statement of the road shows the following sums to be provided for:

Bills payable	$63,350,00
Unpaid bills	10,273.94
Estimated claims	10,000.00
Dividends unpaid	402.00
	$84.025.94
Cash on hand	2,496.14
Capital stock on hand	119,300.00
Construction	762,229.80

Messrs. Editors:—A religious society has been formed, (or the old one revived) at what is known as "Ground Root Hill," in the Agamenticus vicinity. An unusual interest has manifested itself under the preaching of a Mr. Smith, from New Hampshire, who is about 21 years old and a very able and eloquent speaker. He is, I am told, not ordained, and therefore cannot perform the baptismal ceremony, and for this reason, Elder H. Short, pastor of the First Christian church, has been called upon, and two weeks ago baptized eight persons, and last Sunday attended to the baptism of five more. The sixtieth anniversary of the dedication of the First Christian church was held at their house, with appropriate ceremonies; after which sixty members (one for each year partook of a "New England dinner" at the parsonage. A New England dinner means—every one carry their own edibles and some for the rest—and then it is free and costs nothing! As the Elder enjoys a joke as well as any one he will not take umbrage at being called paradoxical; being six feet long and therefore a very "long short." Other news for the present is meagre. No further thefts so far as heard from. The crop of frogs this year will be good unless a drought should damage the sprouts. P.

The Humpty Dumpty troupe (Maffitt & Tyler's,) will give one of their enjoyable entertainments at the Temple this evening. The merits of the company are too well-known to need extended comment, so we will only say that the pantomime will be brought out with all the pleasing accessories which have made it so attractive in the past. Maffitt is a host in himself, and he is accompanied by excellent artists in their respective lines.

On Saturday, in North Hampton, a horse drawing a wagon containing Mr. J. Warren Philbrick, Miss Carrie Philbrick and Miss Bertha Rand, took fright from the breaking of the whiffletree, and ran away. All the party were thrown out, Mr. Philbrick and Miss Rand escaping with slight injuries; Miss Philbrick was seriously (and it was at first feared fatally) injured, receiving seven bad cuts about the head and face and having her nose badly crushed.

The General Committee on Decoration Day observances herewith cordially invite all surviving soldiers and sailors in this city and vicinity to be present on that occasion with their tributes, and help swell the procession of the afternoon, and also participate in the memorial services of the evening. The committee find it impossible to notify each one separately and hence take this public mode of communicating with them. Let the response be hearty.

Lieut. Thomas M. Gardner, U. S. N., now and for some time past stationed at this navy yard, has recently purchased the schooner yacht "Waterfall" of parties at Newburyport. She is beautifully modelled and "sails like a witch"—which we suppose means that she is a very fast sailer, though as we never saw a witch sail, that we know of, we cannot speak with certainty—and is a splendid sea-boat. Her owner proposes to alter her somewhat, so as to largely increase her cabin accommodations, as she is intended mainly for the pleasure-sailing of his family,—though we are informed Lieut. Gardner and a party of friends will go to the Centennial in her.

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Billiousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but the great sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and the sale has since been doubled came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, and Dead that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. A friend brought me your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hope of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new "man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have always received praise for them. I enclose one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.
SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything and not nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,
Care Watson & Gannett.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Cosmopolitanian. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Believe I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine; I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think the world owe a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, and I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two sisters living in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Rockdale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.50 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

PULMOCINE.
The celebrated Pulmonic Cordial

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England;

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
— USE —
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Piper and Pomeroy.

Since Piper's confession that he coolly and with premeditation murdered the little girl Mabel H. Young and the humble but respectable domestic servant, Bridget Landregan, that he committed the murderous and unprovoked assault on the dissolute woman, Mary Tynan, and that he attempted at least one other murder, besides committing such trifling offences as stealing coats and money and setting buildings on fire, quite a number of charitable people have come to the conclusion that the poor fellow does not deserve hanging, as he was the victim of an "uncontrollable impulse" to commit crime, and therefore not really responsible for his acts. If this idea of sentimental humanitarians is reasonable, why should it not be carried to its logical conclusion? If the man or boy who carries on the business of torturing and murdering unoffending and helpless women and children simply to gratify a devilish delight in their sufferings, is to escape the penalty the laws affix to his crimes if he will only say "I couldn't help doing it," what justice is there in punishing the mechanic who has an uncontrollable impulse to rob banks, or the live-stock dealer who has an uncontrollable impulse to steal horses, or the tramp who has an uncontrollable impulse to set barns on fire or to steal chickens, or the rough who has an uncontrollable impulse to assassinate some other rough or some objectionable policeman or wealthy bank president, or the husband who has an uncontrollable impulse to murder his wife to make room for some other woman, for yielding to their uncontrollable impulses? Why should not the inveterate burglar, horse-thief, incendiary and back-slums-bully receive as much consideration on account of the uncontrollable impulses which force them to steal or murder, to gratify their desires to get something which does not belong to them or their hatred of individuals, as is received by the wretches who commit murder simply to gratify their tiger-thirst for blood? The impulse is just as "uncontrollable" in one case as in the other; the man who is impelled to steal the money in the bank vaults certainly does manage to control his impulses until he sees what he thinks is a favorable opportunity; but neither did Piper nor Pomeroy have any difficulty whatever in controlling their "uncontrollable" impulses so long as they thought it dangerous to yield to them. This "uncontrollable impulse" plea is about the same thing as the old "emotional insanity" dodge (which held that no man, unless he was very poor indeed, could commit a murder anyway,) and if it is only carried far enough will undoubtedly result in a most gratifying increase in the number of great, unprovoked and aimless crimes.

Piper's confession will probably have no effect toward saving his worse than worthless neck from a hempen cravat, but it has stirred up a good many enquiries as to what disposition is to be made of that other outrage on humanity, the ferocious but cowardly boy-devil, Pomeroy. On this subject the calm and ever-temperate Worcester (Mass.) Gazette says: "If Pomeroy is a human being he is responsible for his acts, and the Executive has no right to obstruct the action of a law existing on the statute books. If in Pomeroy the blood-thirsty instincts of the tiger predominate over human traits, he is only a dangerous animal—to be put out of the world, not revengefully indeed, but quickly and without compunction." That puts the whole question in a nutshell. There is but one possible reason to be given why Pomeroy should be spared, and that is, that the greater scourge and curse to the human race one of its members becomes the more sacred his life should be held. This idea is very popular, and is carried about as far as it can be, in Pomeroy's case. Had he committed but a single murder, for the purpose of robbery or for revenge on some one he hated, he would have been a mere vulgar murderer and would have received his just deserts long ago, without anybody whimpering about it or over him; but he committed two murders and savagely tortured dozens of helpless infants, from no other motive than to enjoy his victims' sufferings,—unless a desire to shine as the hero of one of his favorite "dime novels" may have also had some influence in spurring him on—and became at once something very precious in consequence. Poor little dear!

—A farmer who lives on the bank of the Delaware and Hudson canal, near Homowack, having been annoyed by the boatmen throwing coal at his turkeys and chickens, has fixed poles in his field, and hung on them old hats, tin kettles and bottles, at which the boatmen are continually throwing coal. About once a week he gathers his harvest, which is enough for his own use; and with the surplus he is running a small coal yard.

—A girl employed in a paper mill at Westfield, Mass., suffered a severe attack of lockjaw, in which the jaws were set for nearly two hours. The doctor said the trouble was the result of an inveterate habit of chewing gum.

—"My lord," began a pompous young barrister, "it is written in the book of Nature—" "On what page, sir—on what page?" interrupted the judge.

—The bull-frog was the first circulating greenback, and the entire breed have been notorious inflationists ever since the flood. —New York Mail.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 17, 1876.

The Blaine Investigation.

The House committee, of which Gen. Hunton is chairman, held a session on Monday, at which important testimony was given. Among the witnesses ranged around the room were some striking faces. Tom Scott's round, white-topped head, and frank, clean-cut face moved hither and thither as he chatted now with Sidney Dillon, President of the Union Pacific, a tall man with a long head and stern face, fringed with gray side whiskers and shock of white hair; now with the Treasurer of the company, Hon. E. H. Rollins, a spare, nervous man, whose black hair and long, black, pointed beard are beginning to tinge with gray.

Mr. John C. S. Harrison testified that Mr. Rollins told him that an investigation into the matter of the expenditure of $64,000 by the Union Pacific corporation might hurt Mr. Blaine's chances for re-election.

Mr. Rollins testified that he had been led to believe, from what source he did not remember, that Mr. Blaine was implicated in the transaction, and so informed Mr. Harrison. Afterward, he learned that his impressions were erroneous and that Mr. Blaine had nothing to do with the transaction. The knowledge of the transaction could have hardly injured Mr. Blaine, who had been re-elected to Congress two days before Mr. Rollins told Mr. Harrison of his suspicions.

The Boston Post's special dispatch says that Col. Thomas A. Scott, the next witness "it must in truth be stated, made a very clear explanation of the wanderings of the seventy-five bonds which have raised so much dust. He declared positively that he bought them of one Caldwell, who was the constructor and father of the Fort Smith & Little Rock road; that getting into financial difficulty, he borrowed $64,000 of a friend, who raised the money of Morton, Bliss & Co., depositing his personal security therefor; that he, desiring to repay this debt and feeling that the Union Pacific Company was largely indebted to him for his services while its President, arranged to have the company pay Morton, Bliss & Co. the money his friend had borrowed for him and take as security seventy-five bonds of the Fort Smith road; that he (Scott) gave these bonds to his friend, who sent them to Morton, Bliss & Co., who in turn sent them to Rollins, Treasurer of the Union Pacific Company, and he sent Morton, Bliss & Co. a statement. Scott never swerved a hair, and further stated in answer to Blaine and Lawrence that Blaine had no connection whatever with the transaction, directly or indirectly." * * * "The general verdict is that Scott's testimony will help Blaine's chances for the republican nomination, unless something new develops against him."

Important Decision.

The Court of Commission of Alabama Claims have recently made the following decision which we copy from a New York paper:

"In cases 736, Eliza A. Pike, administratrix, etc., Newburyport, Mass., 736, Samuel Stevens et al., New York, and 775 Samuel Stevens et al., for loss of the Martaban, freight, personal effects, etc., destroyed by the Alabama December 24, 1863, the judgment and opinion of the court was announced by Judge Rayner, Judges Porter and Jewell concurring, and the presiding judge (Wells) and Judge Baldwin dissenting. This case embraced questions of great importance to all shipping interests. The Martaban was transferred to the British flag under a mortgage, really as a cover from capture; but Captain Semmes nevertheless burned the vessel.

The case was argued by Charles E. Beaman, Jr., of New York, and Frank W. Hackett, for the claimants, and by John A. J. Creswell for the United States.

The opinion of Judge Rayner denies the validity of the mortgage and takes the general ground that the transfer was forced by the dangers incident to the reported presence of the Alabama, and that in fact it was a sham resorted to to deceive Captain Semmes of the Confederate cruiser.

The amounts awarded are as follows: Case 736, Eliza A. Pike, administratrix, $3,000, including the primage due Captain Pike, the master; case 737, to Samuel Stevens, trustee, $20,000, Eliza Pike, $10,000, Lydia Rodgers, $10,000, John Atkinson, $20,000; case 775, Samuel Stevens, trustee, $4,000, Eliza Pike, $2,000, Lydia Rodgers, $2,000, and John Atkinson $4,000.

News and Notes.

A brakeman in Upper Bartlett had a narrow escape recently. He was walking on a slowly moving freight train, the tops of the cars being covered with newly fallen snow, and in some way slipped and fell across the track. His agility enabled him to throw himself between the rails, and the train rolled harmlessly on. It seems that no one had noticed his fall, and as the train was backing he sprang out between the wheels and thus escaped the engine, which otherwise would have passed over him.

The Lake Village Times says that two loons were recently caught upon hook's set in forty feet of water, near the Weirs. The books were dafted with live minnows, and many people will be surprised to learn by this incident the depth to which these birds descend in search of food. One of the loons tore himself loose, in his struggles, and escaped, but the other was taken, uninjured, and brought to Lake Village, where he has been confined in the water at the bottom of the hose tower connected with the engine house of Niagara No. 1. He takes his ration of fish with avidity, and does not appear particularly discommoded by his strange quarters. It was first proposed to chloroform him and have his skin stuffed and mounted as an ornament for the hall of the company. It seems, though, that a better use could be made of so magnificent a specimen of a bird so rarely taken alive.

The new magazine, "Record of the Year," third number (June) is ready. It has a fine steel portrait of Mark Twain, and a fine article on "Horse Car Poetry." And besides the unique and valuable diary of important events and occurrences throughout the world, this number contains, among some two hundred other articles, the following points of special interest: Dana's letter on his appointment to England; Belknap convicted out of his own mouth; Anecdotes and habits of A. T. Stewart; Barney Williams, and Theatres fifty years ago; Authentic history of "Horse Car Poetry." Sketch of Opera Bouffe Jacques Offenbach; Bayard Taylor's translation of Freiligrath's Poem; Joe Jefferson and Mrs. Sterling; William Cullen Bryant as an editor; The Game of Polo and how to play it; Pierce Butler Courting Fanny Kemble; The beautiful Poem "My Child's Origin." Things to be laughed at, popular and touching poems, sketches, incidents, etc., in such attractive variety, that it forms the richest amount of and entertaining reading almost ever embraced in a magazine. This capital new periodical is something entirely new and original, being a monthly record of every important event of any nature that happens in any part of the world, together with a selection of the choicest current miscellany, prose and poetry, foreign and domestic. Edited by Frank Moore, of the "Rebellion Record." Sold everywhere, and sent free by mail, on receipt of fifty cents, by G. W. Carleton & Co., publishers, Madison Square, New York.

The St. John (N. B.) Globe reports wages at Quebec during the past winter to have been for skilled labor in the shipyards, sixty to seventy cents per day; for unskilled labor, forty to fifty cents. The same paper says that three years ago fifty vessels had been chartered at Montreal up to the first of May to load lumber for South America; this year not one. All the result of republican blunders at Washington, no doubt.

Said a friend to Sam Bowles recently: "I think Robeson is the biggest thief in the country. If he isn't I would like to know who is." "Why, Charles Francis Adams," hastily replied Bowles, starting out of his reflections upon the Presidential possibilities. "What, Adams a thief!" exclaimed his friend. "Oh! Ah! No. Of course not; what was I thinking of?" stammered Bowles, and then he relapsed into his meditations on the prospects of the coming man.—Chic. Times.

This is what the Concord Monitor says about the amateur telegraphs scattered over Manchester: "Private telegraphic lines from store to house are fashionable in Manchester. The following are specimen messages: 'Don't over-do the liver;' 'Very busy at the store, can't get home until late, please send down a night-key, darling;' 'Don't warm over that confounded mutton again,' and so on."

Is it not a little rough on George Washington that his artificial teeth should be exhibited at the Centennial?—Cincinnati Commercial.

Mr. Joseph Goss feels it incumbent upon himself to take the honor of England into his keeping, and maintain it against all the world in general and Mr. Tom Allen in particular. And Mr. Tom Allen, with patriotism enough to qualify him for a presidential nomination, assumes entire responsibility for the honor of America. Therefore, Mr. Goss, in duty bound, has challenged Mr. Allen to meet him in the ring as champion of popular government, free institutions and particularly of American soil, climate and manhood, and maintain their superiority and his, or have his "snoot punched" or his "mug smashed;" and Mr. Allen will be happy to do so. American honor is, therefore, safe for a while, and should be kept safe for a long period at hard labor in a penitentiary for the balance of both Mr. Allen's and Mr. Goss' lives. It is a pity that national honor should be permitted to lay around loose, or that such self-sacrificing champions should be neglected by the State. It will keep better in a penitentiary, and should be deposited there at once.—Baltimore News.

If there should be a ship canal cut across the Isthmus of Darien at its narrowest point, it would be 32 miles long and would require a ship tunnel 125 feet high and seven miles in length through solid rock. A vessel going from New York to San Francisco would save 10,000 miles of sailing, and could afford to pay a toll of $3000. In the one item of wages, a clipper ship of 1500 tons burthen would save $2000 at least. It is estimated that the work would cost $100,000,000.

The Offspring of Dyspepsia.

No class of invalids are more to be commiserated than the dyspeptic, since the malady from which they suffer is the parent of more numerous offspring of tormenting symptoms than any other disease. On the other hand, they are to be congratulated that there is a potent, safe and agreeable botanic remedy for all the torture that they undergo. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters powerfully invigorates the cellular tissue of the stomach, thus promoting an adequate secretion and flow of the digestive juices, vitalizes the shrunken and debilitated lining of the stomach, directs the bile into its true channel, and stimulates the inactive bowels and dormant liver. These radical effects are accompanied with the restoration of appetite, flesh and sound repose, and the removal of flatulence, heart-burn, nausea, palpitations of the heart, vertigo, high colored and scalding urine, water brash, headache, and many other harrassing symptoms of dyspepsia.

Davy Crockett.

The Frank Mayo company, advertised to perform "Davy Crockett" at the Temple, Saturday evening, bring with them all the scenery required for the first three acts. Mr. Mayo has appeared as "Davy Crockett" before a Portsmouth audience, and few who have seen him once will miss the opportunity of seeing him again; but to those who have never seen this "Idyl of the backwoods" we will say that it is just the reverse of the sensational "frontier dramas" in which lots of war-whoopingt gunpowder-burning and scalping do duty in place of true sentiment and dramatic art. The following complimentary note, written to Mr. Mayo by one of the most widely-known clergymen of New York city, will give those who have never seen the play a good idea of its character and how it is performed by this company:

My Dear Sir: I am indebted to you for a great pleasure. Your play is charming, as wholesome and sweet as it is entertaining and interesting and your "Davy Crockett" is a very finished and beautiful piece of art; such as one wishes he could see oftener on the stage; such as would make the theatre better worth visiting by cultivated people. Your part is akin to that of "Rip Van Winkle." Your acting in passages of delicacy reminds me all through of Mr. Jefferson in "Rip Van Winkle," and your character is much more wholesome and noble than his. Wishing you all the best success in your profession that you deserve, and that is a great deal, I am, cordially yours,

O. B. FROTHINGHAM.

Hatting a Senator.

A short time before election, Sheriff Rowe and Senator-elect Leavitt made a bet of a new hat on the result for Governor. Mr. Leavitt was the winner of course, but his slight experience in transactions of this kind did not inspire him with much hopefulness. He had about made up his mind to wear the same hat another year, when in March last he was surprised by the following telegram:

PORTSMOUTH, March 17.

HON. THOMAS LEAVITT: Give me the dimensions of your head as to size of hat required to cover measurement taken before election. SAMUEL ROWE.

Mr. Leavitt promptly replied:

EXETER, March 17.

HON. SAMUEL ROWE: Head first enlarged, then shrank in proportion to democratic majority in Portsmouth; now stands at 7 1 8. THOMAS LEAVITT.

Notwithstanding this most encouraging correspondence, Mr. Leavitt continued to wear the same hat until the adjournment of Court last week. Succeeding that event, the legal wisdom of Rockingham County assembled in the office of the Register of Deeds, when Solicitor Frink, rising and calling to Mr. Leavitt, elevated a huge Elwyn hat to his astonished gaze. Have any of our readers failed to learn what an Elwyn hat is? It is conical in shape, broad in the brim, and rising to a height commensurate with its proportions at the base. In this instance it was of a size which would have numbered it up among the 90s, if numbers had been applied, and its height reminded one of the pyramids of Egypt. Mr. Frink, holding the hat aloft on his arm, prefaced his remark with a very pleasant story, illustrative of the power and influence of the Elwyn hat, and the reverent recognition universally accorded to it, and then informed Mr. Leavitt that the dimensions of the hat under consideration were intended to accommodate both his needs before election, and his growth as a statesman afterward. He surrendered it all the more readily because the donor, Mr. Rowe, expected to have but little need for a hat hereafter, it being understood that his head was soon to fall in the general decapitation of democratic officials. Should Mr. Leavitt fail to win distinction in the State, he enjoined him by all means to put on that hat, as it would be sure to win him distinction anywhere. As Mr. Frink closed his remarks he took up from a place of concealment a neat and fashionable silk hat, merely remarking that should Mr. Leavitt be ever remanded to the shades of private life, this hat might be more modestly appropriate, and then presented them both together. Mr. Leavitt responded, tendering his thanks through Mr. Frink to Sheriff Rowe, and remarking that when he first saw the hat he thought it an emblem of the virtues of the Pilgrim Fathers. But on second thought he remembered that the sheriff was not an admirer of those stern old worthies, and then he bethought him of Rip Van Winkle, whose hat, during his twenty years' sleep, was similarly fashioned. Mr. Rowe too had been politically asleep for a score of years, and the startling idea had struck the speaker that perhaps the slumberer on awaking had supposed this to be a hat of the fashion of the times. The subsequent remarks of the Solicitor had, however, relieved him of this apprehension. But as he did not aim at distinction in political life, the only distinction that he should covet would be sure to come with wearing that hat. He closed his remarks by thanking Mr. Frink for the graceful manner in which he had performed his duty, and congratulating the party of which he was a member that for once a democratic performance had come up to the platform. Mr. Leavitt proposes to wear the smaller hat in the Senate chamber, but the Elwyn hat will be laid aside until he has grown to its dimensions.—News Letter.

Knights of Honor.

The following is a complete list of the officers of Sagamore Lodge, No. 258, Knights of Honor, several vacancies having been filled at the session on Monday evening:

Past Dictator, Joseph H. Gardiner; Dictator, E. G. Pierce, Jr.; Vice Dictator, George B. Griffing; Assistant Dictator, Clarence B. Mason; Chaplain, Peter Page; Guide, George H. Tripp; Reporter, George A. Perkins; Financial Reporter, Wm. O. Sides; Treasurer, S. C. Whittier; Guardian, James Van Branken; Sentinel, E. H. Leslie; Trustees, E. G. Peirce, Jr., Joseph H. Gardiner, H. W. Briant.

Knights Mason, Knight and Dodge were appointed a committee to plant a tree in Elwyn Park in behalf of the order.

Jottings.

One of the "Sons of Portsmouth," First Lieut. Frank D. Webster, U. S. Marine Corps, has sent to the Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia an ingenious contrivance in the shape of a patent Cartridge Box, invented by him, and now on exhibition in the Ordnance Section, War Department Exhibition, U. S. Government Building. This invention differs from all other cartridge boxes. It is designed to carry metallic cartridges, either ball or blank, from one to forty rounds; and is carried on the waist belt, so as to be moved at will, and in a position most desirable for serving ammunition to a breech loader. It is neat and substantial, made of leather, and capable of withstanding the severest weather, besides being ornamental and durable. The box is to be worn on fatigue duty, or in cases of parade or ceremony, adjusted for from one to twenty rounds; for service in the field, by unloosing a strap, the box can instantly be "telescoped" for carrying forty rounds; and if necessary two boxes can be carried, one on each side, making eighty rounds. It is admitted by all military men who have examined it to be the most perfect cartridge box yet invented, and we presume that at no distant day it will be generally adopted in both branches of our National service and in State military organizations.

If some one would place a couple of swans and a few ducks in the skating rink pond, and construct a rustic shelter for them, what an additional ornament they and it would be to the fine avenue.—Times.

Yes—and hire a policeman to guard and feed them!

At the annual convocation of the Grand Council, F. & A. M., at Concord, Monday, Hon. Thomas E. O. Marvin of this city was chosen Grand Marshal.

The Woman's Temperance League planted a tree at Elwyn Park on Tuesday. Capt. Haddock's company of militia escorted the tree to the Park, and a diminutive gamin celebrated the occasion as the procession passed south, by sitting on the tree puffing a cigar.

The Congregational society at Kittery Point recently set out between seventy-five and a hundred trees in the parsonage and church grounds.

Mr. John S. Treat has contributed a tablet to be placed with the group of five trees at Elwyn Park set out by the various temperance organizations, on which will be inscribed: "By the Temperance Workers."

At the Eastern Railroad meeting, Tuesday, the legislative enabling act was accepted by a voto of 8095 to 467.

The Governor and Council have the case of the Artillery Companies before them today.

A boy fourteen years old, son of Mr. Alpheus Blake, had his hand badly injured by being jammed in the machinery at the Kearsarge Mills, Tuesday afternoon.

At the regular meeting of the Veteran Artillery Company on Monday evening, the resignation of Geo. W. Marston as Clerk was accepted and Mr. William A. Ashe was chosen. The organization of the Company was completed by the election of Francis W. Ham as 3d Lieut.; Samuel S. Frye, 4th Lieut.; Andrew J. Sides, Adjutant; John H. Wells, Quartermaster's Serg't.; Chas. M. Laighton, Serg't. Major; William Kennedy, 1st Serg't.; Wm. B. Randall, 2d Serg't.; Horace S. Willey, 3d Serg't.; John Stokell, 4th Serg't.; John H. Downing, 5th Serg't.; J. E. Johnston, 1st Corporal; Wm. C. Hidden, 2d Corporal; Daniel Danielson, 3d Corporal; Chas. A. C. Gray, 4th Corporal; William R. Martin, Frank B. Johnson, Standard Bearers. The Company voted to parade on Memorial Day.

Hon. J. F. Hall of this city addressed the Wolfeboro' Reform Club on Wednesday evening of last week in a speech of thirty minutes, during which he gave an account of the wonderful progress of the cause in Portsmouth and argued its claims upon the moral and religious classes for encouragement and support with much force and eloquence—says the News.

Mr. Daniel Webster, who advertises his new eating saloon on Fleet street, in another column, keeps one of the neatest places of the kind found in any city. The cooking is good, the food in all respects the best the market affords and the waiters courteous and attentive. Call and see for yourselves, ye hungry ones. It is only a few steps from Congress street.

The officials at the custom house have planted in Elwyn Park two choice trees, a walnut and white oak.

Col. Russel H. Conwell, of Boston, has consented to deliver the oration before the mass meeting on the evening of Memorial Day. Concerning this gentleman the London Times says: "Col. Conwell is one of the most noteworthy young men in New England. He has already been in all parts of the world. For three years during the rebellion he was a soldier, rising from a private station to that of a Colonel. He is a writer of singular brilliancy and power, and as a popular lecturer in the States his success has been astonishing. He has been in the lecture field but a few years, yet he has already made himself a place beside such men as Phillips, Beecher and Chapin."

Political.

We must add, with the utmost kindness to Mr. Riddle, and everybody else concerned in this business, the opinion that if Mr. Blaine were a notorious horse thief, who had at last been caught under the most suspicious circumstances by a border ruffian jury of Sheriff Lynch's men, they could not be induced to hang him unless they had something more nearly approaching real evidence than anything that has yet been adduced against him in this whole pitiful business. There may be evidence that he has done something wrong—we ourselves once thought so—but if there is, in Heaven's name produce it. This tattle about a dead man's having told some people a story contradicting the story he told other people about a transfer of bonds in Mr. Blaine's presence, which he guessed was to Mr. Blaine himself, begins to look like childishness.—New York Tribune.

A "Reform Conference" of about 300 delegates from various sections of the country met at the Fifth Avenue Hotel in New York on Monday. Theodore B. Woolsey of Connecticut was chosen President, and among the Vice Presidents was Hon. George G. Fogg of this State. Messrs. Amos Tuck of Exeter and William B. Small of Newmarket were among the delegates. Speeches were made by Hon. Carl Schurz, Rev. Dr. Osgood, Dr. Leonard Bacon, Prof. Seelye and others.

The democrats have had this State in their control three years and have replaced William A. Buckingham and Orris S. Ferry with Eaton and Barnum. Let the men who left the republican party to seek something higher in tone, more exalted in purpose, walk around this brace of Senators and take a good look at them as the embodiment of "reformed" democracy.—Hartford Post.

The State of Louisiana is in possession of the democratic party, and another slaughter signals the "rule of the whites." On Friday, the "regulators" of West Feliciana parish shot eight colored men and hanged four. The democratic papers term it a "terrible negro riot," although not a single white man was killed!

The delegates elected in the several wards of Nashua to attend the convention at Concord to choose delegates to the National republican convention are understood to be Bristow men.

The republicans of Wolfeborough have chosen I. B. Manning, Alvah S. Libbey, Joseph Varney and John G. Cate as delegates to the State convention, which will meet at Concord next Wednesday. A vote for President was taken with the following result: For Blaine 16, for Bristow 7.

The Georgia delegation to Cincinnati seems to be a little mixed. It will finally center on Blaine or Morton.—Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle.

Eight of the Vermont delegates are said to be for Bristow now, and his friends claim that the other two will be for him when the convention meets. Judge Poland, who heads the list, is said to be "red hot" for the Secretary.

If Mr. Bristow is disastrously defeated at Cincinnati he will owe it largely to the ill-judged and extremely offensive course of those papers which favor his nomination. We are sure, from our knowledge of Mr. Bristow's high character and love of fairness, that this course is not approved by him.—Indianapolis Journal.

The latest campaign canard comes from St. Louis. It is to the effect that a letter is in possession of some person in that city written by Secretary Bristow, in which he resigned a colonelcy in the Union army on the ground that he would not fight or serve in the ranks with negroes.

The Connecticut democrats have been true to their party policy. They have sent to the Senate Eaton, who was as violently opposed to the suppression of the rebellion as was safe, even in Connecticut, and now they send Barnum, whose chief qualification is that he has wealth, and won't occupy his seat when there is anything of interest or importance going on in the Senate. Eaton is able and vicious, Barnum is rich and indifferent; and this is the sort of purification of the public service which the democrats indulge in where they have the power.—Providence Journal.

The nomination of Mr. Barnum instead of Mr. English is a grave error, and, as such, it will weaken the democratic party in Connecticut almost as much as though it were the next thing beyond an error in the scale of unfortunate occurrences. The democratic party in Connecticut can not be weakened without materially reducing the strength of the party throughout the Republic. Connecticut is one of the States upon which we rely for a democratic success in the national campaign. Without that State we are liable to be beaten; with Connecticut, the victory is almost certain. The nomination of Mr. Barnum makes more difficult the task of carrying the State in November, and if the loss of that State should result in the loss of the national contest the democratic members of the Connecticut legislature would be responsible for the deplorable consequences of another four years of republican rule.—Worcester Press.

The latest argument against bachelor Sam Tilden as President is that the country doesn't want a man that no woman would have.—Springfield Union.

LITTLE GIANT PILL.

HAVING NOTICED

The statements in the city papers, that certain persons have been injured by eating pressed corned beef put up in Chicago, and feeling that if not explained these facts will result in injury where it does not belong, and as after a thorough investigation we find that the beef complained of is in every instance beef packed in rolls and enclosed in tin foil by parties unknown to us and not at all similar to canned beef; therefore we, the undersigned, in simple justice to the public and to the reliable firm that pack the canned article, wish to state that we have for a long time sold Pressed CANNED Corned Beef and Beef Tongues packed in 2, 4, 6 and 14 lb cans, by Messrs. Libby, McNeil & Libby of Chicago, and we cheerfully recommend this brand of goods as a safe, nutritious and economical article of food.

Daily Chronicle.

—A ridiculous story is told regarding the rules that govern the style of dress of ladies presented at the English Court. Mr. M. D. Conway says that "it is considered indispensable that ladies introduced at Court or received there shall wear very low-bodied dresses. Just before the last drawing-room, Lady ——, wife of a distinguished nobleman, wrote to the Lord Chamberlain, saying she had recently been ill and her shoulders had become so thin that she was ashamed to show them! The Chamberlain, knowing how strict the Queen was, referred the matter to her, and a grand consultation was held. After a long and serious debate, the Lord Chamberlain was instructed to write to the petitioning lady that Her Majesty would for once give her consent to the innovation, but it was intimated that the dress must be a compromise, that is, cut down in front. The Court papers referred vaguely to this exception to the rules of court dress, stating that it was by Her Majesty's gracious and special concession in order that it might not become a precedent!"

"A Drop of Joy in Every Word."
Flemington, Hunterdon Co., N. J.,
June 27, 1874.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—It is with a happy heart that I pen these lines to acknowledge that you and your Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets are blessings to the World. These medicines cannot be too highly praised, for they have almost brought me out of the grave. Three months ago I was broken out with large ulcers and sores on my body, limbs and face. I procured your Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets, and have taken six bottles, and today I am in good health, all those ugly ulcers having healed and left my skin in a natural, healthy condition. I thought at one time I could not be cured. Although I can but poorly express my gratitude to you, yet there is a drop of joy in every word I write. God's blessing rest on you and your wonderful medicines is the humble prayer of Yours truly,

JAMES O. BELLIS.

When a medicine will promptly cure such terrible eating ulcers and free the blood of the virulent poison causing them, who can any longer doubt its wonderful virtues? Dr. Pierce, however, does not wish to place his Golden Medical Discovery in the catalogue of quack patent nostrums by recommending it to cure every disease, nor does he so recommend it; but what he does claim is this, that there is but one form of blood disease that it will not cure, and that disease is cancer. He does not recommend his Discovery for that disease, yet he knows it to be the most searching blood cleanser yet discovered, and that it will free the blood and system of all other known blood poisons, be they animal, vegetable or mineral. The Golden discovery is warranted by him to cure the worst forms of Skin Diseases, as all forms of Blotches, Pimples and Eruptions, also all Glandular Swellings, and the worst form of Scrofulous and Ulcerated Sores of Neck, Legs or other parts, and all Scrofulous Diseases of the Bones, as White Swellings, Fever Sores, Hip Joint and Spinal Diseases, all of which belong to Scrofulous diseases.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 5, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and concluded to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of your Pills for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, ME., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE.—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried many everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can say anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,
Care Watson & Gannett.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent you the last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well night, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money could buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health much Better at 64 than 44—Neuralgia and Rheumatism Effectually and Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. Neuralgia, Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends who have been in Andover, and a lady in Boxlendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

— USE —

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

THE BLACK-EYED REBEL.

A boy drove into the city, his wagon loaded down
With food to feed the people of the British-governed town;
And the little black-eyed rebel, so cunning and so sly,
Was watching for his coming from the corner of her eye.

His face looked broad and honest, his hands were brown and tough,
The clothes he wore upon him were homespun, coarse and rough;
But one there was who watched him, who long time lingered nigh,
And cast at him sweet glances from the corner of her eye.

He drove up to the market, he waited in the line—
His apples and potatoes were fresh and fair and fine;
But long and long he waited, and no one came to buy,
Save the black-eyed rebel, watching from the corner of her eye.

"Now who will buy my apples?" he shouted, long and loud;
And "Who wants my potatoes?" he repeated to the crowd;
But from all the people round him came no word of a reply,
Save the black-eyed rebel, answering from the corner of her eye.

For he knew that 'neath the lining of the coat he wore that day
Were letters from the husbands and the fathers far away,
Who were fighting for the freedom that they meant to gain or die;
And a tear like silver glistened in the corner of her eye.

But the treasures—how to get them? crept the question through her mind,
Since keen enemies were watching for what prizes they might find;
And she paused awhile and pondered, with a pretty little sigh:
Then reason crept through her features and a shrewdness fired her eye.

So she resolutely walked up the wagon side and red:
"May I have a dozen apples for a kiss?" she sweetly said;
And the brown face flushed to scarlet, for the boy was somewhat shy,
And he saw her laughing at him from the corner of her eye.

"You may have them all, for nothing, and more, if you want," quoth he.
"I will have them, my good fellow, but can pay for them," said she;
And she clambered on the wagon, minding not who all were by,
With a laugh of reckless romping in the corner of her eye.

Clinging round his brawny neck, she clasped her fingers white and small,
And then whispered "Quick! the letters! thrust them underneath my shawl!
Carry back again this package, and be sure that you are spry!"
And she sweetly smiled upon him from the corner of her eye.

Loud the motley crowd were laughing at the strange, unlikely freak,
And the boy was scared and panting, and so dashed he could not speak;
And, "Miss, I have good apples," a bolder lad did cry;
But she answered, "No, I thank you," from the corner of her eye.

With the the news of loved ones absent to the dear friends they would greet,
Searching them who hungered for them, swift she glided through the street.
"There is nothing worth the doing that it does not pay to try,"
Thought the little black-eyed rebel, with a twinkle in her eye.

THURSDAY, MAY 18, 1876.

More Democratic "Reform."

The investigating committee which has been overhauling Congressional Printer Clapp seems to have proceeded all through on the most approved principles of democratic inquiry. For three months the committee has been holding "secret" sessions, keeping Mr. Clapp out and not allowing him any opportunity to cross-question witnesses or even to know what charges were preferred against him,—but allowing a democratic aspirant (one Franklin Rives) for the job of printing the Congressional Record full and free admission to the committee room and full power to introduce whatever "evidence" he pleased. Then the report of the democratic members of the committee was made to the House in the absence of the republican member, who had not the opportunity of examining a great part of the testimony nor the report itself, nor of submitting his views to the House. The report recommends that the printing of the Record be taken from Clapp and given to Rives, a democratic contractor evidently selected solely for political reasons, and without opportunity being offered for competition. How lovely is "reform," as exemplified by a democratic Congressional investigating committee!

The committee made something of a boast of the opportunity offered Mr. Clapp to present rebutting testimony. Their own record, given in the report, shows that they offered him from Thursday at ten o'clock to Saturday night to examine 1000 pages of testimony in manuscript, and to hunt up his rebutting witnesses and appear with counsel and present the evidence in his behalf. It was when he found that his defence was to be restricted in this manner that he appealed from the jurisdiction of the committee. Mr. Clapp will memorialize the Senate, as its officer, to investigate the charges.

Concerning this matter the Providence Journal says: "An illustration of the way in which the public printing was performed in the good old democratic days, is afforded in the contract for post office blanks. This contract was given out for $40,000, and the contractor bound himself by a written agreement, which, he testified under oath, was dictated by the President of the United States, James Buchanan, that he would give about $30,000, we believe rather more than that, to three democratic newspapers, one in Washington and two in Philadelphia. The work was transferred to the government office and done for about $2,500. This is by no means an exceptional example of the system which it is proposed to restore."

The Eastern Railroad.

Before the passage of the vote, at the special meeting on the 16th, by which the legislative act of Massachusetts was accepted, Mr. Terry spoke against such action, declaring that he was very much in doubt if this was the best thing that could be done. He said that by accepting this act, the stockholders voted away their last hold on the Eastern Railroad. He said this, as the stockholders had but three on the proposed board of trustees, while the bondholders had six. He said that if at any day the road defaults its interest, the bondholders seize the road, and the stockholders go out into the cold. These six directors might contrive that the road should default its interest, and a dozen millionaires combine to buy the road for $4,000,000.

The reading of Mr. Seth J. Thomas' report was opposed, but was finally carried by a vote of 41 to 23. In the report, the full details of the legislative hearing are first set forth, and the report goes on to declare that the committee was impartial, and the examination on their part fair. Though he wished to examine one or two persons who were not present, and whose attendance could not be secured, enough was discovered to show that for six years from 1869 the affairs of the company were shockingly mismanaged. At the same time he thinks there is hope that bankruptcy may be avoided, and recovery from present embarrassment possible, to which end the united efforts of the present managers are now directed. Some of the matters inquired about remain inexplicable, among them; First: The destruction of the Lynn depot; why this was done nobody could tell; it had been built only a year or so, at a cost of $55,000; there was never any vote passed to destroy it; all agreed that it might have been put to some profitable use. He quoted from the testimony of Mr. Williams, one of the Directors, before the legislative committee relative to this matter as published, and adds: In my judgment an action may be maintained against Mr. Lothrop who ordered the building to be destroyed, to recover the value of it; perhaps also against the estate of Mr. Hooper, who no doubt advised it; and perhaps further against the other Directors, who knew it was to be torn down and yet did not prevent it. Second: Assuming that Mr. Hooper got no part of the $200,000 paid for the Lynn depot lands, how did he come to buy them? Mr. Silva, who owned half of them, and who sold his half to Alley for $20,000, with the understanding that Alley was to sell to Hooper, as he afterward testified, and made Alley divide the excess with him, said he supposed it was because the purchasers had not "sagacity." The explanation is not satisfactory to my mind. I supposed Mr. Hooper was chiefly remarkable for sagacity, or acuteness, or discovery. I think Alley did divide—with somebody. Third: No sufficient reason for the purchase of the Bar Harbor property appears. There was no vote to purchase it, and Mr. Horan, one of the Directors at the time, never heard it spoken of at all by the Board, and did not know, except by hearsay, that there was any land at Bar Harbor that belonged to the company; yet the company has paid in money $21,800 for it, and still got no title and made no use of the property. The purchase of the Maine Central stock was wholly unauthorized, and in my judgment an action may be maintained to recover back the money paid. If the company elects to retain the stock let them retain it at its market value, and not for what was illegally taken from the treasury of the company to pay for it. In like manner I think an action may be maintained against Mr. Sanborn for money drawn from the treasury by him. If he can discharge himself of a part or the whole which he has received by showing that he has performed any service, or paid out the money for any legal purpose, let him do so. Whatever the result of such an action may be, it cannot, I think, be said these are not fit subjects for judicial inquiry and trial. Finally, it is difficult to see how any Director can excuse himself by saying: "I knew nothing about these things." Was it not his business to know about them? Was he not elected to know about them? Had not the stockholders a right to expect he would know about them? In conclusion the report says: "Is it a pleasant sensation to wake up in a dark night and see, or imagine one sees two or three thousand persons, stockholders in this road, crowding into one's chamber and rushing toward one's bedside, each holding out a lighted candle and making up faces, and each spelling or trying to spell the word—unfaithful?"

News and Notes.

The Pittsfield bank is to be moved to Manchester.

Capt. William B. Patten has been appointed City Marshal of Manchester.

The Great Unknown—The Keely Motor.

After much tribulation, the House naval committee have concluded to support a bill which shall retain Kittery, Charlestown, Norfolk, Washington and Pensacola as full yards, Mare and League Islands as naval stations for temporary repairs, and that New London and Brooklyn shall revert to their original owners.

The Boston Times is informed, on good authority, that the new company which has purchased the Boston Post comprises among its stockholders ex-Governor Gaston, F. O. Prince, Charles Levi Woodbury, Edward Avery, Judge Abbott, P. A. Collins and Charles P. Emery of Portland, Me. The editors of the Post who have acquired a proprietary interest are Mr. F. E. Goodrich, managing editor; Mr. William M. Thayer, night editor; Mr. Frederick D. Stimpson, the financial and commercial editor; Mr. George C. Burpee, stenographic reporter; Mr. William B. Smart, senior member of the Post's staff of writers, and Mr. H. P. Mann, the business manager.

President Grant made this remark to a Senator recently, so a Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune says: "In less than ten months my term of office will expire, and I shall again be a private citizen. I count the intervening days with the same pleasure that I used, when in the graduating class at West Point, to count the days that must pass before I would receive my diploma and leave the academy."

Frank Moulton has written a letter denying that his counsel, Roger A. Prior, upon the appeal in the Moulton-Beecher suit, said that Mr. Moulton "is nearly ruined financially, having been compelled to part with his property to defray the expenses of this serious trouble." This statement was telegraphed by the Associated Press, whose agent at Poughkeepsie now states that he was in error, and that what Mr. Prior said was that Mr. Moulton had been damaged in person, property and character, but he did not say that he had been financially ruined or compelled to part with his property, or any of it. Beecher is the only prominent person connected with the scandal who has lost pecuniarily. Moulton is still rich and Tilton is coining money out of his lectures. The latter bids fair to be a rich man in three or four years.

—The Bristol (England) Times and Mirror tells the following curious story: "A somewhat eccentric old lady recently died, leaving a considerable amount of property, amongst it being a very valuable collection of studies from the nude by well-known artists. A married niece, in the house at the time of her death, thought these were highly improper, and, as soon as the breath was out of her aunt's body, consigned them to the flames. Imagine her chagrin when, on the will being read, it was found that these very sketches were all that her relative had left to her and her children. They were worth about £8,000."

HAVING NOTICED
The statements in the city papers that certain persons have been injured by eating pressed corned beef put up in Chicago, and feeling that if not explained these facts will result in injury where it does not belong, and as after a thorough investigation we find that the beef complained of is in every instance beef packed in rolls and enclosed in tin foil by parties unknown to us and not at all similar to canned beef; therefore we, the undersigned, in simple justice to the public and to the reliable firm that pack the canned article, wish to state that we have for a long time sold Pressed CANNED Corned Beef and Beef Tongues packed in 2, 4, 6 and 14 lb cans, by Messrs. A Good Record.

The following extract from the official report of the Overseers of the Poor of Lewiston, Me., will be of interest to the many friends in this city and vicinity of Mr. and Mrs. Haven L. Scott, formerly Superintendent and Matron of the Portsmouth City Farm and removed by the democrats to make room for the present incumbents:

"The Superintendency of the City Farm was changed in April, the former Superintendent requesting a higher salary than the city could afford to pay; and after considerable correspondence and examination of various candidates for the position, we decided upon Haven L. Scott, of Portsmouth, N. H., knowing that his long experience and excellent record was such as we needed to fill the position of Superintendent. Mr. Scott was recommended to us by Hon. Frank W. Miller, Mayor of Portsmouth, and other distinguished men, who have for years been directly associated with him, and knew well his farming ability in various localities. The hopes we had in Mr. Scott as Superintendent, and Mrs. Scott as Matron, have more than been realized. We have found them just what they were recommended to us to be. In addition to his duties at the Farm, Mr. Scott has taken charge of the Hospital without additional compensation. We shall think the city fortunate if the services of Mr. and Mrs. Scott can be retained for many years to come."

The Late Wm. F. Gardner.

The following letter from Capt. P. C. Johnson, of the U. S. S. Richmond, flagship of the South Pacific squadron, to the father of the late Wm. F. Gardner, will be of interest to the many in this city who remember the deceased as a pleasant and unassuming young man of unexceptionable habits, a cheerful and agreeable companion, and a gentleman:

U. S. FLAGSHIP RICHMOND, 2D RATE,
VALPARAISO, CHILI, 25th March, '76.

Capt. OLIVER C. GARDNER, Gardner, Massachusetts;

My Dear Sir: It is my painful duty to announce to you the death of your son, Mr. William F. Gardner, Fleet Paymaster's Clerk in the South Pacific Squadron. He was admitted on the sick list on the 4th of February, 1876, with iritis involving the whole of the front part of the eye; staphylama ensued, and an extensive character, and he was transferred to the English Hospital at Valparaiso, February 8th, under charge of Dr. George F. Cooper, F. R. C. S., London, as his quarters on board ship were unsuited to carry out the treatment his case required. The removal of the eye becoming necessary chloroform was administered, (Assistant Surgeon Howard E. Ames, U. S. N., assisting,) which proved fatal within ten minutes, at 4 o'clock P. M. Origin of disease in line of duty, from exposure to the high winds of Valparaiso, which are filled with fine dust, and to the climatic changes on board ship. During his sickness he received every attention that could be bestowed by kind physicians and loving friends both on shore and from the ship. On the 22d instant his remains were buried, from the Hospital, alongside the grave of an aunt of his in the Protestant Cemetery, Valparaiso, Chili, with the honors prescribed in the Regulations.

While attached to this ship he endeared himself to his mess-mates and the other officers of the ship. His deportment was unexceptionable. As an evidence of the esteem in which he was held by the officers, it must be gratifying to you to know that they have defrayed by subscription the expense of erecting a monument over his remains. I understand that Pay Inspector Charles H. Eldredge, the Fleet Paymaster of the South Pacific Squadron, has forwarded to you a full account of his sickness, death and burial, and therefore I omit what might be unnecessarily duplicated. Any further information that you desire, that I am able to give, I shall be most pleased to forward to you upon your request.

Sincerely sympathizing with you in this sudden and great affliction, I remain,

Yours, etc.,
P. C. JOHNSON,
Commanding U. S. F. S. Richmond.
South Pacific Station.

Jottings.

The Times is in error in reporting the loss of "the Portsmouth ship Calcutta" and all but five of the crew, on the Magdalen Islands, on the 8th of November last. The vessel wrecked was the British ship Calcutta, Capt. Tyrell, of and from Quebec for Liverpool with lumber, cast away on the fourth night out of port. The Portsmouth ship Calcutta, Capt. Hanser, arrived at Hull, England, from Bombay, on the 20th of April.

An irreverent non-military man thinks he detects a remarkable resemblance between the Portsmouth Veteran Artillery and Artemas Ward's company of Home Guards, "enlisted never to leave the State except in case of an invasion" and in which were ninety-seven brigadier-generals and one private. If that critic had studied the recent course of military affairs in this city attentively, he would know that it takes a good many officers to keep a military company in order, sometimes.

Mr. B. F. Webster of this city was chosen Grand Master of the Second Vail, and also Conductor of the Council of High Priests at the annual convocation of the Grand Royal Arch Chapter of New Hampshire.

A haunted house is the latest sensation at Rye.

A few nights ago the stable and bowling alley connected with the Granite House at Hampton Beach were burned to the ground. Loss about $1000, on which there was an insurance of $700.

A silly correspondent amuses the public with the insinuation in the Times that we intended to slur the "Woman's Temperance League" in chronicling the escort of a tree to Elwyn Park by Capt. Haddock's company. What breadth of understanding and width of mind!

Saint Mary's Benevolent Association will plant a tree at Elwyn Park.

The Artillery Companies are at peace. Capt. Williams' company is commissioned as Heavy Artillery, and will retain the uniforms and muskets. Capt. Marvin's company is commissioned as Light Artillery and will have the field pieces. Capt. Williams' company will probably be assigned to the First Regiment, and Capt. Marvin's company—will not.

Many of the trees now being set out in Elywyn Park are from the Pickering farm in Newington, now owned by some of the lineal descendants of John Pickering, who built the mill at the South Pond. Upon the banks of his mill pond this Park is situated; and with the generosity of old John himself these trees have been furnished gratis.

Foster's Democrat is in a rage because the Concord People allows a correspondent, over the signature of "Independent," to tell the truth as follows: "In almost every case that I think of now, where the party has had the power and the opportunity to fill an important office, the choice has fallen on a man who represents the Bourbon or Hunker element of the party, rather than the liberal and progressive. The latest instance of this folly was the selection of Daniel Marcy by the party in this State for its candidate for Governor. However pure Mr. Marcy's private life and character may be, his public record stamped him as a man who cared more for party policy and management, than for his country, in the hour of its deadly peril."

An anonymous correspondent of the Boston Globe, writing from Biddeford in the interest of Congressman Burleigh, who has had two terms in Congress and wants a third, declares that Hon. T. B. Read of Portland, who is a candidate for the nomination, makes "a serious blunder in attempting to dictate to dictate so plainly to the republican masses of the First Congressional district." In other words, so long as Mr. Burleigh chooses to wish to go to Congress it is "dictation" on the part of any other republican to aspire to the position! Or, because the republicans of the district made a great mistake four years ago in the accidental selection of a candidate for Congress, they must now continue making the same kind of a mistake until Mr. Burleigh's excessive ambition gives place to a becoming modesty!

Political.

The nomination of William Tecumseh Sherman at Cincinnati would electrify the country!

Governor Hendricks has telegraphed his friends at home that he has withdrawn from the roll for nomination at the St. Louis convention.

An ex-member of Congress who is giving some reminiscences in the New York Commercial says, after pleasant references to Mr. Blaine's career: "In fact, Blaine seems to combine what may be deemed the representative statesman of the day, made so by the experience and education that the soul-stirring scenes through which we have passed during the last fifteen years alone could produce."

Col. Larkin D. Mason writes from Tamworth to the Boston Globe as follows: "I find among our republicans two classes; first, those who are for a thorough organization, and for adhering to regular nominations. This class are more generally for Blaine. The other class are those who are afraid of being wronged by rings, cliques, politicians, fuglers, etc., who are for Bristow, who they say is a ring smasher, etc. As organization is almost sure to win, the Blaine men in this State would be sure to carry the day if they try; but as we have so little margin in this State and Nation, I think some concessions will be made to Bristow men. To sum up, I think the majority of the republicans of New Hampshire would be for Blaine, but would consent to Bristow if it was made to appear reasonable that he and he only could carry New York."

We are inclined to predict that the Presidential canvass this year will be between Blaine and Tilden.—Newark Advertiser.

Says a democratic exchange: "Democratic papers everywhere commend Bristow for his war on thieves and exposures of corruption, notwithstanding he is a republican and a candidate for the Presidency, but not a solitary instance can be pointed out where a republican organ has commented the democratic House for efforts in the same direction." That's because the democratic House hasn't made any efforts in the same direction yet; all the efforts of the democratic House, so far, have been made solely in the direction of making political capital for the democratic party.

Gov. Hayes, besides being one of the best and purest men in the nation, as well as a man of fine abilities and great experience in public affairs, is the most available man who will step into the arena at Cincinnati.—Zanesville (Ohio) Courier.

The Presidential canvasser has appeared again in the railroad trains. His present route is between Philadelphia and Baltimore, and he reports Thurman 20, Bayard 21, Bristow 20, Tilden 40, Blaine 25, Morton 5, Conkling one, Grant one. This was on the Presidential train.

General Butler has confided to a Baltimore reporter his preference for Morton as a presidential candidate, and his regrets that Morton's health is so poor. Conkling is his second choice.

The indefatigable Southern correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial writes that the change of tide in the South toward Tilden during the past two months has been positively remarkable, and that in Georgia, as everywhere else, the impression is general that the New York Governor is the coming man. He hears that the Georgia delegation will cast its solid vote for him, on the grounds set forth as follows by a prominent democrat: "We must win this election. The democratic party has been beaten in every national contest since 1856, and it can't stand another. This is the home stretch. If we are whipped this time we had as well hang up the democratic fiddle. We believe now that success is impossible without New York, and we are going to get New York by nominating Tilden. We don't like him as well as a Western man, but that is not the thing. We fear a Western man cannot carry New York or any other Eastern State. So we drop the West and go for Tilden. See?"

The Chicago Tribune denies that it has attacked Mr. Blaine, and says it shall support him if nominated, "because of his intellectual ability and vigor, because of his sterling patriotism, because of his services to the country during his successive terms in Congress, and because of the ripe experience in public affairs which he will bring to the office of President.

The following States are to have elections before the Presidential election: Oregon, in June; Kentucky, North Carolina, Alabama, August; Maine, California, September; Indiana, Iowa, Ohio, Vermont, Nebraska, Georgia, October. Colorado has framed its constitution, and will vote during the summer on its ratification and for State officers. It will then be admitted by proclamation. The Constitutional convention was carried by the republicans.

We presume they will not state it so frankly, but it is very evident that every attendant at that "reform" conference at New York considers himself, with Doorkeeper Fitzhugh, "a biger man than old Grant."—Springfield Union.

The friends of Mr. Bristow are not helping his cause much by bawling "whisky thief" at every opponent who thinks that the republican party would not be eternally lost if it should not nominate the distinguished Kentuckian for President.—Chicago Post.

In 1840 the great Whig leaders, Webster and Clay, were thrust aside in the convention to make room for Harrison, clerk of a county court, whose chief recommendation seemed to be that he was said to live in a log cabin, drink hard cider, and keep a stuffed coon skin for a watch dog.—N. Y. Sun.

Referring to the black-balling of Secretary Bristow in the Union League of New York city, the Chicago Times says: Alas for Bristow! It was hard fare enough when he got momentarily mixed up among that celebrated drove of Kentucky mules, and had a tough job in rubbing off the mud from their heels. But to be kicked by twelve jackasses at once! It was a bitter pill, and not sugar-coated at all, though the blackballists were sugar dealers who supposed they had been aggrieved by some ruling of Bristow's department, affecting their interests.

Forney has been visited by an old man of 1876, who solved for him all the uncertainties of the coming century. He elects Mr. Blaine President this year, and follows him four years hence with Tom Scott. After eight years of Scott a Miss Mitchell is elected President, who is in turn followed by an Indian. Canada is annexed to the Union, with the Sandwich Islands, Cuba and San Domingo, and China and Japan become protectorates. The English language becomes universal, and England becomes a republic. Washington grows to a city of one million inhabitants, and Boss Shepard is remembered as "the best friend of the National Capital."

The Southern press is disposed to be candid about ex-Doorkeeper Fitzhugh. They unanimously call him an ass.

The Chicago Times thus puts it: "Horatio Seymour has declined the Presidency twice. The Presidency has declined Horatio Seymour only once, which leaves Horatio one ahead."

The New York Herald alludes to the gentlemen of the "Fifth Avenue Conference" as "the Fifth Avenue flies on a political coach-wheel."

The Springfield Union has come to this conclusion: "If any stain can be fixed on the hitherto blameless fame of James G. Blaine, he cannot be the republican candidate, but if the attempt to injure him is disclosed as a cowardly conspiracy, he is surer than ever of that honor."

H. K. Slayton, Esq., of Manchester, the well-known writer on specie payments, is a candidate for delegate to the Cincinnati convention. Mr. Slayton has the reputation of being an uncompromising advocate of retrenchment and reform, and is possessed of that kind of ability which needs representation at Cincinnati.

The Tribune, concludes the New York Graphic, is as Blaine as the nose on your face.

Well, what does Mr. Bird want? His answer is emphatic: Reform! And he thinks that the republican party, as now organized, will never concede reform, because it has not repented of its treatment of Sumner, Schurz and others, who, like them, suffered from the intolerance of partisan zeal. Mr. Sumner, however, never allowed the ungenerous treatment from which he suffered to drive him into the arms of the democratic party. He knew too well its history and its tendencies to trust it with power, and his record is proof positive that, were he alive to-day, he would give it neither aid nor encouragement. Mr. Schurz's story also is suggestive of a moral which Mr. Bird seems to forget.—N. Y. Times.

—Sometimes you see a sun-browned man with a slouch hat, and with the ends of his fingers turned down as if he imagined himself about to strike the keys of a piano. He is not a pianist; he is a base ball player, and his fingers will always stay that way.

—Said a lady, "Yes, this is Leap-year; but you will not see young ladies standing on the street-corners looking at the boys holding up their trousers as they wade over the crossing."

Shattered Constitutions Rebuilt.

In the use of a wholesome invigorant lies the only hope of rebuilding a shattered constitution. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are not only an eminently wholesome tonic, but they rectify with most satisfactory promptitude derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels which are incompatible with a return of health and strength. When the system is enfeebled by disease, by the wear and tear of business life, by continuous mental anxiety, by the exhaustion consequent upon late hours and fast living, by over-work and by sedentary habits, the Bitters are the most reliable medicinal agent for imparting permanent vigor to the debilitated frame. The new stock of vitality which they infuse into broken down physique, and the orderly action which they establish among the organs of secretion, digestion and evacuation, moreover, constitute its best safeguard against malarial disease.

The Supreme Court of the State of New York has decided that J. C. Ayer & Co., of Lowell, have the sole right to use the words CHERRY PECTORAL for a medicine, and has issued an injunction against F. V. Rushton, of New York city, for selling Rushton's Cherry Pectoral or Cherry Pectoral Lozenges, or any other use of the name to deceive the public. This decision of the high court includes all dealers who sell any similar article.—Port Jefferson (L. I.) Leader.

The best men in the country use Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam. Bankers, clergymen, farmers, lawyers, merchants, mechanics and physicians unite in testifying to its remarkable curative power.

A Fine Thing for the Teeth.

The fragrant SOZODONT has taken a very prominent place among the most approved dentifrices of the day. It is a very popular article for the toilet, highly recommended by all who have used it, as a beautifier and preserver of the teeth, refreshing the mouth, sweetening the breath, and arresting the progress of decay.

Daily Chronicle.

Iowa seems to be the only State which has a well-defined sentiment in favor of Gen. Sherman for the republican candidate. They seem to regard it as a helpless case there, however, for the Des Moines Register remarks with a sigh; "The State will probably go for Blaine, but it would like mighty well to have a chance to go for Sherman."

Whatever the people may have lost by the failure of a new and third party to come to the front, they are gaining in the postponement of the actual hostilities of the Presidential campaign. By this time in 1872 the Cincinnati convention had made its nomination and the whole country was ringing with the battle that had already begun. Now the campaign is languid enough. Mr. Bristow stangles an occasional slander, now and then Mr. Blaine makes an explanatory speech, or all the rivals on both sides fall to quarreling over a brace of delegates. Meanwhile the independent voter yawns, and still ornaments the fence. Truly, in the words of Mr. Charles Francis Adams, "this is chaos."—N. Y. Tribune.

From information in its possession based on instructions already given, on personal assurances and private advices from States where Senator Morton's strength is active and well organized, the Journal feels warranted in saying that he will receive at least two hundred votes on the first ballot. On the second ballot he will receive a large accretion of strength from Pennsylvania, Ohio, and from other quarters. If Mr. Bristow does not develop strength very rapidly during the next month he will be dropped in the convention after the first or second ballot, and when dropped the bulk of his strength in the Western and Southern States will go to Morton. With Bristow out of the way Kentucky will be solid for Morton, and most of his strength, except that in the East, will go in the same direction. Of course, all speculations on the subject are open to doubt, but this much is certain: Senator Morton will have not less than two hundred votes on the first ballot with a large contingent strength to draw from on the succeeding ballots.—Indianapolis Journal.

MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!
The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!
☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1873, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:
Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.
ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several days. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now can compare myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have sent for orders for them. I gave a friend one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.
Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.
BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.
THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,
Care Watson & Gannett.
Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.
DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.
MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.
Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.
DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.
THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Rockingham, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.50 for two packages.

PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. Its increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
For the terrible diseases engendered by the lungs trying climate of New England
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

A Lonesome Old Negro.

There was a slight rumpus near the market early the other morning that escaped the vigilance of the officer on duty. An old negro man, evidently from the country, was sitting in his wagon apparently wrapped in deep thought. His hair was plentifully sprinkled with gray, and he was carefully polishing the glasses of a pair of venerable-looking spectacles. Something in his appearance attracted the attention of two neatly dressed mulatto boys, who, with cigars in their mouths, were sauntering leisurely by.

"Dere's old man Methuselah," remarked one, while the other began to sing, "Dere was an old nigger, an' his name was Methuselah—his name was Methuselah. When he got old he went to—"

But before the saddle-colored warbler could finish his ditty, the object of his serenade had leaped from the wagon and seized him. The next moment the tuneful youth was wriggling on the ground, while the old man was thumping him with a No. 11 brogan without regard to the musical pauses, and with such vigor as to leave the impression on those within hearing that an army of spring carpet-beaters had suddenly begun operations.

"Methuselum ain't had no such marrer in his leg like dis, is he?" queried the old man, as he gave the boy a final jar that sent him rolling out of reach. Scrambling to his feet, the bruised youth, without answering the interrogatory, made up the street at a pace that soon carried him out of sight.

"I'm a lonesome nigger, I am," remarked the veteran as he picked up his hat, which had fallen off his head during the thumping process, "I'm lonesome by nature, and when I gets mad my lonesomeness is de wus kinder d'sease. Dey ain't no town niggers roun' here," he continued, giving a suggestive puff at the lappels of his coat and casting a glance at those whose attention had been attracted by the incident just related—"dey ain't no town niggers roun' here dat wants to keep me from bein' lonesome, is dey? Ef dey is, jes let him walk right out here in the sand, shuck hisself, an' I'll see if I can't keep him comin'y while my wind lasts."

As there was no response to this somewhat sarcastic challenge, the aged negro mounted the wagon again and was soon engaged in enjoying his propensities for "lonesomeness."—Savannah (Ga.) News.

—"Class in the middle of geography, stand up," said a schoolmaster. "What is a pyramid?" he asked. "A pile of men in a circus, one on top of the other." "Where's Egypt?" "Where it always was." "Where's Wales?" "All over the sea." "Very well," said the schoolmaster; "stay there till I show you a species of birch that grows all over the land."

Symptoms of Catarrh.

Dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharge falling into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery, acrid, thick and tenacious mucous, purulent, muco-purulent, bloody, putrid, offensive, etc. In others, a dryness, dry, watery, weak, or inflamed eyes, ringing in ears, deafness, hawking and coughing to clear the throat, ulcerations, scabs from ulcers, voice altered, nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired smell and taste, dizziness, mental depression, tickling cough, etc. Only a few of the above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time. When applied with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, and accompanied with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as constitutional treatment, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy produces perfect cures of the worst cases of Catarrh and Ozæna of many years' standing. This thorough course of medication constitutes the only scientific, rational, safe, and successful manner of treating this odious disease that has ever been offered to the afflicted.

FRIDAY, MAY 19, 1876.

Texas.

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS, May 8.

The great State of Texas is worthily receiving the attention of tens of thousands, who are anxiously watching for an opportunity of bettering their condition, or emerging from the close confined limits of the thickly settled Northern and Eastern States. Texas, as will be seen by reference to any map, lies as far south as Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia or Florida, and has all the advantages of these, and few, if any of the disadvantages, found in the States mentioned, such as low grounds, marshy forests, unhealthy and sluggish rivers. It is about eight hundred miles from the north to the south line, and nearly one thousand east and west, and as a consequence, different kinds of climate will be found within its borders, while as great a variety of productions are also found. The extreme northern part of the State does not produce the tropical fruits, while in the central and southern, will be found bananas, figs, pomegranates and kindred fruits. In the northern portion an occasional snow flake or crest of ice may be seen, while in the central and southern they are entire strangers, and thousands of people who have been born in this locality, have never gained sight of ice—only such as is manufactured—and their entire knowledge of snow, consists in what they have heard or read regarding it.

It would undoubtedly be a strange sight to many of your readers, to see roses in full bloom in open air during the winter months of December, January and February, or to see the honey-suckles throwing out their odor for the benefit of the passer-by, while to those in this locality it is a familiar sight. All kinds of garden vegetables, such as peas, cabbage, onions, lettuce, beets, radishes, etc., are grown in this portion of the State, through the Winter months, and can be found in this market the entire Winter through. The soil in Texas is as rich as can anywhere be found, and equally well adapted to the raising of cotton, corn, wheat, rye, sweet and Irish potatoes, flax, sugar cane, etc., the first four often growing in the same field, side by side. Corn, oats, barley, etc., are sown in January and February, while oats, rye, and wheat are now at this date, being harvested, many farmers getting two crops each year. The State is unequaled for stock raising, cattle, sheep, goats, horses, etc., requiring neither hay or shelter, the Winter being mild, free from snows and ice, the stock coming out in the Spring in nearly as good condition as in the Fall, grass keeping green the Winter through. The further advantages are, that lands can be bought at extreme low prices, requiring only small capital to purchase a ranch, and engage in a business that in a few short years brings immense wealth; for any person can readily see how fast and to what extent a flock of one thousand sheep will grow to, if left to themselves and not sold. Sheep will nearly double each year, and with one thousand ewes to start with, it will be seen that in five years, they will increase to a flock of thirty-two thousand, provided they double each year. There is plenty of pasturage, herders can be had at small wages, and in some instances land can be leased, and the extent of unoccupied lands is such that there need be no limits to the size of the flock.

Of the climate of Texas and its advantages to those afflicted with lung or asthmatic affections, it is admitted by all, that no better, if as good, can be found in the world, and should I tell you of some cures that have been effected of my own personal knowledge you could hardly credit my statement. There are very many advantages which Texas offers to persons who desire health in connection with wealth, impossible to enumerate, without infringing upon your valuable space, or in a newspaper correspondence, and which requires private or personal letters to explain. To such as wish full information, I would suggest that they write to "The Bureau of Information," San Antonio, Texas, of whom they will get full and reliable information. Thousands of people are now flocking to this State, the many inducements being such as to warrant their coming. The long, cold, and dreary months of the north and east are getting distasteful to many, especially farmers, who toil hard through the Summer months to secure enough to keep their stock through the Winter, and have consequently decided to go where the cold Winters and the many disadvantages experienced by them can be avoided. The central and western portion of the State is generally conceeded to have more general advantages than other portions, and the heavy immigration to San Antonio and vicinity, show, that these ideas are prevalent and well founded, though other portions are good and will bring in a few years to those who come, "long purses," good health and a strong pair of lungs. P. J. M.

News and Notes.

The fishing schooner Saratoga, of Gloucester, which sailed from that port for Georges Bank on the 12th of April with a crew of certainly nine and probably twelve men, and was given up for lost some two weeks ago, was probably run down on the Banks by some other vessel. A boat bearing her name has been picked up on Georges by schooner Hattie B. West, of Gloucester, and when found had the whole of one davit attached by its tackle, the davit having been pulled out of its socket; to the other end of the boat a broken davit was fast,—showing not a heavy sea but a crashing blow from some heavy, solid body. Six widows and five orphans were left by the nine of her crew whose names are known.

Mr. Whitthorne has reported from the House committee on naval affairs a bill having for its object the reduction of the pay of the navy, as proposed to reduce the pay of the army with assimilated grade. It limits the number of rear admirals to three; commodores, to six; captains, to forty; commanders, to fifty; lieutenant commanders, to sixty; lieutenants, to 150; chief engineers, to forty; passed assistant engineers, to 73; assistant engineers, to 47; medical directors, medical inspectors, pay directors, inspectors, assistant naval constructors and civil engineers, to 25 of each grade; naval constructors, to six. All officers of the volunteer service are to be discharged from service after the first of July next. Mr. Whitthorne also reported a bill to reorganize the Marine Corps.

Speaking of Schenck reminds me of draw poker—the National game, as it has been called. Gambling has not flourished here this winter, but I happened to learn of a pretty large game recently, that goes to show that men will, even in these hard times, indulge their ruling passion regardless of expense. Gossip has this to tell, and says it is the biggest game ever played in this country. About a week or ten days ago, two politicians of National reputation, a member of a great banking-house in London and John Chamberlin, the well known turfman, who makes his winter quarters in this city, sat down to a quiet seance at draw in one of our leading hotels. The play grew heavy as time passed, and the interest became so intense that, the sitting lasted thirty-six hours, at the close of which Chamberlin was winner to the large amount of $140,000. He celebrated his victory by a grand dinner a few nights afterward. Precautions were taken to keep the affair secret; but it leaked out notwithstanding.—Washington Corres.

B. P. Shillaber, Esq., is home again from the Pacific slope, genial, jolly and full of quaint wisdom.

The Great Falls Gas Light Company will reduce the price of gas to $8.60 per 1000 feet, June 1. The former price was $4.

The Northern Railroad has declared a dividend of $2.50 per share to stockholders, payable June 1, next.

The following is the the text of the bill reported from the House committee on naval affairs, and ordered printed and recommitted: Be it enacted, etc., that the navy yards at Brooklyn, Kittery, Charlestown and Norfolk be retained for general purposes, and those at Pensacola and Mare Island be retained as naval rendezvous and for temporary repairs, and the yard at Washington be used only for manufacturing purposes under the direction of the Secretary of the Navy, and the yards at League Island and New London be abandoned, and such property thereto appertaining, where the same cannot be utilized or secured without too great expense, be sold and the proceeds turned into the Treasury, and the Secretary of the Navy shall also take measures toward the recession of the same to the donors thereof, and report to the next session of Congress.

The house of Daniel Mingo, near Dresden, Yates county, N. Y., was burned on the 17th, and three children, aged respectively 14, 8 and 5 years perished.

THE BODY AND ITS AILMENTS is a book likely to be of infinite use in any household. Its contents are well arranged, the description of symptoms full and clear, and the method of treatment is plainly stated, and entirely free from puzzling technicalities. In scope, the book is as comprehensive as its title indicates. Its prescriptions are all based upon the authority of eminent modern physicians. The book is furnished throughout with such illustrations as the text requires, and at the end is an ample index. It is evidently the result of long and careful labor, and can be heartily recommended. Agents wanted. See advertisement.

Political.

The testimony of Sidney Dillon, Carragie and Millard before the judiciary committee corroborates Col. Tom. Scott's statement of the Fort Smith bond transaction of the Union Pacific investigation in every detail. Concerning Jack McClure's statement, Blaine says that he never knew there was such a man as Caldwell at the time Robinson is said to have handed him the bonds.

It has been for some time past an open secret to those who study the political currents, that a Washburne movement is quietly making toward Cincinnati. Not much has been openly said about it, but the fact of the movement and that it is stimulated and guided by skilful hands working in different States is known in political circles if not to the general public.—Cleveland Herald.

Tilden has the Iowa delegates to the St. Louis convention.

Kentucky has chosen a unanimous Bristow delegation to Cincinnati.

The prohibitionists are first in the field with a candidate for President, Gen. Green Clay Smith of Kentucky, who accepts.

Blaine has captured the New Jersey delegation to the Cincinnati convention.

Bristow gets ten delegates from Tennessee, Morton nine, and Blaine three.

One wing of the republican party of Alabama has chosen a Bristow delegation to the Cincinnati convention.

Senator Thurman has had a fall—a bad one. The democratic State convention of Ohio was to be controlled by his friends, and they were to set him on the track as a Presidential candidate. Then up rose William Allen, of ancient fame and rag baby renown, and with him the cohorts who believe the way to pay a debt is to promise to pay it. They made a fight on the committee on resolutions, against hard money, but eleven of the twenty members were for specie. Then they supported the minority report and made an open fight for greenbacks on the floor of the convention, where the minority report was adopted by a vote of 368 to 300. Then the hard money men wilted and the convention chose a delegation to St. Louis which is not for Thurman. The Cincinnati Enquirer crowd are much elated, and declare openly they don't care a cent now what becomes of the Presidential election, so long as they get square with New York for its opposition to their inflation canvass.

Worse Than Being On a Jury.

The conclave of Gregory X. lasted two years, during which the Church of Rome was without an infallible head. Clement IV., the predecessor of Gregory, died at Viterbo, and the cardinals, not being able to agree upon the choice of a successor, were preparing to leave the town, when St. Buonaventura, the disciple of St. Francis of Assisi, persuaded the inhabitants to shut their gates and not to let the cardinals go till a Pope was made. The people took the saint's advice, and not only shut the gates of the town, but set a guard over the cardinals at the doors of the palace in which they met, and informed them that they could not even leave the palace until they had elected their Pope. However, even then the cardinals could come to no agreement. They went on from month to month and month to month, still voting without producing the requisite majority, till one day the Cardinal del Porto exclaimed that the Holy Ghost could never come down and inspire their choice as long as they had a roof over their heads. The people of Viterbo took this profane joke seriously, and unroofed the palace. This measure, again, was still ineffectual, and the cardinals, it seemed, would never have arrived at any determination, had the device not been hit upon of diminishing the supplies of their tables. This measure succeeded. Hunger effected more than rain or wind had done, and Gregory X. was elected. Gregory X., on his election, issued the bill that all future popes should be elected in conclave—that is, by an assembly of cardinals locked up together, and subject to specified restrictions as to diet and attendance until the election was over.—"Papal Conclaves," in Cornhill Magazine.

—Travellers on railroads are often desirous of knowing the speed at which they are moving, and as a general thing are not aware that with the aid of a watch they may readily do so, even when mile posts are not placed along the track. This may be done, says the Scientific Press, by simply counting the number of rails which are passed over in any given minute. On the best laid roads the hammering sound made by the wheels in passing from one rail to another is quite audible, and may be easily noted on whichever side of the car the observer may be sitting. All rails are either 24 or 30 feet long—the length may be easily ascertained by pacing or measuring with a pocket rule at any station where the train stops. Then by counting the number of rails passed in thirty or sixty seconds, the speed of travel may be calculated by any passenger. When a train moves 14.67 feet a second, it is travelling at the rate of ten miles an hour, or a mile in six minutes.

HAVING NOTICED
The statements in the city papers, that certain persons have been injured by eating pressed corned beef put up in Chicago, and feeling that if not explained these facts will result in injury where it does not belong, and as after a thorough investigation we find that the beef complained of is in every instance beef packed in rolls and enclosed in tin foil by parties unknown to us and not at all similarly canned beef; therefore we, the undersigned, in simple justice to the public and to the reliable firm that pack the canned article, wish to state that we have for a long time sold Pressed Corned Beef and Beef Tongues packed in 2, 4, 6 and 14 lb cans, by Messrs. Libby, McNeil & Libby of Chicago, and we cheerfully recommend this brand of goods as a safe, nutritious and economical article of food.

The Park.

Elwyn Park is fast becoming a grove of choice and varied trees, as it should be. Among the rest, the City of Portsmouth is well represented by seven large and very fine trees, one for each of the wards, as voted by the Board of Mayor and Aldermen, and set with great care under direction of Street Commissioner J. R. Holmes. They are located on the South Street front, three on the east side and four on the west, and are of the following varieties—white oak, red oak, hickory, elm, mountain ash, wild cherry, hornbeam.

Postmaster Peirce is represented by one of the largest and finest elms on the grounds, placed not far from the millpond and near the Custom House trees.

Among the donations of materials for the Park, Messrs. D. Shea & Co. have given and laid their excellent cement drain pipe of large size, across the hollow. All the lumber dealers have also contributed portions of the material for the front fence and seats in the Park. Various teamsters have given a day's work or more with their teams in hauling earth for grading; also workmen their hand labor. And we learn that more of the same sort of contributions are in order — as for instance, the building of plank seats among and around the old and large trees, etc., etc.

Mr. Amos S. Foster will represent the Young Men's Christian Association in planting a sassafras tree in Elwyn Park.

Rev. Alfred Elwyn suggests that the Park be called "Langdon Park" instead of "Elwyn Park," for the reason that Gov. Langdon planted what are now the large trees there, at a time he was intending to build a large mansion and had selected that spot for a site.

Wagner Redivivus.

The Boston morning papers of Thursday published a ridiculous story, purporting to be a telegraphic dispatch from this city, to the effect that a Swedish woman had confessed to the murder of Anethe and Karen Christenson at Smuttynose Island on the 5th March, 1873, the crime for which Louis Wagner was hanged last year. The Globe's special professed to be from Saco, Me., and made the Swedish woman confess and die in that city. The story bore upon its face its own contradiction, and found no believers. A search for its authorship revealed the fact that no such dispatch had been sent from the Western Union office here, the only public line in the city. It was also noted that Concord was credited with a similar dispatch, showing that there was some plan at the bottom of the scheme. The rumor prevailed in Boston three days before its appearance in the papers, and had no responsible foundation. The circumstances attending the trial of Louis Wagner show the utter thinness of the alleged confession. Mrs. John C. Hontvet was the only survivor of the tragedy, and when found was chilled nearly to death, her feet being frozen on account of her hiding among the rocks to escape Wagner on that terrible night. Had he not been on the island she would hardly have left the house, barefooted and in her night dress, with the thermometer at zero to remain out of doors five or six hours. Fear of the cruel fate that had befallen her sisters caused her such a night of suffering as no one can realize, however vivid may be the imagination. We believe the cruel story was published for effect, and deem it very suspiciously connected with the hearing in Pomeroy's case at Boston, or with an intention to deceive (perhaps with good intent) the kind old mother of Wagner, who, living in Prussia, wrote him affecting letters refusing to believe in his guilt, and for a time was left ignorant of his terrible fate. The mawkish sympathizers with Pomeroy and Piper might hope to obtain some sort of leniency for the two fiends by the publication of such a story, although an innocent woman, lowly and inoffensive, might suffer for the heartlessness of the thing.

From an interview with Mrs. Hontvet (and the statements of others) we learn that there was no Swedish woman on Smuttynose Island while she lived there,—herself, her sister, Karen Christenson, and her brother's wife, Anethe Christenson, being Norwegians, and that family being sole occupants of the island during the winter preceding the Wagner murders. Since then Mrs. Hontvet has lived in this city; she has no "confession" to make, and asserts that not only is she not dead, but has never been so near death as on the night Louis Wagner so brutally butchered her helpless and terrified sisters.

Mr. C. A. Benson, a Swede who has resided either at the Shoals or in this city continuously for the past eighteen years, informs us that the only Swedish woman who ever lived at the Shoals, so far as he knows, (and it is very improbable one could live there for a day without his knowing it, for the little colony of Swedish and Norwegian fishermen are all acquainted with each other's movements,) was Mrs. Johnson, wife of Mr. Andrew Johnson, and she did not live on Smuttynose but at Appledore; and on the night of the Wagner murders she was on a visit at Mr. Benson's house. There are less than a dozen Swedish and Norwegian women living in the city and at the Shoals, all together; and no Swedish or Norwegian woman who ever lived at the Shoals now lives anywhere except in this city or at the Shoals. Miss Augusta Charlotta Anderson (now Mrs. Benson,) was the first Swedish woman who came here to live after Mr. Benson's arrival here eighteen years ago, and Mr. and Mrs. Benson can give a full account of each one who has settled here since that time.

The Boston Journal says Max Fischacher, Esq., Wagner's counsel, has believed ever since the trial that Wagner was the murderer, and never had any suspicion of Mrs. Hontvet, though "Wagner always gave him to understand that he believed she knew all about it"—as she did, and told all about it too, on the trial, with damaging effect to the heartless assassin.

The Biddeford Chronicle of Thursday prefaced its copy of a special dispatch from Biddeford to the Portland Argus, (which was identical with the special dispatch sent from Saco to the Boston Globe,) with the following:

"Several months ago some lunatic in this vicinity started the story that the woman who survived on Smutty Nose Island, the night Wagner killed Annette and Christine Christenson, had died and on her death-bed had confessed that she killed the women herself. The story has long been worn threadbare here; but this morning to the surprise of many the Argus came out with it as something new. The truth is the woman packed up a long time ago, and is now alive and kicking in her native place in Sweden, and is still firm in her belief that Wagner did the awful deed for which he was hung. He certainly had a fair trial and was given the benefit of every existing doubt. But the circumstances educed at his trial were such as to convince both judge and jury and the community generally that he committed the cruel murder."

Many years ago a lady of Hampton deposited, through a lady friend, $100 in a savings institution in this city. Recently she was notified that the deposit had increased until it had become so large that it was necessary to have something done about it, amounting to nearly $2000. She was said to have been completely astonished, for she had long ago forgotten that she had a dollar on deposit in that institution. The administrator of the estate of an aged couple, who recently died in Rockingham county, found among their assets several bank books which were issued more than forty years ago. One small deposit, made while the lady worked in the mill at Lowell, had grown to $3000, and another, made by her husband while he was at work for $8 per month, had amounted to more than $2000.

For the Heathen.

The other day, when the wind whistled sad-toned jigs around the Battery, a little old man entered a saloon, in that vicinity, and asked the bar-keeper if he could leave some tracts there.

"A whole car load, if you want to," was the prompt reply, and the little old man placed a package on a beer table and softly said:—

"There's no nobler cause than the cause of the heathen. We should all contribute a small share of our worldly wealth to shed the Gospel light across the seas."

A pair of boxing gloves were softly reposing on a table, and the little old man felt of them and went on:—

"It makes me sad to see such sinful things lying around when the cost of one glove might save a dozen souls in Africa."

Three or four of the boys had dropped in, and the saloon-keeper winked at them and replied:—

"Do you want to earn five dollars for the heathen?"

"Verily, I do."

"Put on the gloves with me and knock me down, and I'll ante up cash enough to convert a whole regiment of African sinners."

"The cause is noble, the inducement great," mused the little old man as he toyed with the gloves. The boys encouraged him to go in, desiring to see him knocked wrong end up, and he finally got off his overcoat with the explanation:—

"It can't be a sin to box for the cause of the heathen."

The saloonist meant to lift him over one of the tables at the first blow, but the blow was warded off very handsomely, and the little old man sighed:—

"Ah—um! The heathen walk in wickedness, and they have souls to be saved!"

"Look out now," cried the saloonist as he got in a left-hander.

"Verily I will, and I will give thee one in return—for the heathen."

He struck a staggering blow, and the saloonist didn't feel quite so enthusiastic as on the start. He took the defensive, and he soon had all the work he could do.

"That's another for the ignorant minds on the far-off shore!" sighed the little old man, as he knocked the saloonist against the wall. There wasn't any "science" about him, but he struck to kill, and his arms were flying around like the spokes of a wagon wheel.

"Don't crowd a feller," called out the saloonist, as he was being driven back, and he got mad and put in his hardest licks. He meant to smash the little old man's nose as flat as a window glass, but he could not do it. He got in two or three fair hits, and was beginning to regain his courage, when the aged stranger sorrowfully remarked:—

"My friend, the heathen call, and I cannot tarry much longer. Take this one, and may it broaden your views on the heathen question. Receive this one in the spirit tendered, and you may be sure the five dollars shall be a beacon light as far as it will go."

He delivered two sledge-hammer blows right and left, and the saloonist got the last on the ear as he dodged the first. He went over in beautiful style, and as he slowly regained his feet he felt in his vest pocket for the wager.

"If you'll come around here to-night and do that again I'll double the money!" he growled, as he paid the wager.

"My road points to Bosting," softly replied the old man, "and I cannot tarry. Let us part friendly, for I only boxed thee for the heathen's sake. I gave to thee, thou hast given to the heathen, and now farewell!"—San Fran. Call.

The Keeley Motor.

A Sun reporter paid a visit to the machine shop of Messrs. Sergeant & Chillingworth, in this city, where one of the Keely motor generators is being made. It is intended to be of 100 horse power, but by operating it rapidly it will give it a power of 300 horses. Its height will be about seven and a half feet. At present the parts are either lying completed on the floor or in process of preparation. Among the former is a bed of cast-iron, seven and a half feet long and three feet seven inches wide, upon which the superstructure of chambers and their accessory tubes will be raised. The chambers are about two feet in diameter, and vary in height from two to two and a half feet. They are of massive steel, and their hollows vary from four to six inches in diameter, leaving the walls necessarily of very great thickness, and capable of bearing an enormous pressure. The difficulty hitherto has been in obtaining metal which would retain the vapor.

Experiments with a generator of about fifty horse power on low pressure gave entire satisfaction to the company, and Mr. Keely was advised to construct a larger machine. He, therefore, two years ago, began one of 1,000 horse-power, to be endowed with sufficient strength to stand the requisite force with perfect safety. The next experiment was with a generator of 1,000 horse power, constructed of gun metal. A pressure of 6,000 pounds to the square inch did not burst this metal, but caused the vapor to ooze completely through its pores, much to the astonishment of the bystanders.

This gun-metal was of the best composition used, and comprised eighty per cent. of copper, fourteen per cent. of tin, and the rest of lead and zinc. It was then thought that phosphor bronze would answer the purpose, but the vapor oozed through that at a still less pressure. The virtues of wrought iron and steel are now to be tried. The chambers of Mr. Keely's 1,000 horse generator in Philadelphia have stood a pressure of 25,300 pounds to the square inch in the lower part, and 10,000 pounds in the upper, and retained the vapor, but a small globe at the top of one of them, which, it was thought, could be safely constructed of gun metal, allowed the vapor to escape. A new one is under construction, together with some minor parts, and by June first, a trial will probably be made, and one small machine of five-horse power will likewise be tried. The chambers have stood a pressure of 10,000 pounds. The inventor and the stockholders are perfectly satisfied with the feasibility of the theory. The only point now is to get metal sufficiently dense to retain pressure.

When it is considered that machines driven by steam rarely or never create a pressure of over 200 pounds to the square inch, the enormous force of the Keely motor, and its immense capacity for propulsion, can be realized. The power will be generated by a vaporizing of water mechanically, and without the agency of heat. The expense of fuel will thus be saved. Those interested claim to have been misunderstood in saying that a pint of water would be needed for the propulsion of a train of cars between New York and Philadelphia and back. They meant that if five gallons were used for an engine of 100 horse power, a pint only might be lost by vaporization through the pores of the metal. None at all might be lost. The water, after being vaporized, and passing through the various tubes and chambers, does its allotted work upon the engine, is recondensed into its former state, and, again becoming vaporized, starts again upon its mission of mighty pressure.

The capital stock of the Keely Motor Company is $1,000,000 divided into 20,000 shares. Many shareholders, disheartened at the repeated failures, and the adverse comments of scientific men, have sold out at a heavy loss, but others are hopeful.—N. Y. Sun.

—A farmer at Cohoes, N. Y., dreamed that he was feeding his cows recently, and that suddenly one of them reached over and whispered in his ear, "I am going to set fire to this shed." He says that he looked at the cow in astonishment, but she kept on repeating the same words over and over again until he awoke, and his dream was so vividly before his mind's eye that he went out to the barn to see the cow that told him she would set the barn on fire. He went cautiously into the stall of the would-be incendiary, and, strange to relate, he discovered a blaze of light in the manger. He still thought he was dreaming and pinched himself, but it was useless; he was wide awake and there was fire. He rushed for a pail of water that stood by the door and soon had the fire out. That beats Mrs. O'Leary's cow.

—"And you are going out to the East Hingies, my darlint Mrs. Morooney," said an old Irish crone to the young wife of a soldier about to embark for Madras. "I've been in thim parts myself, as well do I remimber the tormints I went through, night and day, with the muskeatoes. They have long suckers hanging down from their heads, and they'll draw the life-blood out of yees before yees can say yer prayers." This terrifying account lived in the memory of the young woman. The vessel made Madras Roads; the decks were soon crowded with all hands delighted at the sight of land, Mrs. Morooney among the rest; but her joy was of short duration, for on the shore she perceived an elephant. Horror-struck at the sight, and in breathless agitation, she approached the mate, exclaiming, with uplifted hands, "Holy Mother! is that a muskeato?"

The President and the Widow.

In the Patent Office there is a very pretty widow, recently appointed to a clerkship. Fate has been good to her in every way, and now, crowning all other misfortunes, her health is failing; a terrible cough haunts her, sometimes producing hemorrhage, which alarms everybody else more than the plucky little woman herself. As pretty widows will always have beaux in abundance, our little widow often drives out with her admirers, and Saturday afternoon she started to ride to Arlington (I'm not sure that it was Saturday, but we'll "play" it was.) Reaching the Long Bridge over the Potomac, that terrible cough began; there was no stopping it, so the poor little lady was very weak when the bridge was passed. There is a little hostelry there, and stopping his horses her friend gave her the reins and rushed into the house for lemons, whiskey, anything to stop that cough. Still she coughed, the reins were slipping from her nerveless fingers, the horses were restive, and she was looking with weak terror for her friend's return, when President Grant came driving to the scene. His quick eye "comprehended the situation," he threw his reins to his groom, leaped from his buggy, and telling our little widow to give herself no uneasiness, the President of the United States stood there and held the horses till relieved by the widow's astonished escort. Meantime, the bright blood was dyeing the lady's handkerchief—mute looks of gratitude were all she could give. The President ejaculated, in tenderer tones than one would think, "What if my Nelly should ever suffer so!" Then, giving her his card and bidding her come to him for any service he might render, our silent President drove off over the bridge.—Anna S. H. in Burlington Hawkeye.

—Two Comstockers, members of a certain church in this city, were appointed a committee to collect subscriptions to a certain amount. One of the men being officially notified of his appointment, hinted up his partner and told him what they were expected to do. This last mentioned half of the committee stood aghast. "What are we to do about the matter?" said he. "Well, I'll tell you what I shall do—I shall just go into the bank here and draw a check for my half of the sum we are expected to raise." "Good," said the other, his countenance showing signs of relief. "Good, I never thought of that. I shall do the same." The pair went into the bank and drew their checks for the amount they were expected to raise, and the trouble was all over. —Virginia (Nev.) Enterprise.

THE NEW AMERICAN STORY

ACHSAH:

A New England Life Study.

By REV. PETER PENOT. 12 mo, cloth.....$1.50.

The manly, whole soulet, and devoted young clergyman is no fancy sketch; Deacon Sterne, the sanctimonious hypocrite; the plain-talking old maid sister; the sneaking, spying aunt, are life-like and real, while the heroine, ACHSAH, is a lovely character, with whom the reader is in deep sympathy. These, with the various other characters of the story, are so combined as to produce a book full of interest from beginning to end.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon obtained more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have been out of work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manufacturer Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package was sufficient to cure me, though all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package for a friend, and finding it beneficial to himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give a thousand dollars if I could not get them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,

Care Watson & Gannett.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well night, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be indebted to my them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.80 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

PULMOCINE.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

CHRONICLE OFFICE,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

The Mother-in-Law of Moses.

Some time ago, in the town of X., during a religious controversy between Peter Lamb and some of his friends, one of the latter asserted that Peter didn't know who was the mother-in-law of Moses, and that he couldn't ascertain. Peter offered to bet that he could find out, and the wager was accepted. After searching in vain through the scriptures, Mr. Lamb concluded to go around and interview Deacon Jones about it. The deacon is head man in a gas office, and in the office there are a half a dozen small windows, behind which sit clerks to receive money. Applying at one of these, Mr. Lamb said—

"Is Deacon Jones in?"

"What's your business?"

"Why, I want to find out the name of Moses'—"

"Don't know anything about it. Look in the directory," and the clerk slammed the window shut.

Then Peter went to the next window and said—

"I want to see Mr. Jones a minute."

"What for?"

"I want to see if he knows Moses'—"

"Moses who?"

"Why, Moses, the Bible Moses—if he knows—"

"Patriarchs don't belong in this department. Apply across the street at the Christian Association rooms," and then the clerk closed the window.

At the next window Mr. Lamb said—

"I want to see Deacon Jones a minute in reference to a matter about Moses."

"Want to pay his gas bill? What's the last name?"

"Oh, no. I mean the first Moses, the original one."

"Anything the matter with his meter?"

"You don't understand me. I refer to the Hebrew prophet. I want to see—"

"Well, you can't see him here. This is the gas office. Try next door."

At the adjoining window Mr. Lamb said—

"Look here, I want to see Deacon Jones a minute about the prophet Moses, and I wish you'd tell him so."

"No I won't," replied the clerk. "He's too busy to be bothered with anything of that kind."

"But I must see him," said Peter. "I insist on seeing him; I've got a bet about Moses'—"

"Don't make any difference what you've got, you can't see him."

"But I will. I want you to go and tell him I'm here, and that I wish for some information respecting Moses. I'll have you discharged if you don't go."

"Don't care if you want to see him about all the children of Israel, and the Pharaohs, and Nebuchadnezzars. I tell you, you can't. That settles it. Turn off your gas and quit."

Then Peter resolved to give up the deacon and try Rev. Dr. Potts. When he called at the parsonage the doctor came down into the parlor. It is the doctor's misfortune that he is very deaf, and there was a little misunderstanding when Peter said—

"I called, doctor, to ascertain if you could tell me who was the mother-in-law of Moses."

"Well, really," said the doctor, "there isn't much preference. Some like one kind of roses and some like another. A very good variety of the pink rose is the Duke of Cambridge; grows large, bears early and has very fine perfume. The Hercules is also excellent; but you must manure it well and water it often."

"I didn't ask about roses, but Moses. You make a mistake," shouted Peter."

"Oh, of course! by all means. Train them up to a stake if you want to. The wind don't blow them about so and they send out more shoots."

"You misunderstand me," yelled Mr. Lamb. "I asked about Moses, not roses. I want to know who was the mother-in-law of Moses?"

"Oh, yes! certainly. Excuse me. I thought you were inquiring about roses. The law of Moses was the foundation of the religion of the Jews. You can find it in full in the Pentateuch. It is admirable; very admirable for the purpose for which it was ordained. We, of course, have outlived that dispensation, but it still contains many things that are useful to us, as, for instance, the—"

"Was Moses married?" shrieked Mr. Lamb.

"Married! Oh, yes; the name of his father-in-law, you know, was Jethro, and—"

"Who was his wife?"

"Why, she was the daughter of Jethro, of course. I said Jethro was his father-in-law."

"No; Jethro's wife, I mean. I want to know to settle a bet."

"No, that isn't her name. Bet' is a corruption of Elizabeth, and that name I believe is not found in the Old Testament. I don't remember what the name of Moses' wife was."

"I want to know what was the name of the mother-in-law of Moses, to settle a bet."

"Young man," said the old doctor, sternly, "you are trifling with a serious subject. What do you mean by wanting Moses to settle a bet?"

Then Mr. Lamb rolled up a sheet of music that lay on the piano, and putting it to the doctor's ear, he shouted—

"I made—a—bet—that—I—could—find —out—what—the—name—of—Moses'—mother-in-law—was. Can—you—tell—me?"

"The Bible don't say," responded the doctor; "and unless you can get a spiritualist to put you in communication with Moses, I guess you will lose."

Then Peter went around and handed over the stakes. Hereafter he will gamble on other than biblical games.—Phil. Bulletin.

Daily Chronicle.

SATURDAY, MAY 20, 1876.

News and Notes.

At Dover, on the 6th inst., a lad 12 years of age and son of Charles Cummings, dislocated both bones at the elbow, while wrestling.

A mutual town insurance company has been organized in Merrimack, and went into operation on the 12th inst.

The new iron bridge at Dover, which has been in process of construction across the Cocheco river by the Watson Bridge Company for the past three months, was opened for public travel, Thursday.

A Southington, Conn., man, while drunk, killed his three-year-old son by carrying him around for a considerable time head downward. He was compelled to desist from his heartless amusement by the interference of others, but the blood had settled in the child's head, and he died soon after his release.

Schooner Thomas C. Street capsized near Buffalo, N. Y., on the 17th, and six men were drowned.

The wife of Deacon William Sanborn of Hampstead, while alone in the house week before last, fell in a fit upon a hot stove and burned her face and hands terribly; first of last week she became crazy, and died Thursday night. She was buried Sunday the 14th inst. She had been a great sufferer from fits for many years.

A terrible explosion on the night of the 17th, occurred on board the steamer Pat Cleburne, just below Shawneetown, Ind. The steamer was lying along the Arkansas Belle; the latter was tied to the bank and disabled by a line of coal flats, which fouled her starboard wheel, preventing her from rendering assistance. The Cleburne floated down about a mile and burned. Capt. Fowler was burned to death; Dick Partridge, an express agent, was lost; Walter McElhenny, engineer, was blown into the river, but will recover; D. C. Moore, agent, was blown overboard, but saved; John McCune, the pilot at the wheel, fell through to the boiler deck, cut and scalded; Alexander Porter, the second clerk, was scalded and cut; Arthur Brown, freight clerk, was scalded and cut. All the cabin passengers and crew are supposed to be saved. Ornback, a musician, could not extricate himself from the timbers and was burned; Charley Colton, second mate, supposed to be lost. Passengers, G. W. Smith, slightly scalded; G. W. Nichols, hands and feet scalded; John Harvey of Cincinnati, scalded and face cut, but will recover; an unknown passenger was blown to the roof of the Belle and killed. The officers being disabled, it cannot be learned what other passengers were lost. The Belle was badly wrecked. Her chimneys were blown overboard, her state-rooms shattered, and she was on fire in many places. The first and second engineers were badly scalded. Charles Smith of Cincinnati, a passenger, had a leg broken. Possibly ten persons on the Belle were injured.

Mr. House, a democratic Congressman from Tennessee, made a speech in the House of Representatives, Thursday, in which he said it was useless to deny the fact that there is still a feeling of distrust in the North and a feeling in the South that the North was disposed to oppress the South; he did not believe the majority of the people felt that way, but until that feeling died away there could be no fraternity.

Henry C. Bowen was expelled from Plymouth Church, Thursday evening, for refusing to reveal the name of a woman whom he stated had been guilty of adultery with Henry Ward Beecher.

Metcalf, the hotel man at North Haverhill, has pulled down his sign, and declares that a man cannot run a hotel successfully as long as the reform movement is universally sustained by public sentiment.

An order passed both boards of the Manchester city government authorizing the exchange of the old Amoskeag steam fire engine No. 1 for a new first class double plunger, at an expense not exceeding $3800.

Alfred Merrill of Bow, twenty-four years of age, shot himself dead with a pistol Wednesday evening, the 17th. He went to the house of a neighbor and asked to look at a pistol which he knew was there, saying he wanted to buy one like it. The lady of the house got it for him, and without a word he shot himself through the body twice, falling dead at her feet. No reason can be assigned for the act except dissipation. He was unmarried.

Senator Conkling made a great speech before the Senator Thursday, sitting in secret session as a Court of Impeachment, against the right of the Senate to take jurisdiction. He spoke upward of three hours, and so eloquently and forcibly that he held the undivided attention of the Senate throughout. It is called his greatest effort, and is thought to have changed several votes, but probably will not affect the ultimate decision to take jurisdiction.

A Tale of the Sea.

The perils of those who go down to the sea in ships is most vividly illustrated in the dreadful experience related by some sailors who arrived here on Friday evening last and who are now staying at Mr. Joseph Gazalo's boarding house, Smythe street. These men, three in number, are among the five survivors of the ship Calcutta, Tyrell master, which was wrecked on Grindstone Island, Magdalen, on the 8th of November last. The ship left Quebec on the 4th of November, with timber and deals for Liverpool. On the morning of the 8th, about two o'clock, she suddenly struck bottom. The weather was not stormy at the time, but there was a heavy surf breaking on the shore, and as the ship was in a dangerous position it was determined to abandon her. Some effects were first landed on a raft, the people on shore aiding. Then the crew took to the two boats, and attempted to reach terra firma. Both boats upset, and left twenty-eight unfortunate people struggling in the water. A lady passenger who was going to England to join her husband was among the number; the remainder were the officers and crew. Of the entire number only five reached the shore. Two of these—Captain Tyrell and a Greek named G. Marcopolo—were saved by holding on to a ladder that was washed ashore. A Spaniard seized two oars and drifted to land. An English boy succeeded in grasping a hifebuoy, that the lady before mentioned was unable to keep, and so saved himself. The drowning of more than a score of men was a terrible sight to behold. The struggles of the men in the water, their calls for help and nobody to assist them,—the final swallowing up of the poor Jack tars by the angry waves, were scenes not easily to be forgotten. The men who were saved had to go a considerable distance to a habitation, and ever since,—a period of six months,—they had to remain there, communication with the main land being entirely cut off during the winter months. The men who came here left Magdalen Islands on Tuesday last, taking a vessel at Pictou, and they then came to this port. Captain Tyrell and the English boy remained behind to look after the wreck. The vessel has not yet been broken up. She was comparatively new, being only on her second voyage when she was lost. She was 1421 tons, and hailed from Quebec.—St. John Globe.

Mexican Aerolites.

A correspondent of the Philadelphia Press, writing from Chihuahua, Mexico, says:

Mr. Muller, a prominent citizen and banker of this city, has shipped to the Centennial an aerolite of about one ton weight. It will be one of the great curiosities, not only from its size, but from its interesting history. In 1855 Mr. Muller, then living on a large estate in the northeastern part of Chihuahua, directed some of his men to dig into the old Aztec ruins in search of specimens of their earthenware, of which they revealed some quite curious and beautiful. "Casas Grande" was a famous old village of the Aztecs, and one of the three important towns which they built, and where they lived a long time in their gradual invasion of Mexico, and their advance to the city of Mexico. In excavating the ruins of the largest buildings they found the walls plastered with a fine clay, smooth and well colored, and in these ruins, after finding beautiful specimens of pottery, they met this mass of meteoric iron wrapped in the remains of a heavy cloth, ten or fifteen feet deep. It was probably bright when so carefully clothed. It is fair to presume that the meteor, rushing through the heavens with a great noise, in an ignited state, emiting intense heat and dazling light, was received by the ignorant superstitions of the natives as a divine agent or manifestation, and was, when their fears and amazement had sufficiently subsided, carefully placed in their temple, or they erected a temple on the spot where it fell to contain it and preserve it for their worship. This seems more probable, from the fact that in the ruins, except this meteoric iron and the earthenware, nothing was found but a turtle, skilfully and beautifully made of copper. There are several other remarkable aerolites in Mexico, perhaps as many as five within a range of sixty or seventy miles, but the largest, and perhaps the largest known in the world, is in the State of Chihuahua, in the desert near to Parral, of immense size and weight, not less, it is supposed, than fifty tons. Mr. Muller had a license from the Mexican Government to take either of these from the country to the Centennial.

Wanderings of a Grain of Sand.

What we call the earth or the soil, and designate by the names of field-earth, garden-earth, and so on, is nothing more than disintegrated or crumbled up masses of rock, mixed with the remains of decayed plants and different kinds of salts, brought up from the depths of the earth by springs. The particles that enter into the growing vegetation in the form of silicic acid, together with the fine pebbles and grains of sand yearly strewed over the earth, are so numerous that no eye can look over them nor number approximately express them. But science lies concealed, and at the last station on the rivers which bears these little grains down to the sea institutes an investigation, to number them, as they take their leave of the light of day to be plunged into the dark depths of the ocean, there to remain for thousands of years, till they become rock again, and are again lifted up in the ethereal light of the air on earth.

All streams are engaged in carrying these little passengers. The Rhine, the Elbe, and their kindred German streams, are every moment conveying the emigrating earth. The Danube rolls away with them to the Black sea. The Vistula brings down the little journeying, emigrating grain from the Carpathian mountains, together with many of its companions from Russia, and lands them away down in the depths of the Baltic sea. The quantity these rivers dispatch down amounts to only a cubic foot each second. But year after year, they have collected, till the quantity laid down is so vast that it would require millions of ships more than are now in the world to carry it.

But the Nile in Egypt, the Mississippi in America, and the Ganges in India are driving a heavy business in conveying these emigrants from the light of day to the deep abysses of the ocean. The Nile carries yearly 200,000,000 cubic feet, the Mississippi 4,500 million, and the Ganges 6,000 million. This is a vast quantity, enough to cover the city of Berlin over in one year, and form a mountain, on the top of which one would have to dig to reach the tops of the highest church steeples.

And this has continued not one year, not ten years, not one hundred years, but many thousands of years, whose number no one knows, and whose effect no one is able to feel.

But many may ask? Will not this destroy the equilibrium of the earth's surface?

It seems that this would certainly happen. But the work goes on so slowly and insensibly, and the life of man is so short on earth, comparatively a night's lodging at a hotel, that he would know nothing of it if the mind of science did not step in and let a few rays of light through the openings to enlighten us on the subject.

The water of Niagara falls from a height of 165 feet. Whoever, at this terribly sublime waterfall, whose width is 1,800 feet, standing amid the perpetual roar, as of thunder, the deafening voice of nature, cannot help experiencing an inexpressible shudder? But he may not have observed that this monster mass of water is producing disintegration both of the rock it leaves and the one on which it falls, and is wearing them away; nevertheless, the investigations of science show this to be the fact. This gives the falls a slow retrograde movement, while the plain below is gradually being filled, yearly, and decreasing the height.

Investigation shows that the falls have receded thirty-three miles. Their retrograde motion has been about half an ell a year; so that this wearing away of the rock has been in progress 35,000 years. This has been done by the strength and activity of nature in an unusual way. How long then must nature have been employed in disintegrating the rock which has made the soil or earth of our world? The time in years is inexpressible, inconceivable. In fact, we have nothing on which we can base a calculation, as we have in the case of the Niagara falls.—From the German.

Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the butter counties around Philadelphia.

The Park.

The Trustees of Elwyn Park cordially invite the different organizations of this city to unite in a procession, on Tuesday, 23d inst., at the opening of Elwyn Park. Col. Wm. H. Siss has consented to act as Marshal for the day, and organizations accepting this invitation are requested to report to him as early as possible,—not later than noon of Monday, the 22d.

T. SALTER TREDICK, Secretary.

The Beginning of the End.

Section 18 of Chapter 24 of the General Statutes reads:

"Any town raising money by loan under the provisions of the 16th and 17th sections of this chapter, shall raise in each year, commencing the third year after such loan shall be effected, a sum not less than three per cent. of the amount of such loan, to be applied to the liquidation of the principal of such loan, in addition to the interest."

The city of Portsmouth effected a loan of $300,000 to aid in the construction of the Portsmouth & Dover railroad. This was done early in the year 1873. Three years have now elapsed and the law requires that the city shall raise not less than three per cent. on the amount of that loan to be devoted to the liquidation of the principal when it falls due. Three per cent. is $9000.

A Mystery Solved.

It will be remembered that last Autumn a marine named Edwards was the victim of a murderous assault, somewhere between the north end of Market street and Kittery depot, his skull being so badly fractured in two places that the brain protruded, though the man, contrary to all expectation, finally recovered and is still in the service and stationed at the navy yard. The perpetrators of the deed has never been punished, and Portsmouth roughs have been credited with being the authors of the attempt at murder; but the Portsmouth roughs have sins enough of their own to answer for, and of this crime it is now evident they were guiltless.

The story as at first told was that another marine, one Graham, found Edwards in a dying condition near the pump on Noble's Island, carried him on his back across Portsmouth bridge, left him on the steps of the P. S. & P. Railroad building in Kittery, and then went to the navy yard and got help to take in the wounded man. The police discredited this story from the first, for several reasons. One was that it was very unlikely a man would transport a dying friend past a number of dwellings and past the always-lighted tollhouse at the bridge gates, without asking assistance. Another weak point in Graham's story was the demand it made upon his strength, the police asserting that not one man in a thousand could carry the helpless body of another the distance Graham claimed he carried Edwards, which is no doubt true; many a young man, indeed, may hold another young person in his lap half the night, without once wishing to rid himself of the burden or experiencing any great fatigue afterward; but it is a very different thing to shoulder and walk off with the limp and lifeless dead weight of a drunken or wounded man. The police easily traced the movements of the two marines on the night of the assault, and found that they came into town together, Edwards paying toll for both and taking two return tickets, which he put in his pocket; Graham, during the evening, did not appear to have any money, but Edwards had some, and when he left the last drinking saloon he visited on his way toward the bridge was possessed of about $3.80, and on leaving the saloon also took a cap previously left there by another marine, to restore to its owner. When Edwards was found on the steps of the building in Kittery he had neither money nor toll tickets in his pocket, and his own cap was gone, he having the other one on his head.

On the following evening Graham and another marine came over the bridge, Graham paying the toll with two tickets; during the evening he spent in various saloons about $3.80; and on a lounge on which he slept, in one of the saloons, next morning was found a whip-handle butt, (recognized by a man in this city as one he gave a drummer at the marine barracks to make a drumstick of,) heavily loaded with lead and wound around the outside for half its length with sheet-lead in strips. Next day Marshal Marden and Assistant Marshal Hobbs again went carefully over the route said by Graham to have been taken by him after finding Edwards; but they could find no sign of a struggle either on the island or bridge, though Edwards had bled copiously from his wounds. Under the overhead railroad bridge in Kittery, however, they found a large quantity of blood-soaked sand, numerous prints of army shoes, such as were worn by both Edwards and Graham, a marine's button, and the cap lost by Edwards on the night of the assault. These discoveries convinced the officers of several things,—that Graham had lied liberally, that he committed the assault, that it was committed in Kittery and not on Noble's Island, and that consequently the officers on this side the river could do nothing about it. They were further satisfied that from some unaccountable reason Edwards himself was not telling the truth in the matter, for he had so far recovered his senses as to corroborate Graham's story, and to say that he gave Graham what money he had, and the tickets, to pay a doctor. The evidence collected was laid before the marine authorities at the navy yard and the York County legal authorities, by the police, but nothing was ever done to bring Graham to justice—why, we are unable to say, for we should have imagined the case as presented a strong one to send to a grand jury. Recently Graham has been transferred to some other station, and we are informed by the police that Edwards now acknowledges his former story to be false; that he and Graham crossed the bridge together and that Graham assaulted him in Kittery, knocking him senseless at the second blow he struck him with some weapon; and that on recovering his senses his money was gone. His reason for not telling this story before was that he feared he would be murdered by Graham and another marine if he told the truth, as he could not see any hope of being protected by the law.

Jottings.

Hon. Eugene Hale, Member of Congress from Maine, has been credited with being in favor of abolishing the Kittery navy yard, and with having actively supported moves made in that direction in the House committee on appropriations, of which Mr. Hale is a member. We have never credited this story, and are pleased to be able now to state, on unquestionable authority, that Mr. Hale has earnestly opposed any measures looking to the abolition of this yard, and that to his efforts in committee is it in great measure due that the appropriation committee decided to report in favor of its being retained as a full navy yard.

To-night, at the Temple, Frank Mayo as "Davy Crockett" is supported by a full and talented company. Scenery for the first three acts is gotten up expressly for this play and this company. Mr. Mayo has played "Davy Crockett" in this city before, and is known as an actor of superior merit, and the play as a drama extremely interesting yet entirely free from everything immoral, indelicate or coarse.

Gen. John L. Swift of Boston will speak at the Temple Sunday evening under the auspices of the Temperance Reform Club. Gen. Swift is a pleasing speaker, and one of the most eloquent orators on the temperance platform. The meeting will commence at 7 1-2 o'clock, and the doors will open at 6:30. The usual fee of five cents will be collected at the door.

The excursion in steamer "Isaac Bell," advertised in our columns to leave Newburyport next Saturday for Philadelphia and remain a week, affords the most comfortable and convenient method of visiting the Centennial without worry, hurry or confusion. A large party of ladies and gentlemen are going from Newburyport.

The Temperance Reform Club will hold a praise and conference meeting at their headquarters (Rechabite Hall) on Sunday morning at 9 o'clock, to last one hour. All are invited.

Butler & Laighton were selling strawberries from Delaware, Friday afternoon, at thirty cents a box.

The Woman's Temperance League now hold their meetings at Rechabite Hall, they having met there for the first time Friday afternoon. The Hall has been fitted up very tastefully.

The trial of Magoon for the murder of his wife will not take place till the October term of court.

The Granite State and Atlantic base ball nines will play a match game of ball at the Plains this afternoon, at half-past 2 o'clock.

Ladies, take notice. Hundreds of agents are employed throughout the world in collecting birds of the brightest plumage for the wholesale dealers in London, Paris, New York and other centres of the trade, for ornaments for ladies' hats; and so great has been the slaugeter of the most beautiful and rarest birds, that it is feared that several varieties will become extinct in some countries.

Remarks the Chicago Tribune: It was very funny, the question asked by the democratic naval investigating committee of Jonathan Young, the garrulous Captain of the Navy Yard at Kittery, Me. Said the democratic chairman: "If a man stands by the Government up and down, in trying to do his duty, he does it at the peril of being removed." Then up spoke the garrulous Captain of the Kittery Navy Yard, who not having been removed, of course has not done his duty to his Government, and said: "Yes, sir; and it is felt all through the navy." The democratic tiger evidently saw the reflection in the mirror, and jumped again, and here he is impaled again in the fragments. Every employe of the House of Representatives, man, woman, or child, black or white, who had served the Government up and down, and who had done duty by going South and helping to save the Government from destruction, was incontinently removed, and those who had fought against the Government were given their places. And it is felt all through the country, Captain Young of Kittery.

How long has that been? We are not aware of it.

Political.

It was some time ago reported that Dr. Mudd, the rebel sympathizer who shot Wilkes Booth's broken leg and afterward kept his place of concealment a secret, and who was sent to the Dry Tortugas for that same—very properly, if they couldn't have hung him for it—had been elected to the Maryland legislature as a republican. This is not so; Dr. George D. Mudd, recently elected State senator in Maryland, has always been known as an ardent Union man.

At the municipal election in Cumberland, Alleghany County, Md., Wm. A. Withers, democrat, was elected Mayor by one majority. The vote was: Withers (dem.), 840; W. J. Reed (rep.), 839.

The Connecticut House of Representatives elected William H. Barnum United States Senator by the following vote; Barnum, 150; Harrison, 81; English, 5; Ingersoll, 2. In the Senate Barnum received 17 votes, Harrison 3 and English 1.

The New York delegation was not chosen to be owned and voted on the unit principle, and we hope that the delegates will show their independence, if necessary, on the first ballot. A goodly number of the New York delegation is entirely independent, and will support Blaine or Bristow. —Troy Whig.

Josiah B. Wiggin and Joseph T. Smart have been selected as delegates to attend the republican convention. A leading member of the party informs us that two-thirds of the party in Stratham favor the nomination of James G. Blaine. A large majority of the democrats are favorable to Samuel J. Tilden as their standard bearer in the coming contest.—Exeter News-Letter.

Congressman Hurlbut of Illinois feels sure that Blaine is the coming man, but if he isn't, Governor Hayes is very likely to be.

The independent National greenback party has nominated Peter Cooper for President.

"Van" writes that arrangements are being made by which Blaine will receive support from Morton when that gentleman discovers that he has no chance in the convention.

Tonwsend rightly says the Fifth Avenue conference represented the forces of diplomacy, revolution and egotism.

New Jersey republicans remarked in convention, that they wanted speedy specie, and, of course, free non-sectarian, non-partisan public schools. They instructed the delegates to support such a candidate before the National Convention as will be to the country a pledge and guaranty of an honest and able administration.

A Dover, Delaware, special says that the republican State convention elected a solid Blaine delegation to the Cincinnati convention. The resolutions declare it the sense of the republicans of Delaware that the obligations of the Government be paid in coin or its equivalent, that its administration be honestly and faithfully conducted, and that they consider that James G. Blaine meets the requirements of a proper exponent of these principles. The delegates to Cincinnati are therefore instructed to observe this preference as long as, in their judgment, his nomination is possible.

The New York Independent says: A careful survey of the field shows that Mr. Blaine has no equal in popular strength; that the only possibility of his defeat in the convention is the combination of all the other candidates against him; that no republican in the country has more universally commanded the confidence and esteem of the party; that he has not been so allied with the errors of the Administration as to make him their apologist; that he has executive abilities of the highest order, and an experience in public life which has made him familiar with governmental affairs; that all attempts to assail his character have been futile; that there is not a single republican in the entire country who is so well qualified as he for the task of representing to the country the principles of his party, and at the same time preserving the party's harmony. Hence the Independent concludes: "We are, of course, indicating by these remarks our decided preference for Mr. Blaine, over every other name that has been mentioned. We believe that his nomination would be accepted by the republican party as furnishing a very hopeful assurance of success, and, in the event of his election, a reliable guaranty for good government. As we look at the matter, the best ticket that the Cincinnati convention can present to the people is Blaine and Bristow, the former for President and the latter for Vice-President."

In the Senate, Thursday, Mr. Morton of Indiana submitted a resolution, instructing the select committee on Mississippi affairs to investigate the alleged killing of people near the Mississippi and Louisiana line. He read a dispatch received by Governor Kellegg from his private secretary, to the effect that late arrivals from Feliciana reported a horrible condition of affairs; that sixty negroes were reported killed and 400 white men under arms, and also giving other details of outrages. The resolution was then adopted.

As things now are, it is safe to score the electoral vote of Ohio for any republican candidate that may be nominated.—Boston Herald.

LITTLE GIANT PILL.

Shattered Constitutions Rebuilt.

In the use of a wholesome invigorant lies the only hope of rebuilding a shattered constitution. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are not only an eminently wholesome tonic, but they recuify with most satisfactory promptitude derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels which are incompatible with a return of health and strength. When the system is enfeebled by disease, by the wear and tear of business life, by continuous mental anxiety, by the exhaustion consequent upon late hours and fast living, by over-work and by sedentary habits, the Bitters are the most reliable medicinal agent for imparting permanent vigor to the debilitated frame. The new stock of vitality which they infuse into broken down physique, and the orderly action which they establish among the organs of secretion, digestion and evacuation, moreover, constitute its best safeguard against malarial disease.

Daily Chronicle.

—On Saturday, May 6, a hotel (the Belleville House) in St. Louis was found to have sunk nearly out of sight. It was a two-story wooden structure, built on piles, and a few days before showed evidences of an inclination to sink into the earth. On Thursday night it sunk about two feet, but the proprietor, not apprehending anything serious, paid very little attention to the matter. On Friday night the guests went to bed as usual, but at a late hour the clerk discovered that the premises were getting rather unsettled and gave the alarm. Before the inmates could realize what was going on, the building had sunk forty-eight feet, carrying with it ten persons. After considerable difficulty they were all rescued, badly frightened but not hurt. The back water from the river soon surrounded the place where the house stood, and would very probably have carried it away, if the gable end had not been securely fastened with ropes, to terra firma. The house disappeared next night.

Symptoms of Catarrh.

Dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharges falling into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery, acrid, thick and tenacious mucous, purulent, muco-purulent, bloody, putrid, offensive, etc. In others, a dryness, dry, watery, weak, or inflamed eyes, ringing in ears, deafness, hawking and coughing to clear the throat, ulcerations, scabs from ulcers, voice altered, nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired smell and taste, dizziness, mental depression, tickling cough, etc. Only a few of the above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time. When applied with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, and accompanied with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as constitutional treatment, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy produces perfect cures of the worst cases of Catarrh and Ozæna of many years' standing. This thorough course of medication constitutes the only scientific, rational, safe, and successful manner of treating this odious disease that has ever been offered to the afflicted.

MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!
The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!
These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon returned to buy for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:
Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.
ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE—Dear Sir—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have disagreeable pains. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after using one box felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package for you to a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.
BATH, ME., Oct. 4, 1875.
THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done my order for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.
DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.
MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the poor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands, and will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.
THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Complaint, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Lawrence, one in Rockland, who are taking it, and are already much benefitted. I send $1.40 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

PULMOCINE.

PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Lobelia, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating, of inestimable expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not know wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
CHRONICLE OFFICE,
USE
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

JOHN REED.

There's a mist on the meadow below; the herring-
frogs chirp and cry;
It's chill when the sun is down, and the sod is not yet dry;
The world is a lonely place, it seems, and I don't know why.

I see, as I lean on the fence, how wearily trudges
Dan
With the feel of Spring in his bones, like a weak and elderly man;
I've had it many a time, but we must work when we can.

But day after day to toil, and ever from sun to sun,
Though up to the season's front and nothing be left undone,
Is ending at twelve like a clock, and beginning again at one.

The frogs make a sorrowful noise, and yet it's the time they mate;
There's something comes with the Spring, a lightness or else a weight;
There's something comes with the Spring, and it seems to me it's fate.

It's the hankering after a life you have never learned to know;
It's the discontent with a life that is always thus and so;
It's the wondering what we are, and where we are going to go.

My life is lucky enough, I fancy, to most men's eyes,
For the more a family grows, the oftener some one dies,
And it's now run on so long, it couldn't be otherwise.

And sister Jane and myself, we have learned to claim and yield;
She rules in the house at will, and I in the barn and field,
So, nigh upon thirty years!—as if written and signed and sealed.

I couldn't change if I would; I've lost the how and the when;
One day my time will be up, and Jane be the mistress
then,
For single women are tough and live down the single men.

She kept me to herself, she was always the stronger hand,
And my lot showed well enough, when I looked around in the land;
But I'm tired and sore at heart, and I don't quite understand.

I wonder how it had been if I'd taken what others need,
The plague, they say, of a wife, the care of a younger brood?
If Edith Pleasanton now were with me as Edith Reed?

Suppose that a son well grown were there in the place of Dan,
And I felt myself in him, as I was when my work began!
I should feel no older, sure, and certainly more a man?

A daughter, besides, in the house; nay let there be two or three!
We never can overdo the luck that can never be,
And what has come to the most might also have come to me.

I've thought, when a neighbor's wife or his child was carried away,
That to have no loss was a gain; but now, I can hardly say;
He seems to possess them still, under the ridges of clay.

And share and share in a life is, somehow, a different thing
From a property held by deed, and the riches that out take wing;
I feel so close in the breast!—I think it must be the Spring.

I'm drying up like a brook when the woods have been cleared around;
You're sure it must always run, you are used to the sight and sound,
But it shrinks till there's only left a stony rut in the ground.

There's nothing to do but take the days as they come and go.
And not to worry with thoughts that nobody likes to show,
For people so seldom talk of things they want to know.

There's times when the way is plain, and everything nearly right,
And then, of a sudden, you stand like a man with a clouded sight;
A bush seems often a beast, in the dusk of the falling night.

I must move; my joints are stiff; the weather is breeding rain;
And Dan is hurrying on with his plough-team up the lane.
I'll go to the village store; I'd rather not talk with —Bayard Taylor.

Gen. Sherman as a Politician.

It was the month of October, if I remember aright, and the eve of the Presidential election. It was proposed that an election for President of the United States should be held on board the Baltic, and the idea was at once enthusiastically adopted. The polls were opened in the smoking room. A Catholic priest and a jolly fellow, who played poker all the way over, were appointed inspectors of election, and judges and canvassers were selected in the same impartial spirit. A paper collar box, with a hole in the cover, did service as a ballot box. Only citizens of the United States were allowed to vote. The result was as follows, if I remember aright: Greeley, 25; Grant, 24; scattering, 7.

This was far from satisfactory to the voters, and it was suddenly remembered that Sherman had not voted. It was generally supposed that he would vote for Grant, which would make a tie, in which event it was proposed to throw the election into our House of Representatives, as we gallantly designated the lady passengers. The General was brought to the polls, but he declined to vote. He said that he had voted but twice in his life, and begged to be excused. We released him, and he had left the room, when Rev. Henry M. Gallagher, the well-known Baptist preacher, proposed the nomination of Gen. Sherman for President. The suggestion was adopted by acclamation, and a few minutes later he was elected President of the United States by the unanimous voice of the fifty-six legal voters on the Baltic.

A committee was appointed to wait on him and notify him of his election. They soon returned with him to the smoking room. The deafening shouts with which he was greeted were taken up by the officers and the crew, and the ladies joined in the ovation, clapping their little hands and waving their pocket handkerchiefs. When the cheering was over, the General made one of the pithiest little speeches I ever heard. He began by humorously declining the office to which we had elected him. Then settling into a serious vein, he assured us that nothing could possibly ever induce him to accept civil office of any kind, and he more than hinted that Grant, in having resigned his high position in the army to accept the Presidency had committed the great mistake of his lifetime, and knew it. —Pittsburg Leader.

MONDAY, MAY 22 1876.

The Model Reformers.

For an assemblage composed of the best representatives of the party which claims to number in its ranks all genuine "reformers" of the country, the democratic House is singularly unfortunate in its choice of officials. The democratic journal clerk, Smith, had hardly got settled in the chair filled with such honor for thirty years by his predecessor, before he was detected in "improprieties," and that he might escape expulsion was generously allowed to resign, by the same house of Representatives that considered the President's acceptance of Belknap's resignation—a resignation Heister Clymer advised Belknap to tender, —a serious offence. Some five or six other appointees of the democratic House—committee clerks, etc.,—have also been turned out for failing to cover up their tracks; and then comes the ex-sergeant-at-arms of the Confederate Senate, with his famous letter.

The democrats, it seems, want doorkeeper Fitzhugh to resign; but doorkeeper Fitzhugh don't want to resign, and won't. He says all he wrote in his letter is true, and that he can and does spell as well as a good many of the democratic Congressmen —which is no doubt true, for if Fitzhugh does spell "bigger" with but one "g" he comes quite as near correct orthography as do those who spell negro with two. Really, the democrats have no valid reason for removing Fitzhugh, for his services in the secession cause certainly entitle him to the use of a spanking team and a boy to take his coat and hat at the government expense, and the patronage at his disposal accounts for his intimacy with "the members and Senators;" and if a man who was sergeant-at-arms in the rebel Senate can't spell "bigger" any way he wants to without being hauled over the coals for it by an ex-rebel House, what becomes of our boasted liberties and the glorious Constitution of the United States—say?

Then there is another democratic official to be investigated—Mr. Adams, clerk of the House. He is charged with having sold the offices in his gift for ready money, and been found out—which is what his democratic brethren can't bear. A man who cannot turn an honest penny without being detected isn't fit for a democratic official, so Mr. Adams is to be seriously interviewed. He squarely denies any improper conduct, and may be able to support his denial with proofs in case his investigators should make out a seemingly good case against him; but he may possibly defend himself by saying that he had to buy his own office and therefore it was quite proper for him to sell office to others. The demand for his investigation was made by a democrat, Representative Young of Tennessee.

Taking into consideration the pretensions of the democratic party to be the party of reform, their many years of crying out against official corruption in the republican party and their loud boastings of the latent official purity which the democratic party would develope at the first chance, the showing made by the democratic House is even more pitiful than it is contemptible. It will not make matters any better for the democrats to say that their appointees were supposed to be honest and honorable, and were turned out as soon as they were proven unworthy, for the democrats have for years maintained that dishonest men would not get into office at all under democratic rule. The question may well be asked, if the democrats, with only the limited patronage of the House at their disposal and with a Presidential contest close at hand as an extra inducement to be careful in their selection of men to hold office, have placed so many corrupt men in office in so short a time, what may be expected in case they should secure all branches of the government? The country, we fancy, has had about enough of such "purification of the public service," and will scarcely care to enlarge its area of operations by giving the democrats a victory in November.

News and Notes.

The report of the warden of the Maine State Prison shows that less than seven per cent. of the convicts discharged from that institution during the last twelve years, have been recommitted. Although it is probable, as the warden says, that about as large a percentage as return there find their way into other prisons, still there is left a large proportion of permanent graduates from the criminal classes. A goodly number of men saved to useful and decent life by the right sort of discipline.

William W. Trask, formerly of Nashua, was killed in Tennessee on the 16th inst. by a man from whom he had stolen a horse.

Four men were killed by an explosion at Dupont's Powder Mills at Wilmington, Del., on Saturday.

The residence of ex-Governor Straw at Manchester was entered by burglars Friday night and a large quantity of silver ware carried away. An entrance was gained by boring holes in the window sill and breaking and pushing aside the spring. The booty was carried off in a large table cloth. A cotton bag not large enough for the purpose was left behind. The Governor is in Philadelphia and the ladies at home are unable to state the loss, which, however, is quite large. The whole of the silver in the house was stolen. It is believed to be the same gang who have operated in Nashua.

All the trunk lines announce that they will issue tickets at half fare to delegates attending the National republican convention, to be held June 14, at Cincinnati, and the democratic convention at St. Louis, June 27. Other visitors will be carried at round trip rates of $30 from New York to Cincinnati and return, and at $40.50 from New York to St. Louis and return. Tickets for the Cincinnati convention, good for June 5 to 15 going, and until June 25 for return: tickets for St. Louis convention good from June 5 to 28 going, and until July 10 for return.

Ladies visiting the Centennial are reminded that their bags, lunch baskets, etc., will be examined as they pass out of the Centennial grounds, on account of the fact that the Custom House officials are responsible for all the goods on exhibition, and must see to it that no "smuggling," with the added crime of theft, is indulged in. The best way to avoid the annoyance of a search will be, as is always the case, the utmost openness and frank display of the innocent articles. Nothing will be locked on entering, and probably lunch baskets will be entirely empty on going out, while the satchels or extra wraps may be left at the proper offices at the gates. It is apparent so early in the show that good nature and patience will be required of those who intend to do the Centennial, to say nothing of money and strength.

Mr. Frank H. Sherman, of Castleton, Vt., was badly burned in March last by an explosion of powder, while blasting logs in the woods. His hair and beard were nearly all burnt off, he was shockingly burnt about the neck and arms, and his eyes badly injured. With the exception of his sight, which is still quite imperfect, he has nearly recovered.

The Direction of the Bureau Veritas has published the following statistics of maritime disasters reported during the month of March, 1876, concerning all flags: Sailing vessels reported lost—44 vessels English, 13 French, 8 Dutch, 7 American, 6 German, 3 Austrian, 3 Danish, 3 Norwegian, 3 Swedish, 2 Spanish, 2 Italian, 1 Greek, 1 Peruvian, 1 Russian, 18 of which the nationality is unknown; total, 115; in this number are included 3 vessels reported missing. Steamers reported lost—8 steamers English, 1 American, 1 Spanish, 1 French, 1 Dutch, 3 of which the nationality is unknown; total, 15.

A Cheyenne special says parties of returning Black Hills adventurers are continually arriving there, who state food, ammunition and gold are extremely scarce. They are continually picked off by hostile Sioux, and the latter are now on the plains between the hills and Cheyenne. A party recently arrived found four bodies tomahawked, scalped, and riddled with bullets, on the way out. The miners are disheartened, and two-thirds have left. Custer City once claimed 1200 souls but has now only 300. Hill City has 200 empty cabins and twenty miners. Mountain City has six cabins and two inhabitants. The Deadwood and Whitewood Gulches, where were 1000 people contain now but 200. Little Beaver and Potato Gulches have about twenty-five men.

The President will probably recommend the abrogation of that portion of the Ashburton Treaty providing for the extradition of prisoners. Earl Derby's latest note to this government reaffirms the British argument against the surrender of Winslow without a guarantee that he will not be tried for any other offence than the one which it is proposed to extradite him for. Winslow will then be released from custody.

The Philadelphia and Reading Coal Company are landing coal at their pocket in Newburyport at the rate of 1200 tons a week, and 3000 tons were discharged in three days last week.

A lodge of Knights of Honor, was organized at Newport last week.

Owen Marlowe, an actor who made a famous hit in "Our Boys" at the Globe Theatre, Boston, last Winter, died of consumption Friday evening.

Resumed Business.

The English Pall Mall Gazette says: "The return of a retired brigand to active professional duties is announced from Greece. Petko, one of the most eminent robbers of his time, who had amassed sufficient wealth to enable him to lead the life of a peaceful citizen at Athens, has become disgusted with the ennui of respectability, and has betaken himself to Thrace—the scene of his former exploits—where he is roving and plundering with great success, and with all his former activity. He has lately captured a young woman, for whom he demands a heavy ransom, and has also announced his intention of murdering some intimate friends, who have in his opinion mismanaged some property he left under their care. His proceedings excite unusual interest and admiration, because they are conducted from a pure love of brigandage and not from necessity. Petko recently nearly lost his life when scaling the wall of a house in which lived a lady whom he much admires. A Circassian captieth seeing Petko ascending the wall, fired at the venerable thief, who, however, was happily untouched by the shot, and sliding to the ground, took to his heels and fled with really marvelous activity."

—It is ascertained that the Great Unknown is the business man who don't advertise.

To the Centennial.

The New York and New England Railroad advertises this morning its two routes to New York and Philadelphia—one the old and favorite Norwich line, the other the new through all-rail route without change of cars. By the former the passenger leaves Boston at 6 or 7 P. M. by the express steamboat train, takes the steamer from New London and is landed at Pier 40, North River, adjoining Pennsylvania Railroad Ferry, New York, in the morning. The fare is reduced to $4 to New York, or to $6 to New York and return; $10 to Philadelphia and return. By the other line the traveller is conveyed in Pullman palace cars, if he desires, all the way, the train being transferred from the Harlem River to the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks at Jersey City, on board the steamer Maryland, enabling him to make the entire journey to Philadelphia without leaving his seat or berth. The through express trains by this route leave the New York and New England Railroad station foot of Summer street at 9 A. M., arriving in Philadelphia at 8.50 P. M.,—and at 7 P. M., arriving in Philadelphia at 7 A. M. Regular and excursion tickets and seats or berths in the Pullman cars may be obtained at the office of the line, No. 205 Washington street, and at the station, foot of Summer street, Boston. The facilities afforded by these arrangements are highly appreciated by the travelling public, and the trains are daily liberally patronized.

A Costly Church.

The Cathedral of Mexico, the largest and most costly ecclesiastical structure in America, is built of compact volcanic tufa, cut in blocks about fifteen inches square. It covers an area of about 400 or 500 feet, including an old and richly built church, the first erected in Mexico, which stands against one side of it, and at first is taken as a part of the cathedral itself. It detracts considerably from the grandeur of the main building, which would otherwise be very imposing. It was founded in 1698, and finished just ninety years after, at a cost, while considering that labor was but one-fifth its present value in the United States, of about seven million dollars. Its towers are over three hundred feet in height, and are hung with a great number of bells. It has four main entrances, with grand old carved doors, nearly forty feet square, with two smaller sizes set into them. There are three main rooms of the cathedral, paved with stone. The roof of solid masonry is supported by twenty stone pillars, with a cross section of the form of two figure 8s superposed across each other and about eight feet across. The main altar is very imposing, and rich in statuary, columns of lapis lazuli, gold and paintings. It is connected with the choir by a double balustrade in bronze of more than three hundred feet in length if measured in a straight line. This would be considered a heavy work in wood, and is so rich in alloy of precious metals that the church has been offered a similar one in solid silver in exchange for it. There are not less than thirty deep and lofty alcoves, numerous shrines to the various saints, enriched with a multitude of statuary, paintings and carved work, with masses of gilding of fabulous richness. These recesses are often sixty feet in height, with the entire surface of their sides and arched roofs canvased with paintings, frescoes and gilded carvings. There are not less than sixty private altars and shrines, a great number of organs, thirty confessional chairs, and nearly a thousand oil paintings. Although all looks old and dusty, the display of wealth is astonishing.

—It does not need a study of metaphysics to learn that nothing can be demonstrated, and that what is truth to one may be untruth to another. And yet, when you see a man in the dead of a rainy night give his front door the go-by, and take off his boots and stockings, and climb in the kitchen window, it is a fair presumption that some differences of opinion have been expressed as to the wisdom of his coming in so late.

—What can be more irresistible, asks the Providence Journal, than the charm of golden tresses and a fair complexion heightened by a costume composed of the delicate amethystine hue of wistaria blossoms, combined with the creamy tint so universally becoming and just now in such favor with those who rule the fashionable world?

HAVING NOTICED

The statements in the city papers, that certain persons have been injured by eating pressed corned beef put up in Chicago, and feeling that if not explained these facts will result in injury where we do not belong, and as after a thorough investigation we find that the beef complained of is in every instance beef packed in rolls and enclosed in tin foil by parties unknown to us, and not at all similar to canned beef; therefore we, the undersigned, in simple justice to the public and to the reliable firm that pack the canned article, wish to state that we have for a long time sold Pressed CANNED Corned Beef and Beef Tongues packed in 2, 4, 6 and 14 ℔ cans, by Messrs. Libby, McNeil & Libby of Chicago, and we cheerfully recommend this brand of goods as a safe, nutritious and economical article of food.

Or parties wishing to aid the cause, and preferring to be represented by one or more trees, rather than provide them, can do so by a donation of $5.00 (or any sum they see fit) to the Treasurer.

Citizens willing to contribute labor gratuitously toward the construction of the Park, either of men or teams, are invited to report at the grounds at any time previous to the 23d inst., to assist in setting trees, building fences and embankments, clearing the grounds, etc.

Jottings.

A gentleman of Manchester, intimately connected with the Direct Cable, who has recently returned from England, states that the managers have positive evidence that the cable has been maliciously and intentionally broken or cut at four different times. It is their intention to bring the guilty parties to punishment. A hearing was had before Sir William Thompson and Mr. Brainwell of London, the best scientific authority in England, and it was demonstrated before them that the last two times the cable was cut with an axe.

Schooner Celia, wrecked some time ago at the Shoals has been thoroughly repaired and on Saturday took in her salt for a fishing trip to the Banks, that is, she would have done so, had she not taken the ledge on Church Point instead.

A game of base ball at the Plains, Saturday afternoon, between the Granite State club and a nine from the school ship "Sabine," was won by the former—score 44 to 11.

Steamer Perkiomen arrived Saturday with coal for C. E. Walker & Co., her seventh trip since April 1st.

The trial of David L. Magoon of Raymond, for the murder of his wife, will not take place, as announced, at the special term, which begins here to-day, Judge Foster having forwarded instruction to Sheriff Rowe to adjourn the Court sine die on its assembling. The case will go over to the regular October term.

Great is the talk just now about the South Mill pond, which, as a writer on the subject says, is little worse now than it has been for a quarter-century; while the North pond, which is growing more and more dreadful every summer, seems to have been forgotten. There is probably a hundred times as much odor from the rotten nastiness emanating from the breweries at the West End, as comes from the flats of the South pond. It may be healthy, but the West Enders are not swine.—Journal.

The annual meeting of the P. S. & P. R. R. corporation will be held at Kittery on Monday, June 5th.

The only New Hampshire patent for the week ending May 12, is to S. Thompson, Portsmouth, machine for pressing and grinding bark.

James Moses, Esq., has been appointed auditor of the finances of the Old Ladies' Home, and the books will be open to the inspection of the public at any time.

Collector Howard and his subordinates at the Custom House have planted two trees at the park, a white oak and a walnut.

Among the spots selected at the park for the planting is a central plot to be christened with a tree commemorative of the oldest lady in this city, Mrs. Pitchard, who is now over 95 years of age.

At a disinterment of bodies in Greenland last week preparatory to their removal to a family lot, it was found that a bunch of myrtle placed on the breast of a little child buried sixteen years ago, was as fresh as if gathered the day before. Even the shroud was in a good state of preservation.

Political.

Joseph B. Stewart, formerly a partner of A. G. Riddle and the man whom Riddle says delivered certain railroad bonds to Mr. Blaine, in a letter to the Tribune says: "I never had any business transactions with him in any shape, manner or form in my life, and I denounce as false every statement to the contrary, let it come from what source it may."

The friends of Mr. Blaine claim 217 delegates already chosen; giving Morton 100; Conkling 60; Bristow 63; Hartranft, 58; Hayes 44; Scattering or unknown 32.

Senator Morton's friends think Mr. Blaine is the only man they have reason to fear. The Indianapolis Journal says the contest is practically between Morton and Blaine, since there is no human probability of Bristow's nomination, very little chance for Conkling, and none for the "favorite sons." It does not think either will be nominated on the first ballot, and suspects it to be quite possible that the prize may be carried off by some man not at present prominently mentioned.

It is a great comfort to read this assurance in the Indianapolis Journal: "Senator Morton does not put on much style, but he has been in Washington long enough to learn the rudiments of good manners, and is reasonably well-behaved. He doesn't chew tobacco, nor drink, nor swear, nor eat with his knife, nor pick his teeth with his fork. On the whole, we think he will do for President quite as well as Mr. Bristow."

The Boston Herald, commenting on the "Ole Bill Allen" rag-baby victory in the Ohio democratic State convention, says "any candidate the republicans may nominate will carry the State."

The prospects of Blaine for securing the republican nomination for President at the coming convention in Cincinnati are daily increasing. We feel very certain that he will bear the republican standard in this Centennial year, and we know that under his leadership victory is assured.—Gold Hill (Nev.) News.

The republicans have had a large number of fac-similes of Fitzhugh's letter struck off, and are circulating them as a campaign document.

There are signs that General Hancock is to be pressed to the front with renewed vigor as the democratic candidate for President.

Peter Cooper is eighty-six years of age and says that he is too old to endure the fatigues of the Presidential campaign as a candidate.

Bayard is coming along steadily on the St. Louis track. Mr. Lamar declares that he is stronger in the South than the others in the race, and Maryland is enthusiastic for him.

Hon. Shelby M. Cullom seems to have the best chance for the republican nomination for Governor of Illinois.

A hard-money platform will not slip through the St. Louis convention very smoothly.

There is no doubt that the New Jersey delegation is almost solid for Blaine, but it is made up of tolerably independent men. Curiously enough the second choice of half of them, or more, is Secretary Fish.

Lancaster's delegates to the State convention are said to be divided between Blaine and Bristow. They are B. F. Whidden, Jacob Benton, Ossian Ray and Dexter Chase.

Kentucky republicans have elected twenty-four Bristow delegates to Cincinnati, and adopted the following resolution: As Kentucky gave Abraham Lincoln to his country and mankind for the great work by him, she now presents Benjamin H. Bristow to complete the correction of the ills ever incident to war. His past conduct in office is an earnest evidence of his future course. He has been true to republican principles in war and peace; ever manly, calm and courageous, and ever faithful in the discharge of his duty. His persistent and successful warfare against corruption deserves the thanks of all friends of honest government. In thus presenting and commending our fellow-citizen to the republican National Convention. We are not unmindful of the distinguished services and worth of other republicans. We trust the Cincinnati convention will present as candidates men whose allegiance to the party has been proved and who have moral courage to enforce the law.

The Centennial Opening.

Leaving the ground at 10.45 o'clock, between the chest of a stout gentleman from Baltimore and the spine of a member of the legislature from Hartford, I was rolled, at first vertically and then almost horizontally, between a succession of variously muffled human cylinders moving compactly toward the Girard Avenue Bridge. Reaching a cross-street between the left shoulder of a Unitarian clergyman and the right shoulder of an Austrian merchant, I asked an Arabian Emir in the neighborhood whether my nat had passed him. "I golly, mars', s'elp me goodness, I'se only seen the lining of my own hat dese two hours," returned the dignitary of the desert; and as the two gentlemen in the rear who were holding my feet between their hips, pushed onward, I advanced beyond the speaker several blocks, and found my face flattening against the spring bonnet of a maiden lady of mature years. Essaying to make a pass at me with her parasol, but embarrassed therein by the fact that either arm was pinioned to her side by four trunk dealers from Walnut street, and three peach raisers from Delaware, she compromised by endeavoring to sell me a magazine for which she was agent. Fortunately, however, the seven residents of Brooklyn and the vicinity, who had the upper portions of my body in charge between them, made a desperate combined effort at the moment to stand me on my head, and in the rush I went fairly over the voluble damsel, with the top of my head against the pink necktie of a young man of atheistical language from Pittsburg. Passing over several ensuing hours in the air, during which I examined alternately and minutely the coat-collars, elbows, back-buttons and boots of a greater number of my abusive fellow-countrymen than ever wondered before what, in the name of all that is inflammable, I was trying to do with myself, allow me to report that the extreme tops of all the Exhibition buildings are arranged in an exceedingly able manner, to the imperishable credit of the parties concerned. The procession of the President, guests and escort was the most brilliant pageant that I never caught sight of; Wagner's March exceeded in grandeur of effect any piece of concerted instrumentation that I never was able to hear a note of; Whittier's Hymn equalled the grandest devotional verse that was ever wholly inaudible to me; the speeches of the Chief Magistrate and of the Commissioners were more fraught with homely common sense than any oratorical efforts that I have ever been totally unable to listen to; and Mr. Lanier's cantata was as faultless, in its way, as any production of the kind that never reached my ears. As for the manifold splendors of the interiors of the Exhibition buildings, they are simply without parallel in any international fairs not yet beheld by yours, nearly suffocated, — Orpheus C. Kerr, in N. Y. Graphic.

Raising the "Vanguard."

The London Standard says:—the attempt to raise the "Vanguard" [the British ironclad run down and sunk in deep water some time ago,] is now on the eve of being made, but some preliminary arrangements are necessary before it can be commenced. The advertisement for tenders on the part of the Lords of the Admiralty, in December last, elicited more than 450 replies, and a contract for raising the vessel has been entered into with a French civil engineer who has for a considerable time been a resident in England. The method he proposes to adopt is as follows:—Caissons are to be used having a measurement of ten feet in diameter, and eleven feet in length. They are to be provided with two rings at the top and bottom, and to each of the lower rings there will be two feet of chain, having a hook attacked. These chains and hooks are to be used to facilitate the attaching process to the "Vanguard." The contractor intends to attach the caissons to any good hold-fast, such as portholes, etc., and as the ship is now lying on her starboard side at an angle of 70 degrees, he further intends to right her, and to pass a chain under her, going under her stern and sternposts so as to make a cradle. This chain he will attach to the caissons. In the interior of the ship about two thousand air balloons will be placed, each having a lifting power in water of one ton. The first work of the divers below will be to attach the caissons by the chains to the vessel, until a sufficient number of caissons have been lowered to float the ship. Of course she will only rise gradually, so the contractor intends to draw her to shallow water, and when he has brought her to sixty feet or thereabouts, from the level of the sea to her keel, he will lower a floating dock and catch her. The method has never been tried in practice, and we hope it may prove successful. The caissons are to be made of iron, as they are to have air pumped into them equal to three atmospheres, so as to counterbalance the pressure of the water. The operations will be carried on with great difficulty, as it is very dark at the depth of nineteen fathoms. However, it is intended to try electric lights as well as submarine lamps. In November the "Vanguard" was eight feet six inches in the sand, and since then we understand that more sand has drifted round her.

—A Western paper speaks of a duel between two "jackasperated individuals."

Shattered Constitutions Rebuilt.

In the use of a wholesome invigorant lies the only hope of rebuilding a shattered constitution. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are not only an eminently wholesome tonic, but they rectify with most satisfactory promptitude derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels which are incompatible with a return of health and strength. When the system is enfeebled by disease, by the wear and tear of business life, by continuous mental anxiety, by the exhaustion consequent upon late hours and fast living, by over-work and by sedentary habits, the Bitters are the most reliable medicinal agent for imparting permanent vigor to the debilitated frame. The new stock of vitality which they infuse into broken down physique, and the orderly action which they establish among the organs of secretion, digestion and evacuation, moreover, constitute its best safeguard against malarial disease.

The best men in the country use Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam. Bankers, clergymen, farmers, lawyers, merchants, mechanics and physicians unite in testifying to its remarkable curative power.

A Fine Thing for the Teeth.

The fragrant SOZODONT has taken a very prominent place among the most approved dentrifices of the day. It is a very popular article for the toilet, highly recommended by all who have used it, as a beautifier and preserver of the teeth, refreshing the mouth, sweetening the breath, and arresting the progress of decay.

Spalding's Glue mends Furniture, Toys, etc.

LYON'S KATHAIRON prevents the Hair from falling out or turning gray, renews its growth, and gives strength and vigor. It is delightfully perfumed, and makes a splendid dressing. It is the cheapest and most desirable Hair Tonic ever produced. Used by the elite. Price only 50 cents.

ARMSTRONG'S
LINCOLN BUTTER POWDER.
Good Fresh Butter All The Year Round.
BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.
Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the butter counties around Philadelphia.
In hot weather this Powder makes butter much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cotton seed, etc.; and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

Chinese Ambition.

"Talking of Chinamen," said the naval officer, "reminds me of a curious thing. The other day I went up town to see (mentioning a Chinese merchant on Sacramento Street). I know his wife well; knew her in China. She's got two of the smartest little daughters you ever saw. Every time I go to see her she makes 'em sing for me."

"Chinese songs?"

"No, sir; American songs, you bet. She's got a teacher for 'em, and they just tickle a piano now as fine as anything in the land. Well, the last time I was to see them, the old woman says to me, 'You sabee lille Gelman gelle?' I says 'yes, I sabee little German girl; what about her?' 'Well, she says, 'You catchee me one lille Gelman gelle, me givee you fittee dollah.' I didn't know but what the old woman might be doing some kidnapping business on the sly, so I told her pretty short I wasn't that sort of a man. 'I wouldn't do nothing of the kind,' says I, 'if you paid me a thousand dollars.' 'Oh,' she says, 'you no sabee. Me no want to makee bim bad gelle. Me makee bim alle same Ah See'—that's her own eldest little girl. 'Why wouldn't an American girl do you? says I. 'Oh,' she says, 'me no want Mellican gelle; too muchee diess; too muchee fly alound.' And do you know what the durned critter's idea is? said the naval gentleman, reaching for his companion's tobacco box. Why, she thinks that by getting a little German girl and bringing her up with her own children, she'd be able to take them into white society when they grow up."—San Francisco Post.

Symptoms of Catarrh.

ACHSAH:

A New England Life Study.

By REV. PETER PENOT. 12 mo, cloth.....$1.50.

The manly, whole souled, and devoted young clergyman is no fancy sketch; Deacon Sterne, the sanctimonious hypocrite; the plain-talking old maid sister; the sneaking, spying aunt, are life-like and real, while the heroine, ACHSAH, is a lovely character, with whom the reader is in deep sympathy. MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Fever, Ague, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon returned for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE,—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have not been able to work. For three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my medicine I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Boston Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package did me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several friends, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured the medicine for a friend, and he reported himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give hundreds before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have tried several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and sent last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be indiscreet to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Trouble Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefitted. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

All necessary for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them a speedy and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lungs trying climate of the Seaboard,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

SCHENCKIANA.

Thus rules the festive gamboliaire:
Never bet on a single pair,
For three of a kind will beat you square,
Or even a straight will lead that are;
But if a full your hand shall bear,
Your chance to win may be counted fair—
That is, if your three are away up there;
Kings may do, but by aces swear,
Though four of a kind may make you stare,
Or a royal flush lift the four hand's hair.
Therefore, draw, boys, draw with care
And shift your cards with a careless air,
That when at last to call you dare,
You may "rake the pile" of the gay croupaire.

Remarkable Escape.

We have to chronicle one of the most remarkable escapes from instant death that we ever heard of. Thursday morning, about 8 or 9 o'clock, Charles McDonald and another man, were driving in a buggy up the Union Pass road over to Empire, when near the curve close to the summit, instead of letting the horses have their head, the driver, who is reported to have been under the influence of liquor, tried to keep straight on. The result was that the right side wheels of the buggy dropped off the road, throwing the two men out. The horses then wheeled into the road, jerked the buggy back and soon kicked loose, leaving it in the road, while they ran off down the Bard Creek slope. Dr. Von De Voort, who was coming over from Empire on horseback, hurried forward to the scene of the accident, and saw the two men lying nearly three hundred feet below the road, on the side of the mountain, where they had fallen, rolled and tumbled. He hurried down to them, and was met by Wm. Mendenhall and Fletch. Kelso, who had seen the accident from the valley, and came up. The two men were found to be but slightly injured, scratched up somewhat about the face, but without any severe bruises or broken bones. They were assisted back to the road, and went over to Mr. Veers' residence. We place this miraculous escape on record, and challenge any part of Colorado to equal it. The mountain-side where they went over is quite precipitous, and bristles with rough and jagged rocks, which rendered the escape of both the men from serious injury the more marvelous.—Colorado Miner.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,
For Restoring Gray Hair
TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY & COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them induce it to shed prematurely.
AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores the color, when faded or gray.
It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashey, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which condition, diseases of the scalp are impossible.
As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

A Word to Foreign Visitors.

A Philadelphia correspondent of the New York Tribune writes as follows concerning one phase of American social life which is and must be a perpetual surprise to visitors from European cities, where the appearance of a woman on the street unattended by a male companion, even in the day time, makes her liable to the broadest suspicions, and after dark is accepted as proof positive that she is of the vilest class:

It might as well be understood from the first by the foreign visitors who will pour in upon us during the coming Summer that our social conditions are not always equivalent to those in the Old World. Broadly stated, it is and has been for long the custom for American women to walk unattended through the streets of large cities when duty or inclination calls them forth. Let it be understood as an axiom by our visitors from the Continent that the Philadelphia, New York, or Cincinnati lady does not need the escort or protection of servant or masculine friend whene'er she chooses to take her walks abroad. Foreign eyes look askance at the crowds of demoiselles, gay, laughing school-girls, shoppers or callers, who throng Broadway and Chestnut street, Walnut street and the Avenue on bright afternoons unchaperoned and unduenna-ed, and explanation is required of this—to them—novel feature in our civilization. Whatever difference of opinion may exist among us as to the value and result of this educational freedom, perhaps in view of all this army of coming critics, it would be well for the damsels aforesaid to take upon them a little more reserve than has been their careless wont. The sunny insouciance of the American girl is very fresh and sweet in its unconsciousness of the world's sharp eyes and bitter tongue. But we must remember that we are really, as a nation, going upon the stage this Summer. And as more strict decorum is required upon the stage, the focus of eyes and opera-glasses, than in the parlor or library at home, we shall expect American girls to take the hint.

But there is another distinctive feature, a social etiquette peculiarly our own, which it is well also to have understood by the visiting Jews and tribes. It is that American ladies may and do walk unattended in the streets, after dark, and suffer no loss of respectability thereby; nor are they permitted to be the subjects of insult or insolent approach. A mother and daughter, or two sisters, oftimes a lady entirely alone, may walk out in the evening to church, to a lecture or concert, to visit a friend or attend to business, as composedly as though it were broad daylight; and as securely too, in any part of the city to which such ladies may be called to go. The years have long gone by in which a woman felt herself compelled perforce to remain at home, in the evening, unless the smallest specimen of masculinity, the small boy, could be found to play protector. Perhaps it was by reason of these very small boys that the absurdity of the situation became patent; perhaps it began in the war time, when women learned to post their own letters and pay their own bills; to buy "extras" along the street; and to meet incoming railway trains at midnight, if peradventure he might be there. It seems, however, that the text needs expounding to our guests. In Philadelphia, already putting on polyglot ways, two ladies walking through a quiet street in the early evening were approached by a foreigner with familiar salutation. Much annoyed, they appealed to a gentleman passing for a word that would rid them of the embarrassment. The gentleman, roundly and wrathfully rating the offender, asked him how he dared speak to those ladies. "Ladies, mon Dieu?" was the mystefied rejoinder, "but they are not ladies. Ladies are not in the streets at this hour, alone!" Perhaps a word to the wise visitor will be sufficient. Perhaps a sharper lesson will be needed to make it undoubted that in this country pure women—ladies—do walk out in the evening unattended, as occasion calls them forth, the loyal respect of American men no less than their own dignity and womanly deportment their sufficient guard.

News and Notes.

The Brown's Lumber Company's paper box board factory at Whitefield, recently built at a cost of $60,000, was entirely destroyed by fire Sunday morning. The mill had shut down at 12 o'clock, and no one was about when the fire caught. The company have the most thorough appliances for extinguishing fire, and had it been discovered earlier the building would undoubtedly have been saved. The factory will not be rebuilt, as there is little sale for the material manufactured.

S. B. Varrell's boarding house, in Laconia, was burned Saturday morning. It was owned by Richard Gove. Loss $2500; insurance $1000. Probably incendiary.

Dr. S. H. Wade of Concord has fled the State, having caused the death by abortion of a young widow lady who went to him from another town for aid.

From the fact that Hon. Newton Morse of Natick, who succeeded the forger Winslow in the Senatorship of the Fourth Massachusetts district, has run away with $3000 belonging to the town of Natick, it would appear either that only knaves are eligible to that particular office, or that the position itself is infected by the disease of scoundrelism, and every incumbent takes it in the natural way.

The editor of the Busy Bee, published at Blanco, Texas, was warned to leave town because he commented on the impropriety of stealing cattle. The chief of the gentlemanly cow stealers waited upon the editor.

John B. Ferris, a prominent citizen, and ex-Mayor of Oakland, Cal., committed suicide, Saturday morning, by jumping overboard from a steamer on the way to Sacramento, having first tied his feet together and taken laudanum. The supposed cause is unfortunate speculation in stocks.

A small, unoccupied dwelling on Chestnut street, Nashua, belonging to Albert Shedd, was burned by an incendiary, Friday night. Loss $200.

The President has nominated Edwards Pierrepont, now Attorney-General, to be minister to Great Britain; Alphonzo Taft, now Secretary of War, to be Attorney-General; and J. Donald Cameron, son of Simon Cameron, to be Secretary of War.

Political.

The Providence Journal says the clear, candid and convincing remarks of Mr. Ballou on the report which, in his absence, his colleagues made on the Government Printing Office, afford abundant confirmation of the statements concerning the purpose of the investigation, the injustice of the conclusions of the committee, and the methods by which they were reached. A secret investigation, the accused officer denied the fundamental right of being confronted with the witnesses against him, the testimony largely from men who had a direct interest in a conviction, and who were subjected to no cross-examination on the part of the accused—all these fitly end in the "reform" of taking the publication of the debates of Congress from the government office, and giving it to a democratic politician on his own terms! These are the conspicuous features of the investigation. No one can read Mr. Ballou's report and the remarks with which he followed it, without being convinced that the whole proceeding was undertaken for party ends.

Dorsheimer has bet a thousand dollars that Tilden will be nominated at St. Louis, and that he will carry New York State by 30,000 majority.

The Syracuse Courier notes with keen satisfaction the movement to bring forward Horatio Seymour as a Presidential candidate.

The Exeter News-Letter, which has been teeming with two-column editorials and cart-loads of Bristow items for the past two months, (all other candidates being mentioned only by way of opposition,) seems to be without honor in its own country. It made a strong appeal last week for the republicans to rally en masse at the caucus Saturday night—and they did, electing seven Blaine delegates and one for Bristow. Rockingham county seems nearly solid for Blaine.

The caucuses at Concord on Saturday evening were largely attended, there being a lively contest between the friends of Col. Larkin, candidate for Postmaster, and the friends of Hon. William E. Chandler, who is a candidate for delegate-at-large to Cincinnati. The anti-Chandler men carried four wards, and the Chandler men one. The delegation is said to be evenly divided between Blaine and Bristow. Mr. Chandler was defeated as a delegate by two votes.

Every little while there is a paragraph printed calling attention to the fact that no man whose name began with C was ever elected President. It is also true that no man whose name began with X was ever elected President; and yet there have been many ex-Presidents.—Chicago Times.

The republican State convention will meet at Concord to-morrow at eleven o'clock A. M., to elect ten delegates to the Cincinnati convention. A meeting of the State committee will be held this afternoon at the Eagle Hotel at four o'clock, which all delegates are invited to attend. Those leaving this city by the noon freight train will arrive in Concord in season to attend the committee meeting.

A Brooklyn man writes thus sensibly to the New York Tribune: Has it not become ridiculously characteristic of the Yankee nation to ignore men who have stood the test of time and take up some new idol in whom they imagine they have discovered all the virtues of an Aristides. They pass by the Clays, the Websters, the Chases, the Sumners, and the Blaines, and take the Taylors, and Scotts, and Johnsons, and Grants, and Bristows. I do not wish to find any fault with Mr. Bristow. He may be the best man in all our land for President, but he is comparatively unknown. There seems to be a very universal distrust of public men, but I am not willing to admit that honest men are so rare that when found they should be made an object of worship, or be immediately made President.

When offering Bristow, the Kentucky republicans endorsed President Grant's administration.

The New Haven (Conn.) Union sees it in this light: "Blaine is gaining all around, and if it is true that arrangements are being made to transfer the Morton vote to him in case the latter stands no show, his nomination at Cincinnati is quite probable. On Wednesday the New Jersey republicans elected a solid delegation in his favor, and yesterday the Delaware republicans followed suit. It now seems certain that he will secure the Illinois delegation next Wednesday. With solid delegations from seven or eight States, and a large scattering vote to lead off with, he will lead all other candidates. On the second pull many of the delegations will fall into line for the strongest man, having first cast complimentary votes for their favorites. It is quite probable that the ten votes that will be cast by the Connecticut delegation on the first ballot for Jewell, will go to Blaine on the second. The friends of Conkling are boasting loudly of the strength of their favorite, but the only object is to weaken Blaine. As for Bristow, he will cut a sorry figure. He will get the Kentucky vote and a few scattering votes on the first ballot, and then he will drop out of the race entirely. Hayes will be supported by Ohio at first, but Blaine is understood to be the second choice of most of the delegates, as in the case of Pennsylvania. We are inclined to the belief that Maine's 'favorite son' is to lead the republican hosts in the Fall campaign."

Were it not that the advocates of Mr. Bristow declare that all "the politicians"—as distinguished from themselves, "the reformers,"—are working for Messrs. Blaine, Hayes or some other candidate who has been longer known to the country at large than has Mr. Bristow, impartial observers might imagine some very able politicians had surreptitiously introduced themselves into the ranks of the reformers, for the Bristow men certainly go at their work after one of the most approved plans of "politicians"—shout all you can for your own side, and run down all other candidates and their supporters.

Milford has chosen five Blaine and one Bristow delegates to the State convention.

Senator Booth of California proposes to act with the republicans in the forthcoming campaign.

When Abraham Lincoln first ran for President, Mr. Bristow stumped the State of Kentucky for Bell & Everett.

The Blaine candidacy is assuming very formidable proportions.—Cin. Times.

—A wager of a novel description was made and decided recently at Maryborough, Queensland, Australia. An old and dilapidated pocket-book, containing a £10 note, was thrown in the middle of the street, opposite the Postoffice Hotel. The bet was that 100 persons would pass by without picking it up. The number who passed was 140, and three of these kicked but did not pick it up. A dog finally picked it up and carried it to the hotel.

—Acting on a point of etiquette, the Japs at the exhibition refrain from desecrating the Christian day of rest, and religiously spend their time in grinding their axes and setting their saws on Sundays.

—A Columbia professor, reproving a youth for the exercise of his fists, said: "We fight with our heads, here." The youth replied that butting was not considered fair at his last school.

Arbor Day.

If the weather be pleasant to-day, the dedication of the new Park will be a most interesting occasion. A procession with Col. William H. Sise as Chief Marshal, will form on Market Square at 1:30 P. M., Capt. Jacob Haddock's Portsmouth City Guards acting as escort, the Naval Band furnishing the music. The various organizations which have accepted invitations to take part will be escorted through Congress and Middle streets, Richards Avenue and South street to the Park, from which carriages will be excluded. The exercises will include music by the Band; invocation by Rev. Dr. Alden; remarks by Hon. Frank W. Miller, chairman of the Board of Trustees; address by Rev. James DeNormandie; and brief speeches from others. The procession will disband at the Park, and each organization will dedicate its own trees. Visitors are requested not to meddle with the trees or shrubbery. Should the weather be stormy, the dedication will be postponed until the first fair day.

The storekeepers generally are invited to close their stores at 12 o'clock, noon. It is hoped there will be a general response to this request.

Should the weather be so unsettled as to probably leave the public in doubt as to whether or not the dedication will take place, the committee's decision will be announced by the town crier.

Memorial Day.

The following organizations have notified the committee on Memorial Day observances of their acceptance of the invitation to take part in the procession: The City Government, Veteran Artillery Company, Portsmouth Heavy Artillery, Kearsarge S. F. E. Company, Temperance Reform Club, Board of Engineers, Dearborn S. F. E. Company.

In response to the invitation to Strawberry Bank Encampment, I. O. O. F., a committee has been appointed to canvass the Encampment and report at the next meeting, May 26.

The preparation of the floral car is in charge of Mr. Oliver M. Knight.

The various sub-committees are working zealously and effectively, and the observances of the day will be characterized by more than ordinary impressiveness.

The Naval and Portsmouth Cornet bands and the Drum Corps will furnish music, and the route of the procession will be well sprinkled.

Col. Russell H. Conwell, of Boston, will deliver the oration before the memorial mass meeting in the evening.

Jottings.

Schooner Plymouth, from Maitland, N. S., for this port, put into St. John, N. B., for repairs, having lost sails in a gale.

A sufficient number of passengers have been secured to insure the proposed trip of the well known steamer "Isaac Bell" from Newburyport to Philadelphia on Saturday next. The steamer will arrive at Newburyport on Thursday noon. The time of sailing is set at three o'clock, Saturday afternoon. The school teachers of Newburyport are to have a week's vacation and contemplate making the trip. The expense is light, $30 to $50, including board and lodging, and no such commodious and comfortable way is offered in other directions. Excursionists will be well cared for and well fed, and will not be blinded by dust or smoke, will waste no time and will encounter less confusion and fatigue than by rail. The "Isaac Bell" is a side wheel steamer of 1600 tons, very steady—and there is little liability to sea-sickness.

"Are you aware, ladies, that those lovely birds you admire on your hats were flayed alive to preserve their feathers more securely to the skin? Such is the stubborn fact." The foregoing extract, clipped from some paper, is handed us by a lady member of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals with a request that we publish it. On what authority the assertion is made we do not know, but if proof of its truth were made public it should—and would—destroy a business prosecuted with such refinement of infernal cruelty. Not to dazzle the eyes of men—not to outshine and persecute other women even, do we believe the ladies generally would wear ornaments procurable only through the exquisite tortures of the most beautiful and harmless of God's creatures.

The literary contents of this number are as follows: "Modern Methods in Navigation and Astronomy;" "Norman Macleod;" "First Days in Natal," by Lady Barker; "Some Truths About Egypt;" "La Scala," the famous Opera-House of Milan; "The Old Stone-mason," by Frederick Locker; "Professor Tyndall's Experiments on Spontaneous Generation;" "Mrs. Thrale; the friend of Dr. Johnson;" "Mysterious Sounds;" "A Holiday;" "Maxims and Reflections from the German of Goethe;" "Some Recent Observations on Ants;" "Literary Impostures, Concealments, and Mysteries;" additional chapters of Mrs. Alexander's "Her Dearest Foe;" and copious editorial notes on home and foreign literature, science, and art. York.

The venerable Dr. J. S. Putnam, who is now almost an octogenarian, and who has been in constant practice here for 55 years, is still enjoying good health, has full practice in his profession, and is daily making his visits. In proof that he has not been idle, all these years, and is appreciated by his townspeople, I would say that his record of births as attended by him to this time numbers 3197. Dr. Putnam has now in his possession, a Silver Tankard taken at the reduction of Louisburg in 1745, by Capt. Jeremiah Moulton, who commanded the York Company under Col. Wm. Pepperrell.

Capt. Moulton, afterward Colonel and Sheriff, has left numerous lineal descendants, among whom, now living in York, are G. W. S. Putnam, Esq., Chas. C. Barrell, Esq., Jeremiah McIntire, Geo. P. Thompson, Esq., Capts. A. L. Emerson and F. P. Emerson; also Mrs. Williamson of Boston, widow of the late Judge Williamson of Bangor.

Frederic Lowell, Esq., and his sisters and sisters, children of John Lowell, Esq., late of Sandwich, Maine; John P. Lyman, late of Portsmouth, deceased with his sisters Lucretia, Mrs. Kittredge and Mrs. Long,—are descendants of the daughters of Col. Moulton.

Rev. G. W. Adams, late pastor of the North church, and Mrs. Hannah Manent, wife of G. Manent of Portsmouth, together with a numerous progeny in the State of Maine are from the sons of Col. Moulton.

A Philosophic Milkman.

We went over to see Biles, our milkman, recently, and we found him in the back yard mending the sucker of his pump. In reply to a jocular remark about his dairy being in a bad way when the pump was out of order, Biles said:

"Oh, I ain't going to deny we water the milk. I don't mind the joking about it. But all I say is that when people say we do it from mercenary motives they slander the profession. No, sir, when I put water in the milk I do it out of kindness for the people who drink it. I do it because I'm philanthropic, because I'm sensitive and can't bear to see folks suffer. Now, s'pos'n a cow is billious or something, and it makes her milk unwholesome, I give it a dash or two of water, and up it comes to the usual level. Water's the only thing that'll do it. Or, s'pos'n that cow eats a p'ison vine in the woods, am I going to let my innocent customers be killed by it for the sake of saving a little labor at the pump? No, sir; I sluice in a few quarts of water, neutralize the p'ison, and there she is right as a trivet.

But you take the best milk that ever was and it ain't fit for the human stomach as it comes from the cow. It has too much caseine in it. Professor Huxley says that millions of poor ignorant men and women are murdered every year by loading down weak stomachs with caseine. It kinder sucks up the gastric juice, he says, and gets daubed all around over the insides until the pores are choked, and then the first thing you know the man suddenly curls all up and dies. He says that out yer in Asia where the milkmen are not as conscientious as we are, there are whole cemeteries chuck full of people that have died of caseine, and that before long all that country will be one vast burying ground if they don't ameliorate the milk. When I think of the responsibility resting on me is it singular that I look at this old pump and wonder that people don't come and silver-plate it and put my statue on it? I tell you, sir, that that humble pump with the cast-iron handle is the only thing that stands betwixt you an sudden death!

And, besides that, you know how kinder flat raw milk tastes; kinder insipid and mean. Now, Professor Huxley, he says that there is only one thing that will vivify milk and make it luxurious to the palate, and that is water. Give it a few jerks under the pump and out it comes sparkling and delicious, like nectar. I dunno how it is, but Professor Huxley says that it undergoes some kinder chemical change, that nothing else'll bring about but a flavoring of fine old pump water. You know the doctors all water the milk for babies. They know mighty well if they didn't those young ones'd shrink all up and sorter fade away. Nature is the best judge. What makes cows drink so much water? Instinct, sir, instinct. Something whispers to them that if they don't sluice in a little water that caseine'd make them giddy and eat them up. Now, what's the odds whether I put in the water or the cow does? She's only a poor brute beast, and might often drink too little; but when I go at it I bring the mighty human intellect to bear on the subject; I am guided by reason and I can water that milk so it'll have the greatest possible effect.

Now there's chalk. I know some people have an idea that it's wrong to fix up your milk with chalk, but that's only mere blind bigotry. What is chalk? A substance provided by beneficent nature for healing the ills of the body. A cow don't eat chalk, because it's not needed by her. Poor, uneducated animal, she can't grasp these higher problems, and she goes on nibbling sour grass and other things, and filling her milk with acid, which destroys human membranes and induces colic. Then science comes to the rescue. Professor Huxley tells us that chalk cures acidity. Consequently I get some chalk, stir it in my cans and save the membranes of my customers without charging them a cent for it—actually give it away, and yet they talk about milkmen as if we were buccaneers.

But I don't care. My conscience is clear. I know mighty well that I have a high and holy mission to perform, and I'm going to perform it if they burn me at the stake. What do I care how much this pump costs me if it spreads blessings through the community? What difference does it make to a man of honor like me if chalk is six cents a pound so long as I know that without it there wouldn't be a membrane in this community? Now look at the thing in the right light and you will believe with me that before another century rolls around a grateful universe will worship the memory of the first milkman who ever had a pump and who doctored his milk with chalk. It will upless justice is never to have her own."

Then Mr. Biles rigged the sucker in the pump, toned up a few cans of milk, corrected the acidity, and went into the house to receipt our bill.—Phil. Bulletin.

—Somebody said to Fred. Douglass not long since, "By the way, Mr. Douglass, I have forgotten your age." "I am not astonished in the least," said Fred with a laugh. "I have forgotten it myself—in point of fact, I never knew it." In the days of slavery such trifling matters were not recorded.

—A Paris fashion journal declares that in less than five years knee-breeches and six-inch skirts will be the fashionable street dress for ladies.

Shattered Constitutions Rebuilt.

In the use of a wholesome invigorant lies the only hope of rebuilding a shattered constitution. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are not only an eminently wholesome tonic, but they rectify with most satisfactory promptitude derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels which are incompatible with a return of health and strength. When the system is enfeebled by disease, by the wear and tear of business life, by continuous mental anxiety, by the exhaustion consequent upon late hours and fast living, by over-work and by sedentary habits, the Bitters are the most reliable medicinal agent for imparting permanent vigor to the debilitated frame. The new stock of vitality which they infuse into broken down phisique, and the orderly action which they establish among the organs of secretion, digestion and evacuation, moreover, constitute its best safeguard against malarial disease.

The best men in the country use Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam. Bankers, clergymen, farmers, lawyers, merchants, mechanics and physicians unite in testifying to its remarkable curative power.

A Fine Thing for the Teeth.

The fragrant SOZODONT has taken a very prominent place among the most approved dentrifices of the day. It is a very popular article for the toilet, highly recommended by all who have used it, as a beautifier and preserver of the teeth, refreshing the mouth, sweetening the breath, and arresting the progress of decay.

Spalding's Glue mends Furniture, Toys, etc.

LYON'S KATHAIRON prevents the Hair from falling out or turning gray, renews its growth, and gives strength and vigor. It is delightfully perfumed, and makes a splendid dressing. It is the cheapest and most desirable Hair Tonic ever produced. Used by the elite. Price only 50 cents.

Good Fresh Butter All The Year Round.
BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.
Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the butter counties around Philadelphia.
In hot weather this Powder makes better much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cotton seed, etc.; and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

Daily Chronicle.

—An Indiana girl at college writes home to her parents after the following elegant style: "This is the most stylish hairpin of a boarding-school I ever tumbled to. I can eat four times a day, if I want to, and get a fair hack at the hash every time."

—A carpenter on Ida Hill, who has the misfortune to be permanently lame from an accident received in the prosecution of his trade some years ago, has a dog which is his almost constant companion. This dog, although perfectly sound in wind and limb, invariably limps when in company with his master, but at all other times is as nimble and frisky as a colt. Whether it is a case of sympathy—fellow-feeling for a fellow-being—or not we cannot state, but respectfully submit the case to scientists, assuring them that the story is strictly true. —Troy Budget.

—The Emperor of Brazil met his match on the outward trip to San Francisco in the person of Natchez, an untutored Piute chief who was permitted to ride on the train from Winnemucca to Humboldt. The chief addressed the Emperor as "Capeten;" said he was "Capeten" himself. The Emperor began to chaff his savage contemporary; inquired the name and number of his tribe, how many children he had, what they ate. Finally the Emperor asked: "Natchez, how many squaw you got?" The Indian chief distended his eyes, and, throwing up his arms with a ringing laugh, remarked to the bevy of bystanders, "Oh, he Capeten, he bad man; he talkee squaw; he heap bad." The Emperor returned into the privacy of his car amid a roar of laughter.—Chicago Tribune.

Symptoms of Catarrh.

Dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharge falling into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery, acrid, thick and tenacious mucous, purulent, muco-purulent, bloody, putrid, offensive, etc. In others, a dryness, dry, watery, weak, or inflamed eyes, ringing in ears, deafness, hawking and coughing to clear the throat, ulceration, scales from ulcers, voice altered, nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired smell and taste, dizziness, mental depression, tickling cough, etc. Only a few of the above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time. When applied with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, and accompanied with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as constitutional treatment, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy produces perfect cures of the worst cases of Catarrh and Ozæna of many years' standing. This thorough course of medication constitutes the only scientific, rational, safe, and successful manner of treating this odious disease that has ever been offered to the afflicted.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. I read much about this time your advertisement in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained some orders for them. I purchased one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but can nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD.

Care Watson & Gannett.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they are a blessing to thousands who would be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health for Twenty-Five Years—Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 54 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for the same.

BOOK & JOB

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocanon by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, greatly alterative. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

Is one such discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

READY MONEY.

"Charles, what did this peach preserve cost?"

"I'm sure I don't know, Hannah."

"But you bought it this morning."

"I know I did, but I didn't ask the price of it."

"No. Why not?"

"Oh, because I couldn't make change. I have opened an account with Mr. Waldron, and shall hereafter settle once in three months."

This conversation was carried on at the tea table between Charles Matthews and his wife. Matthews was a young mechanic who had just commenced housekeeping, and as he was making excellent wages he could afford to live pretty well. After he had made known his determined arrangement to his wife she remained some time in silent thought.

"Charles," she at length said, in a mild, persuasive tone, "I think it would be better to pay for things as you take them. You know you get your pay for work every Saturday night, and you could pay as you go very easily."

"I know I could," replied Mr. Matthews, with the air of a man who had unanswerable arguments at his command; "but then it would not be near so handy. You see I shall save all the trouble of making change, and shall not only save time, but also avoid making mistakes."

"Mistakes?" repeated Hannah. "How can mistakes occur when you pay for things as you get them?"

"I will tell you. Sometimes it may not be convenient to pay for a thing when I get it—I may forget my money, or I may only take it on trial—then if I pay for a part and not for all, some things may get charged which I pay for. No, Hannah, a settlement once a quarter will be the best and most convenient all round, I am satisfied of it."

"Well, perhaps it may," said the wife, with an earnest tone and look, and yet with a smile, "but I can not think as you do."

"But why not?"

"Why, on all accounts. In the first place you will buy more than if you paid cash. Now you needn't shake your head, for I know it. There are many little luxuries, little extras, which we do not need, but which you will be apt to buy if you do not have to pay the money down. I know something of this credit system, and I know it is not a fair or good thing. In the second place, if you pay cash for everything you will get your goods cheaper. A trader will sell cheaper when he can have the money in his hands than when he has to carry out the amount on his ledger."

"But let me tell you, Hannah, that Mr. Waldron will not cheat. He is not the man to take advantage in that way."

"You misunderstand me. Charles, do you not know that all traders can afford to sell cheaper when they have the money in their hands and do not have to carry the amount to their ledgers? They could afford to do so. Traders like to secure cash customers. I think you will find it for your advantage to try the cash system. Now I do not believe you would have bought this preserve if you had to pay the cash for it."

"But I bought that to please you, and I thought you would be pleased."

"I know you did," she replied, as she placed her hand affectionately upon his shoulder. "I know you would do anything to please me; but for the sake of helping you, I would forego all such things. Then after a few years, perhaps we might own a little cottage of our own."

For several days Charles only sent up from the store what was really needed. At length, as he went to the store one morning, on his way to his work, he saw some splendid pickles in fancy jars. He had ordered the articles needed, and was about to leave, when Mr. Waldron spoke:

"Mr. Matthews," said he, "don't you want a jar of pickles? I carried my wife in a jar last evening, and she thinks them superior to any she ever saw."

Now Charles knew that his wife had a great plenty of plain pickled cucumbers, some that her mother had put down for her, but Mr. Waldron's wife had some of these fancy ones, and why shouldn't Hannah?

And so he ordered the jar, and as it was inconvenient to pay for it, ordered it to be charged.

"Mr. Matthews, anything you may want, you can order at any time, and you may rest assured we shall be very happy to accommodate you."

Now this was flattering to Mr. Matthews' feelings, to think that the trader had such confidence in him, and he went away with an exceeding good opinion of himself and his credit, and of the storekeeper in particular.

Only a dollar! Yes—only a dollar on the trader's ledger—that's of no account. But a dollar right out of one's pocket—that was different. Charles would not have bought them had he been obliged to pay cash at the time.

"Ah, Matthews, look here, I have something nice to show you." This was said by the trader to the young man the very next day after the purchase of the pickles. And so Mr. Waldron led our hero to the back of the store and opened a box.

"There, Matthews, ain't these nice oranges?"

"They are nice," replied Charles. And so they really were.

"I knew your wife would like some of these. I carried some home to my wife, and she wanted me to save her three or four dozen."

"These are very nice. How high are they?"

"Let me see; I can send you three dozen for a dollar. I got these very cheap. You know they are retailing at five cents a piece."

"Yes. Well you may send me up three dozen. Just charge it if you please."

"Certainly. Anything else this morning?"

"I believe not."

And so Matthews went on. This morning it would be a dollar—to-morrow, perhaps, fifty cents—and then again, perhaps, only twenty-five cents. It didn't seem very much. The young man had just as much money in his pocket as though he hadn't bought them. "Only a dollar," he would say to himself. "That isn't much out of twelve dollars a week." And it might not be, but the trouble was, that the next dollar was called one dollar, and he would forget to add it to the former dollar and call it two dollars, and so on.

One evening Charles came home with a new gold chain attached to his watch.

"Where did you get that?" asked his wife.

"Ah!" returned the husband, with an impressive shake of the head; "I made a bargain on this chain. Now guess how much I paid for it."

"I am sure I could not guess."

"O, but try; guess something."

"Well; perhaps ten dollars."

"Ten dollars!" echoed Charles, with a disappointed look. "Why, what are you thinking of? Jack Cummins bought this chain two months ago, and paid twenty dollars for it. Why just lift it and see how heavy it is. Eighteen karats fine. Jack was hard up for money, and let me have it for thirteen dollars."

"It is cheap to be sure," returned Hannah, but yet with not such pleasurable surprise as her husband had expected. "But," she added, "you did not need it, and I fear you will feel the loss of the money."

"Pooh! I have money enough. You know I have spent but very little lately. I have been pretty saving."

"But you forget our things, Charles. The money which you have on hand is not yours."

"Not mine?" he exclaimed.

"No; it belongs to the storekeeper, and to our landlord. You know they must be paid."

"Don't you fret about them. I know it don't cost anywhere near twelve dollars a week to live, for I have made an estimate. There is Wilkins, who works beside me at the shop, he has four children, and only gets the same wages I do, and yet he lays up two or three dollars each week."

"Yes," said Hannah, "I know he does; I was in to see his wife the other day, and she was telling me how they get along. Mr. Wilkins takes his basket twice a week, and gets his meat and vegetables, and trades for cash, and so gets everything to the very best advantage. So he does at the store. He lays in a good quantity of those articles which will keep, and buys butter, eggs, apples and such things, by the quantity when the market is full, and they are cheap, and he always buys enough to last his family over the season of scarcity, when such things are high. His butter, for instance, he bought for twenty-two cents per pound—a firkin of it—and it is much sweeter than that for which you paid forty-eight cents yesterday."

"Forty-eight cents!" repeated the young man in surprise.

"Yes. I asked Mr. Waldron's man when he brought it up, and he said it had risen to forty-eight cents. Mr. Wilkins got twenty dozen of eggs some time ago for twenty cents a dozen, and his wife packed them down, and they keep well. You will have to pay Mr. Waldron forty-five cents for those he sent up yesterday."

Charles Matthews was somewhat astonished at this view of the case, but it could not be helped now, and the subject was dropped. His gold chain had lost its charm. It did not look so well, even in his own eyes, as the old black cord which he had worn before.

At length the end of the quarter came around. The first bill was the rent, which amounted to thirty-one dollars. The next was the butcher's bill of thirty-six dollars. Charles was astonished to see how his meat bill footed up. But when he saw how many steaks he had had at thirty cents a pound, the cause of the wonder disappeared. Next he paid the baker's bill, which was thirteen dollars. When he came home in the evening he had paid all his bills except the grocery bill.

"Mr. Waldron sent his bill to-day," his wife said, after supper.

"Ah, did he; let me see it."

Hannah brought it, and Charles looked. He was astonished at its length, and when he came to look at the bottom of the column his faced turned a shade pale. It footed up just sixty-five dollars—an average of five dollars a week.

"This is impossible!" he exclaimed, as he gazed upon it. But he examined the different articles, and he could remember when he ordered them. Those things which cost him only a dollar, looked very innocent when viewed alone, but in the aggregate they had a very different look.

"How much shall we lay up this quarter, Charles?" kindly asked his wife, as she came and leaned over his shoulder and smoothed his hair from his brow.

"How much shall we lay up?" he repeated. "Not much. Get the slate and let us reckon up." He resolved to be frank about the matter and let his wife know all.

The slate was brought. First she put down one hundred and fifty-six dollars as the quarter's salary. Then the rent, and the butcher and the baker.

"Now you put down thirteen dollars for the chain,—and twelve dollars for sundries,—that means cigars, concerts, and such things. Now, take all that from my quarter's salary, and see how much remains."

She did so, and gave fifty-two dollars as the result.

"Fifty-two dollars!" utters Charles, sitting back in his chair, "and we have not bought one article of clothing or furniture. Fifty-two dollars with which to pay sixty-five. There is thirteen dollars short this quarter, and I meant at least to save thirty dollars."

"Well, it's no use to mourn over it," said the wife, in a cheerful tone, for she saw that her husband felt badly. "Let us commence again. There is nothing like trying, you know."

For some moments Charles remained silent. He gazed first upon the bill he held in his hand; then upon the floor. At last he spoke.

"Hannah, I see where the trouble is, and I must freely admit that I have been wrong. If I had paid for everything as I bought it I would have hit it. You were right. I see all now. I have not estimated the value of money as I ought. Let me once get up again to where I began, I will do differently. I must step down to the store this evening and pay the rest, as soon as I get it."

"That matter is easily settled," she replied, "for I have money by me that I had when I was married."

He protested most earnestly against taking his wife's money, but she insisted in giving it to him. It was her will and he must submit. So he went down and paid the grocery bill and on his way home he sold his gold chain for thirteen dollars. He felt happier now, and was ready to commence the next quarter.

On the next Monday morning the young man went into the meat store to send home a piece of beef for dinner.

"How much will you have?" asked the butcher.

"O, three or four—"

Charles got thus far and then he stopped. He had always been in the habit of ordering an indefinite quantity and leaving the butcher to cut it off at the highest figure, and charge the highest price; and then he remembered how much was usually wasted.

"Let me have two pounds," he said. He stopped and saw it weighed and then paid for it.

When he went home at noon he found that his two pounds of beef was enough for a good dinner. The next morning he went to the store. Mr. Waldron had some nice figs which he showed. They were only twenty-five cents a pound. For a moment Charles hesitated, but as he remembered that he had to pay for all he bought he concluded not to take them. He found that things were not so enticing when it required cash to get them, as when the payment could be postponed. He paid for what he bought, and went his way; and thus things went on through the week. When it came Saturday night he knew all the money in his pocket was his own, after deducting the rent. That evening he went over to the market, with Wilkins, and bought as much vegetables and meat as he thought would last through the week. He found that he had made a saving of about 20 per cent, and when the opportunity offered, he made the same saving in other matters.

At the end of that quarter Charles Matthews did not have to get a slate. He paid his house rent, and then he found that he had thirty-five dollars left in his pocket. This was his—he did not owe a penny of it.

"Ah, Hannah," he said, as he held the money in his hand and looked it over, "now, I see how easy it is for a man to be wrong and his wife right. This money all comes of paying as I go along. It is very easy and simple to say, 'Just charge it,' and a man can easily buy things under such circumstances, but when the day of reckoning comes these three simple words, that sound so innocent when spoken, are found to be costly things. I did not believe it until I tried it. I could not have believed that a man would purchase so many trifles simply because he would have them charged. But I see it now, and if I refused to follow your advice at first, I have gained experience enough to lead me to follow it more implicitly now."

Charles Matthews never again allowed himself to be led away by the credit system, but has followed the cash rule, and the consequence has been that he could buy produce, coal, etc., at the cheap prices, and he has now cut off the expense of house rent, for he owns a snug little cottage, and it is all paid for.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 24, 1876.

The Allen Party.

Concerning the victory of the Allen party in Ohio, the Cincinnati Enquirer (inflation democrat) says: "After the triumph of the people over the politicians, of democracy over pretenders, it is not difficult to foresee the result, provided the democrats of the South are seized of common sense. The endorsement of William Allen yesterday by the democracy of Ohio—who differ little save in possessing more courage, from the democracy of the East—was the death-knell of Sam. Tilden. It is found that the democracy of the West, really controlling the vote of the party, will not tolerate a bullionist, a money-lender's tool, or a two-faced man upon the over-topping topic. Ohio has set a lofty example. Had she done otherwise there would have been room for Tilden, or for another T., or for a trickster."

The Cincinnati Commercial (hard money independent) says in regard to the same event: "We warn all concerned that this Allen party is not to be held despicable on account of its weakness. It is a formidable party, representing great schemes and extensive interests, and it is officered by men who have no scruples and few fears, and whose daring designs are executed with no mean ability. They propose to rule for their purposes the democratic party, and they will attack the national convention with the same confidence and rude energy with which they stormed the State convention."

Political.

A large majority of the honest people of the United States place Mr. Pendleton in the same category with General Belknap, and are as much shocked at his appearance in the democratic State convention of Ohio as they would be if the disgraced Secretary should be made President of the Iowa republican convention. In conferring this honor on Mr. Pendleton, the Ohio democrats meant to inform Mr. Schurz and Mr. Adams, and all the high-toned reformers, that they have a supreme contempt for their rhetoric and their principles.—Baltimore American.

The Utica Herald submits the following as the prospect of the first joint ballot at Cincinnati, viz: Blaine, 319; Morton, 116; Conkling, 80; Bristow, 107; Jewell, 10; Hayes, 44; Hartranft, 58. It apparently thinks that there will be a combination of the Blaine and Bristow votes.

When the New York Sun, which never can see anything good in the acts or principles of the republican party, and rarely finds anything to denounce in the acts of the democrats, talks as follows concerning the man just elected to the U. S. Senate by the "reformers" of Connecticut, and the means by which he secured his election, it may be accepted as proof that the state of things is very bad: "The Connecticut democrats have just elected William H. Barnum. The advocate of a high protective tariff, the free trade doctrines of the party could not have led to his selection. For many years he has pretended to hold a seat in the House, but has been chiefly conspicuous for being absent pretty much all the time. Indeed, we do not remember anything of Barnum's career in Congress except his pocketing the back pay. How, then, did he become a Senator? The answer is not difficult. Mr. Barnum is rich. He said he carried the legislature two years ago by his money, and he insisted that he was wronged out of the Senatorship then by the election of Mr. Eaton. He asserted that in the campaign this Spring he spent more money than any other man, and that the large democratic majority in the legislature was owing to his expenditures; and therefore he had the best possible title to be made a Senator. So he got the place. Money did it."

The committee on rules of the House have reported in relation to the charges against doorkeeper Fitzhugh. The report says the charges of blackmailing a Federal officer in Texas, were disproved; as to the charge of larceny and arson in Kentucky, the committee had no evidence to show that the verdict acquitting him is not right. In regard to the letter written in December last to a friend in Texas, the committee consider it shows him to be unfit for the responsible position of door-keeper, and they recommend that the office be vacated by the present incumbent, and that the duties of the office devolve temporarily upon the Sergeant-at-Arms.

When an obsure speculator was detected in having purchased a post-tradership of Belknap, what a fierce outburst of virtuous indignation arose from our democratic brethren; but when the democratic legislature of Connecticut openly sells a seat in the National Senate to the highest bidder, how calmly the matter is taken by the party.

HAVING NOTICED

The statements in the city papers, that certain persons have been injured by eating pressed corned beef put up in Chicago, and feeling that if not explained these facts will result in injury where it does not belong, and as after a thorough investigation we find that the beef complained of is in every instance beef packed in rolls and enclosed in tin foil by parties unknown to us and not at all similar to canned beef: therefore we, the undersigned, in simple justice to the public and to the reliable firm that pack the canned article, wish to state that we have for a long time sold Pressed CANNED Corned Beef and Beef Tongues packed in 2, 4, 6 and 14 lb cans, by Messrs. Jottings.

A heavy thunder shower passed over the city early Monday evening, drenching the streets and every unprotected pedestrian in them. Rain fell in greater or less quantities throughout the night, and the ground at the Park was so saturated on Tuesday morning that the committee decided to postpone the dedication until Thursday, the 25th, the postponement being announced by the public crier. Tuesday was clear and sunny, but cool, and would have been a fine, seasonable day a month ago.

The barn of Mr. J. Curtis Philbrick, of Rye, was struck by lightning during Monday evening's shower. The hay in the barn was set on fire, but it was beaten out by Mr. Philbrick with his jacket.

The Times says Mr. Daniel E. Senter is lying in a critical condition at his house on Livermore street, having been unable for about three weeks to partake of any food whatever, and is therefore literally starving to death. He is able to take only a small quantity of cold water at a time. His case is a strange and peculiarly hard one.

Masonry and Church Discipline.

It is the more noteworthy when you take into consideration the fact, that living alongside of the Christian Church are other organizations, other institutions, that have grown up and lived, and kept peace among their members, and contributed peace and amiability to the world. The Free Masons, with one or two exceptions, have never had war within their ranks, have never had disturbance within their walls. They have live in true brotherhood, so far as the world can see; with one or two exceptions, they have never furnished a scandal to the world. Governed by lesser motives than the Christian brotherhood we may suppose are governed by, not claiming to be formed on the high level of high spiritual considerations, acting in regenerated souls, they have still kept themselves from scandal, and their brotherhood from internal dissension and hostilities, and so far as I am aware—not being a member of them, I know only as the world knows—they stand on a basis simply of courtesy, high-toned honor and integrity. * * * Well now, friends, it becomes therefore worthy of you who are thoughtful to ask yourself, and this year of 1876 is about time the question should be asked—it becomes a question worthy of the most thoughtful of you men and women, to ask yourselves, how is it that these men can live together in peace and we cannot? How is it that these men can have leaders, and prophets, and priests, and guides, both temporal and spiritual, and never dismiss one of them, the governing head being only benevolent action toward each other without disturbance or hostility? How is it that we fail to find in the history of these institutions any inquisitions, any dungeons, any tortures, any bloody arenas with sands caked with warm blood that has dried? How is it?

A Cruel Fashion.

There is no lady deserving of the name who could witness without a feeling of horror the process of preparing for use the feathered beauties which form such conspicuous ornaments in the present style of women's hats. If those who wear such ornaments knew the tortures to which these helpless little creatures are subjected, and the heartless cruelty with which the business is carried on, they would shrink from even indirect complicity in it. Of course the impression prevails that all birds used for personal decoration are killed immediately when caught and prepared in the ordinary way by taxidermists; but here is just where the mistake is made. The birds are taken alive, and while living the skin is skillfully stripped from their quivering, ghastly bodies. By this process it is claimed the feathers retain a firmer hold upon the skin. Such is the method by which all birds used in the decoration of ladies' hats are prepared. Think of the exquisite humming bird, the blue bird, the cardinal bird, the oriole, and numberless others of beautiful plumage, struggling beneath the knife of the heartless operator; think of this, tender-hearted ladies, as your admiring gaze rests on the latest novelties in fashion by which our city belles are crowned! Hundreds of thousands of birds of the brightest plumage are literally flayed alive every year, and so long as our ladies will consent to wear such ornaments, just so long will this cruel business continue. The Baroness Burdett-Coutts has placed herself at the head of a movement in England, designed to put an end to the brutal business, and it is hoped that she will meet with cordial encouragement and co-operation on this side of the Atlantic.

—Moses L. Swift of Reno, Nev., has been granted a divorce from his wife on account of her "mental cruelty."

A Wonderful Horse.

A Yankee who was traveling through Kentucky, had a fine horse and no money. He had taught his horse to lie down or sit on his haunches when the bridle was pulled pretty hard. Our traveler saw no way of replenishing his purse but by selling his horse, and this he resolved to do at the first opportunity. As he was going along, he saw a hunter some distance from the road whom he rode up to and accosted. In the course of the conversation, he told the latter that he had an invaluable horse to sell—a horse that would act precisely like a setter when he was in the vicinity of game. Casting his eyes around, at the same time discovering some fresh rabbit tracks he gave the bridle a jerk. The docile animal immediately lay down.

"There are some rabbits here," said the rider, "I know by his ears."

The Kentuckian, curious to test the sagacity of the horse, searched around, and sure enough, started three or four rabbits. He was greatly surprised, but the Yankee took it as a matter of course. To make a long story short, the wonderful horse changed hands on the spot—$300 being the consideration. His new owner mounted him, and with characteristic hospitality, the Yankee agreed to accompany him home. They soon came to a stream which they had to cross, and which was rather deep for horsemen. Judge of the Kentuckian's dismay, when on pulling the bridle in the middle of the river, his steed subsided in the running waters as if he was a hippopotamus.

"How is this?" he roared out, nothing but his head visible.

The Yankee, who was mounted on the hunter's other horse, was not disconcerted in the least, but replied coolly:

"O, I forgot to tell you he is as good for fish as he is for rabbits!"

—Some men make a great flourish about always doing what they believe to be right, but always manage to believe that right which is for their own interest.

—Mrs. C. H. Dall thinks it should be remembered to the credit of John Calvin that he changed the hour of evening prayer in Geneva to accommodate the opera.

—There is a centennial handkerchief out. It has the Declaration of Independence printed upon it in English, French, and German, so that a man can blow his nose in three different languages.

—When the Speaker of the Arkansas legislature said that the gentleman from Clay County was out of order, Clay County picked up an inkstand and offered to bet ten dollars he wasn't. Speaker dodged.

—A lady of fashionable distinction being a subject of conversation in Robert Hall's presence, some one said, "Is she not a great belle?" "I should think so," said Hall, "for she is noisy, empty and brazen."

—Henry Toms, "the converted actor," who was a prominent assistant of Hammond, the revivalist, when the latter was starring in Pennsylvania, has been sent to State Prison for three years by the Dauphin County Court for forgery.

—"How do you like the view?" said a house-renter, in his most fascinating tones, to a hoped-for tenant. "Why, it's so infernally bad," was the answer, "that if distance ever lent enchantment to it, I'm mighty certain she never got it back again."

—The physicians are becoming seriously alarmed over the prevalent use of snuff among ladies. The doctors say it is creating havoc with the ladies and destroying their offspring. It is singular that tobacco in its various forms never has any bad effect on men and their offspring.

—"Papa, me has been baptized, ain't me?" asked a little three-year-old. "Yes, dear." "Then me won't have to be baptized again?" "No; but can you remember anything about being baptized?" "I dess I can." "Well, what did the minister do to you?" "He shoved up my sleeve, and stuck a knife in my arm."

—It was in Omaha. A lawyer was addressing the judge, and the judge was eating peanuts and reading a novel. The lawyer bore it some time, and then angrily remarked:—"I suppose I am entitled to claim the attention of this court?" "Well, sir," retorted the judge, "the court has long suspected you, and will do its duty the first chance it gets."

Shattered Constitutions Rebuilt.

In the use of a wholesome invigorant lies the only hope of rebuilding a shattered constitution. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are not only an eminently wholesome tonic, but they rectify with most satisfactory promptitude derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels which are incompatible with a return of health and strength. When the system is enfeebled by disease, by the wear and tear of business life, by continuous mental anxiety, by the exhaustion consequent upon late hours and fast living, by over-work and by sedentary habits, the Bitters are the most reliable medicinal agent for imparting permanent vigor to the debilitated frame. The new stock of vitality which they infuse into broken down phisique, and the orderly action which they establish among the organs of secretion, digestion and evacuation, moreover, constitute its best safeguard against malarial disease.

The best men in the country use Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam. Bankers, clergymen, farmers, lawyers, merchants, mechanics and physicians unite in testifying to its remarkable curative power.

A Fine Thing for the Teeth.

The fragrant SOZODONT has taken a very prominent place among the most approved dentrifices of the day. It is a very popular article for the toilet, highly recommended by all who have used it, as a beautifier and preserver of the teeth, refreshing the mouth, sweetening the breath, and arresting the progress of decay.

LINCOLN BUTTER POWDER.
Good Fresh Butter All The Year Round.
BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.
Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the butter counties around Philadelphia.
In hot weather this Powder makes butter much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cotton seed, etc.; and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

Daily Chronicle.

—A monster devil fish was caught under the New York steamship wharf at Fernandina, Florida. He in some way got under but was unable to find his way out from among the piling. Some men at work upon the wharf heard the splashing which he made and fired several shots at him, but as they seemed to have no effect a harpoon was obtained and his capture effected, fifteen men being required to tow him to shore. The blood which escaped from him colored the water for about ten feet on either side. He was sixteen feet in width and fifteen in length. His fins were about four feet long, and his tail about the same length and not much larger than a person's finger. His mouth opened to the width of two feet and was eighteen inches in length, and projecting from each side of it was a feeler about one foot wide and two feet long, which he rolled up and unrolled at will. So far as can be ascertained, there has been only one of these singular fish caught in that region before this one.

—The little fellow had never before been on the car, and of course viewed everything and everybody with a child's astonished eyes. Finally the train moved off, and he nestled closer to his mother, and as its speed increased he began to show some signs of consternation. Tears stood in his eyes, and when he saw that his weakness was observed he blubbered aloud, "I ain't afraid, but I wish I had my photograph taken before I got on this thing."

—Boston has had eight postmasters since 1829, all of whom are now living. But there is only one man alive who appointed any of them.

Symptoms of Catarrh.

Dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharge falling into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery, acrid, thick and tenacious mucous, purulent, muco-purulent, bloody, putrid, offensive, etc. In others, a dryness, dry, watery, weak, or inflamed eyes, ringing in ears, deafness, hawking and coughing to clear the throat, ulcerations, scabs from ulcers, voice altered, nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired smell and taste, dizziness, mental depression, tickling cough, etc. Only a few of the above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time. When applied with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, and accompanied with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as constitutional treatment, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy produces perfect cures of the worst cases of Catarrh and Ozæna of many years' standing. This thorough course of medication constitutes the only scientific, rational, safe, and successful manner of treating this odious disease that has ever been offered to the afflicted.

ACHSAH:

A New England Life Study.

DR. QUAIN'S

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered a great deal, and life at times of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks, but this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package was done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have sold them to others for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reported himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD, Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 16, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have free friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is a diuretic. It is antiseptic and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

With a Large Assortment of Display Type.

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

DRIFT.

BY JOHN CECIL.

I had sworn to be a bachelor, she had sworn to be a maid,
For we both agreed in doubting whether matrimony paid,
Besides, I had my higher aims—for science filled my heart,
And she said her young affections were all wound up in art.
So we laughed at those wise men who say that friendship cannot live
'Twixt man and woman; unless each had something else to give.
We would be friends as true as e'er were man and man—
I'd be a second David, and she Miss Jonathan.
We liked each other, that was all, and quite enough to say;
So we just shook hands upon it in a business sort of way.
We shared our sorrows and our joys; together hoped and feared;
With common purpose sought the goal which young ambition reared;
We dreamed together of the days, the dream bright days to come;
We were strictly confidential, and called each other "chum."
And many a day we wandered together o'er the hills—
I seeking bugs and butterflies, and she the ruined mills
And rustic bridges and the like, which picture makers prize,
To run in with their waterfalls and groves and sunny skies;
And many a quiet evening, in hours of full release,
We floated down the river, or loafed beneath the trees,
And talked in long gradation, from the poets to the weather,
While the summer skies and my cigar burned slowly out together.
But through it all no whispered word, or tell-tale look or sigh,
Told aught of warmer sentiment than friendly sympathy;
We talked of love as coldly as we talked of nebulæ,
And thought no more of being one than we did of being three.
"Well, good-bye, old fellow"—I took her hand, for the time had come to go—
My going meant our parting, when to meet we did not know;
I had lingered long, and said farewell with a very heavy heart,
For, though we were but friends, you know, 'tis hard for friends to part.
"Well, good-bye, old fellow; don't forget your friends across the sea,
And some day, when you've lots of time, just drop a line to me."
The words came lightly, gayly, but a great sob just behind
Rose upward with a story of quite a different kind.
And then she raised her eyes to mine, great liquid eyes of blue,
Full to the brim and running o'er, like a violet-cup in dew—
One long, long look, and then I did what I never did before;
Perhaps the tear meant friendship, but I think the kiss meant more.

—It is said that although rain was formerly unknown in the northern regions of the Red Sea, since the building of the Suez canal showers have fallen at regular periods. The result has been to start vegetation, even upon the Asiatic side, in the most wonderful manner. If things go on as they have begun, the sands of the isthmus will be covered with forests in another fifty years.

Liver and Blood Diseases.

By R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Author of "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser."

A healthy liver secretes each day about two and a half pounds of bile, which contains a great amount of waste material taken from the blood. When the liver becomes torpid or congested, it fails to eliminate this vast amount of noxious substance, which, therefore, remains to poison the blood, and be conveyed to every part of the system. What must be the condition of the blood when it is receiving and retaining each day two and a half pounds of poison? Nature tries to work off this poison through other channels and organs—the kidneys, lungs, skin, etc., but these organs become over-taxed in performing this labor in addition to their natural functions, and cannot long withstand the pressure, but become variously diseased.

The brain, which is the great electrical center of all vitality, is unduly stimulated by the unhealthy blood which passes to it from the heart, and it fails to perform its office healthily. Hence the symptoms of bile poisoning, which are dullness, headache, incapacity to keep the mind on any subject, impairment of memory, dizzy, sleepy, or nervous feelings, gloomy forebodings, and irritability of temper. The blood itself being diseased, as it forms the sweat upon the surface of the skin, it is so irritating and poisonous that it produces discolored brown spots, pimples, blotches, and other eruptions, sores, boils, carbuncles, and scrofulous tumors. The stomach, bowels, and other organs, cannot escape becoming affected, sooner or later, and we have, as the result, costiveness, piles, dropsy, dispepsia, and diarrhœa. Other symptoms are common, as bitter or bad taste in the mouth, internal heat, palpitation, teasing cough, unsteady appetite, choking sensation in the throat, bloating of stomach, pain in sides or about shoulders or back, coldness of extremeties, etc. Only a few of the above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time. The liver being the great depurating, or blood-cleansing organ of the system, set this great "housekeeper of our health" at work, and the foul corruptions which gender in the blood, and rot out, as it were, the machinery of life, are gradually expelled from the system. For this purpose, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, with small doses daily of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, are pre-eminently the articles needed. They cure every kind of humor from the worst scrofula to the common pimple, blotch, or eruption. Great eating ulcers kindly heal under their mighty curative influence. Virulent blood poisons that lurk in the system are by them robbed of their terrors, and by their preserving and somewhat protracted use the most tainted systems may be completely renovated and built up anew. Enlarged glands, tumors, and swellings, dwindle away and disappear under the influence of these great resolvents.

Concord Railroad Report.

The thirty-fifth annual report of the Concord Railroad has been published and issued to the stockholders. The document begins by stating that owing to the general depression of business the gross receipts have fallen off almost $52,500 during the year. The receipts since the last report have been as follows: From passengers, $359,047.51; freight, $561,882.17; rents, $3902.19; express, $13,550.04; mails, $12,476.54; total gross earnings, $950,858.45. The total expenditures amounted to $675,059.97, leaving a balance of $275,298.48. From which has been paid—Taxes on capital stock, $37,858.91; Manchester and Lawrence Railroad, $53,315.56; rent of Concord and Portsmouth Railroad, $25,000; rent of Suncook Valley Railroad, $8094—$124,268.47; receipts over expenses, $151,030.01. From this has been paid—Two dividends of five per cent. each, $150,000; balance carried to contingent fund, $1030.01. The Directors have leased the Nashua, Acton and Boston Railroad for the term of ten years, at a rent of $11,000 per annum. The sum of $72,500 has been loaned to the above-named railroad corporation to enable it to discharge some of its obligations. The report states that but one fatal accident has occurred on the road during the past year. The total number of passengers carried during the year was 560,880.

Murder at Keene.

Alvan C. Foster, of Keene, was found dead in the yard of Schoolhouse No. 10 on Wednesday morning, having been murdered and robbed. Around his head was a bandage, under which and covering his mouth was a sponge saturated with chloroform. He also had a wound on the back of his head, and it is supposed was knocked down on the highway as he was going to his home, gagged and dragged into the yard, and robbed. His empty pocket-book was found near him, but $40 in one pocket escaped the murderers,—for there are supposed to have been more than one, and three hundred dollars reward is offered for their detection. Mr. Foster leaves a wife and two children.

News and Notes.

The Army of the Potomac Society is to hold its annual reunion in the city of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, on June 6th next, at the Academy of Music, at noon. Major-General John A. Dix, late Governor of New York, is to deliver the oration, and William Winter, Esq., of New York, will read an original poem. A grand banquet at Saint George's Hall is to follow in the evening. A large gathering of veteran survivors is expected.

The Merrimac worsted mills at Wilton have shut down, and sixty hands are thrown out of employment.

John Healey, of Raymond, reached his sixtieth birthday recently and his friends celebrated it with a surprise party and presents.

The new Catholic church in Peterborough was dedicated on Sunday, by Rt. Rev. James A. Healey, bishop of Portland, assisted by others.

Charles J. Brown, Jr., was held in $800, Tuesday morning, at Dover, to appear at the September Court on suspicion of committing burglaries in Dover for a month past. A revolver stolen from Gray's jewelry store and a chisel from Coleman & Cushing's were found on his person.

Thomas Finn, 50 years old, of Waldoboro', Me., on Tuesday killed his little daughter, four years of age, by cutting her throat and splitting her head with an axe. He has been insane for a year past.

The Mexican revolution is getting to be a big thing.

Four Greek sailors, who murdered the captain of the British ship "Lennie," have been hanged in London.

The rope to hang Piper was made by the Hingham Cordage Company, of Hingham, Mass. It is of American hemp, and is three-quarters of an inch thick and twenty-six feet long. It is to be used on Friday, unless the wretch's execution is postponed, of which there is no probability.

Joaquin Miller has accepted an invitation to deliver a poem at Dartmouth College Commencement. Ex-Governor Chamberlain of Maine has been invited to deliver the oration before the United Literary Society.

The New Jersey delegation to the St. Louis convention are instructed to support Joel Parker.

Captain J. W. White of the revenue marine service, makes a favorable report of Alaska, saying that vegetation is luxuriant, the Yucon river navigable for 1,400 miles, the seal fisheries practically inexhaustible, and the minerals enormously valuable.

Letters received from members of the Boston colony sent out to Arizona under the auspices of Judge Cozzens, announce the safe arrival at the San Francisco mountains of forty-two of the colonists, and their selection of a splendid location, with fine farming lands, good timber and water, and indications of abundant mineral resources. Seven of the original number deserted them sixty miles east of the mountains and returned to Prescott, which accounts for the unfavorable reports that were sent from that place, and which were purely malicious and unfounded.

Cure for Hydrophobia.

From a paragraph in the British Medical Journal, it would appear that there is a possibility that the long-sought specific against hydrophobia has at last been discovered. The remedy for the bite is a harmless herb, the xanthium spinosum, which is said to have been used by Dr. Grzyvyala, of Krivoe Ozero, Podolia, in at least one hundred cases, without failure, to ward off hydrophobia. During the Crimean war, a family of twelve persons had been bitten by hydrophobic wolf. Six of them entered his wards in the hospital of Oischanka, Government of Podolia, district of Balta. They were treated with infusion of the leaves xanthium and all recovered. The others, who were treated by the actual cautery and the daily use of Genista tinctoria and other drugs, died with hydrophobia in the course of twelve to sixty days. He recounts many other facts not less striking. For an adult the dose is sixty centigrammes of the dry powder, repeated three times a day, and continued during six weeks. Children under twelve take half that quantity. The dose for animals is much larger. A herd of thirty oxen had been bitten by a mad wolf; eight had succumbed with symptoms of hydrophobia. The Commissary of Police came to Dr. Grzyvala for his "antirabic powder." He gave three ounces of powder, with bran, daily to each of the animals; none of them suffered from the disease. The Medical Journal is somewhat skeptical, however. It says: "Fiat Experimentum. We have heard too often of specifics for hydrophobia not to regard this last claimant with sorrowful suspicion. But the herb is at least a harmless one; its ordinary properties seem to be mainly sudorific; and, since animals suffering from rabies are only too frequently at hand, and the remedy is one which grows plentifully in the middle regions of France as well as Podolia, let us hope that our French colleagues will lose no time in putting this prophylactic to the test; and perhaps the professors in our own veterinary colleges might help to set at rest the hopes which this positive and detailed statement is calculated to excite."

Anecdote of Miss Cushman.

I once saw Miss Cushman in Kotzebue's dreary, yet effective play, "The Stranger." We were talking about the performance when I called upon her next morning, and she told me that, in the early part of her career, she was playing the part in a certain theatre in the United States, when she was horror-struck at beholding two veritable little niggers led on to the stage in that pathetic scene where Mrs. Haller is supposed to embrace her own children. It appears that the providing these little innocents was left to the care of the stage manager, who, failing at the last moment to procure white-skinned children, bridged over the emergency, as well as he was able, by substituting darkies. As the audience did not manifest any emotions either of derision or displeasure, but accepted the matter calmly and as a matter of course, Miss Cushman smothered her feelings as best she might, and proceeded with the business of the scene. All went on well until the moment came when the children had to be led up the stage to the arbor, there to wait in retirement until they could be brought forward in the supreme crisis of the interview between Mrs. Haller and the Stranger; but the instant they caught sight of the scenic arbor each of the children roared out, "Me won't be put in de calaboose; me won't be put in de calaboose!" The calaboose is the prison wherein the Boatman, in the Ethiopian Serenader's song, was "popp'd" when he let his "passion loose:" and the children were not unacquainted with its durance vile. The scenic arbor bore an unfortunate resemblance to its external appearance; and, as nothing could pacify the two little niggers, or stop their cries, yells and kicks, the green curtain had to descend prematurely on this novel tableau and extraordinary denouement to "The Stranger." It is needless to add that, after this experience, whenever Miss Cushman performed Mrs. Haller in America, she made sure she was to be provided with white children, so that the pathos of the scene might not be endangered.—Belgravia.

—According to a French statistician, more than a thousaud people have perished by fires in theatres from the beginning of the nineteenth century up to the present date, while the pecuniary loss by the same class of conflagrations amounts to about sixty million dollars.

—A confectioner advertises "centennial kisses," and sells them two for a cent, but unless he knocks eighty-two years off from their age, and gives them away, he can't expect to compete with the raw article in this community.—Norwich Bulletin.

—An extraordinary story is told in a recent letter from England of a clergyman who supports his family upon a very small salary and what he can earn by his violin-playing for strolling dramatic companies and other wandering bodies.

—Miss Laura Spence, of Georgia, is six feet two and a half inches high.

HAVING NOTICED

The statements in the city papers, that certain persons have been injured by eating pressed corned beef put up in Chicago, and feeling that if not explained these facts will result in injury where it does not belong, and as after a thorough investigation we find that the beef complained of is in every instance beef packed in rolls and enclosed in tin foil by parties unknown to us, and not at all similar to canned beef: therefore we, the undersigned, in simple justice to the public and to the reliable firm that pack the canned article, wish to state that we have for a long time sold Pressed CANNED Corned Beef and Beef Tongues packed in 2, 4, 6 and 14 lb cans, by Messrs. The Park Dedication

Will take place this (Thursday) afternoon, if fair weather, at which time the programme as previously published will be carried out, the procession forming at half past one o'clock, and the exercises on the grounds commencing an hour later. No carriages will be admitted to the Park.

A neat fence has been built along the front of the Park, with an ornamental and substantial gate-way at the entrance.

A ferry service of paddle-wheel pleasure boats across the Millpond, to convey passengers to and from the Park during the Summer, is talked of.

The plot at the Park reserved for the Portsmouth Light Artillery has received a marble slab on which is inscribed the following: "Portsmouth Artillery Co. 1775, Hall Jackson, Capt.; 1875, T. E. O. Marvin, Capt."

The Temperance Reform Club will hold two meetings this evening; one at Temperance Headquarters (Rechabite Hall) under the direction by President Treat, and the other at the South ward room, with Vice President Marden in the chair. These meetings are free to all, and will be addressed by reformed men and others.

Jottings.

Schooner "Lone Star," belonging to Laighton Brothers, which sank at her moorings off Appledore during one of the heavy gales of early Spring, from the formation of such quantities of ice on her hull as to sink her so deeply that the seas made a clear breach over her, still lies on the bottom with about half her masts out of water. She is to be raised immediately and fitted up for the summer's work.

The great Land Sale of the Boston Land Co., advertised for Tuesday, June 6th, is unavoidably postponed until Saturday, June 10th.

Mr. Rufus K. Oxford on Tuesday showed us quite an odd collection of silver coins, the oldest one being an English shilling dated 1721. Among the lot we noticed a Spanish dollar of 1776, old and new Mexican dollars, quarters and reals, coins of the South American States and of various European counties, and an American dollar—the latter belonging to a species long since supposed to be extinct. The weight of the lot was nearly five pounds avoirdupois.

The N. Y. Evening Post says: "The noteworthy illustrated paper in Scribner's Monthly for June is 'Old Landmarks in Philadelphia,' by Mrs. Rebecca Harding Davis, who has been lately writing some of the very best articles of this class that we remember seeing anywhere. Mrs. Davis brings to bear upon a task which is too often committed to the hands of perfunctory hack-writers, a large share of the genius which has made her a foremost figure among American writers of fiction, and the result abundantly proves the wisdom of the editor in selecting such a writer for such work. The paper is worthily illustrated with more than thirty engravings." The picturesque, social, and æsthetic features of the Centennial Exhibition will be described in Scribner's Monthly, in a series of papers by Donald G. Mitchell, author of "Reveries of a Bacheler," "My Farm at Edgewood," etc.

Schooner Velocipede, Capt. Jamieson, in hauling out from Doane's wharf, Tuesday afternoon, took the ground and had to lie till high water at night, but came off uninjured.

One of the city horses took fright at the lighting of a gas-light, Tuesday evening, and ran away from in front of the City Building, up Congress street, striking the wagon against a post in front of Fay's store and sending the seat flying, and then keeping on as far as the cross-walk near the National Hotel, where the horse fell and was secured. The shafts and whiffletree of the wagon were broken and some trifling damage done, but the horse was apparently uninjured.

Schooner yacht "Pilgrim," owned by Laighton Brothers, of Appledore, was cut down nearly to the water's edge by her anchor chain during one of the heavy gales early in the Spring, while lying at her moorings at the Shoals, and had her bowsprit carried away at the same time. A few days since, after having been brought to this city and received a thorough overhaul, she stuck her new bowsprit under the wharf as she lay in the dock at low water, and as the tide rose her bowsprit was carried away again, after which she filled and made a little pilgrimage to the bottom. She will not, however, be enabled to dodge her summer's work through any such tricks, for she will be in readiness to take out parties from the Appledore, for fishing or sailing, as soon as the season opens. She was raised on Tuesday.

The Bowdoin House, situated near the Long Sands at York Beach, was entirely destroyed by fire on Tuesday night. Loss $8000; partially insured. The fire was undoubtedly incendiary. The burning building illuminated this city quite brightly.

Schooner Celia, Allen, after receiving thorough repairs of the damages she sustained in her futile endeavor to knock away the eastern point of Lunging island, some months ago, and then going on the rocks at Church Point in a favorable position for receiving a coat of paint at low water, on Sunday arrived safely in her dock, looking like a new boat, and probably a better craft than ever before.

The Rockingham conference of Congregational and Presbyterian churches is to meet at Atkinson on Tuesday, June 3d, at ten o'clock, and continue through the next day. Sermons will be delivered by Revs. George E. Street and I. C. White. The Rockingham County Woman's Missionary Society assembles at the same place on the second day.

It is nearly twenty years since Robert C. Winthrop gave utterance to these words, but they are applicable to-day: "While we have big rogues among us who merit the obloquy which is poured out upon them, hundreds of worthy men are maliciously maligned, and public office is shunned by those who ought and would assume official duties, but for the unjust howlings of partisan complainants."

The Unitarian parish has engaged Mrs. Thomas Neil as organist.

Hiram Spinney, of Eliot Neck, who years ago dealt out milk to his customers in this city from a handcart, died recently of dropsy, at the age of 67 years. He was a miser, and though he lived wretchedly had some 10,000 secreted in his lonely house when hedied.

On the 18th inst., in Cambridgeport, Mass., Mr. William G. Miller, son of N. D. Miller, Esq., of this city, was presented by the workmen under his charge, with a set of Odd Fellows jewels. Mr. Miller leaves Cambridgeport to go to Charlestown, where he is to assume the foremanship of Messrs. Cook, Rymes & Co.'s establishment.

Old Time Chronicles, No. 136.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

It was seen in a late article that in January, 1776, the Representative body of New Hampshire adopted a Constitution and it became an independent State. Some few matters that came up in the connection with that, showing the purity, wisdom and patriotism of the excellent men of that age, will now be noted. The Congress of New Hampshire at its session in Exeter in November, 1775, in making provision for the election of the next Congress for the State, adopted the following: we preserve the capital letters:

"That every Legal inhabitant Paying Taxes shall be a voter.

That every Person Elected shall have a Real Estate in this Colony of the value of Two hundred Pounds lawful money.

That no person be allowed a seat in Congress, who shall by themselves, or any person at their Desire Treat with liquor, &c. any Electors with an apparent view of gaining their Votes, or by Treating after an Election on that Account."

The newly elected Representatives met in Exeter, Dec. 21, 1775. It was well understood that a plan of government was to be adopted. Gen. John Sullivan, of Durham, a lawyer, father of Hon. George Sullivan, formerly of Exeter, and grandfather of Hon. John Sullivan of the same place, both Attorney-Generals of the State, was an officer in the army and was then at Winter Hill, Mass. Under date of Dec. 11, he wrote a long letter to Hon. Meshech Weare, making important suggestions on the plan of government. It shows his acquaintance with the history of nations in the old world and his breadth of views as to civil government. A few of his ideas only will be given.

He first advanced the idea that all governments should be for the good of the people; that there was no danger in giving the people a full and free voice in their government. He was opposed to much power being lodged in one person. He saw no objection to the Governor having a negative in the choice of Speaker. If persons should bribe or treat voters with a view to procure election or reward them afterward, they should be incapable of holding office thereafter.

After the war was over and a new Constitution was adopted, this Gen. Sullivan was Governor for three years.

Sunday-School Exercises in Kentucky.

We are informed that war was declared and a pitched battle fought in the Sunday School at Holt's school-house on the Loveladeville road, about fifteen and a half miles from Paducah, Sunday last, which for a time created considerable commotion, and resulted in the severe wounding of a young man known as "Step-John Rudolph," by a young lady named Miss Melissa Collier. It appears that Rudolph is a very long-tongued individual, and that he had most maliciously slandered Miss Collier, who is considered a young lady of excellent standing in that community. Having heard of his slanders, she sought him. Learning that he was at the Sunday School above mentioned, and being exasperated beyond measure, she armed herself with a hickory club and entered the house crying. The Superintendent was about to begin reading a chapter in the Bible when he was interrupted by the exclamation, "Where is the scoundrel?" The whole school looked in utter amazement, and discovered the young lady making toward the corner where Rudolph was seated, with desperation in her eye. Swinging her club as she approached Rudolph, she was heard to say; "Oh, here he is," and whack went the shillalah upon his head, giving him a glancing blow, but of sufficient force to knock him over on the bench. Being in a corner, he could not get out handily, and Miss C. seized the club with both hands and gave him a terrible beating over the head, body and his arm, which he held forward for protection. The Superintendent endeavored to hold the young lady, to prevent her from killing Rudolph, but he could do nothing with her, and not till further assistance came could she be taken away from the object of her hatred. Rudolph's arm was very badly hurt. He employed Governor King to assist Mr. Samuel Bryce, county attorney, in prosecuting the case, and the trial came off before Squire Emmett Rudolph, resulting in a fine of one cent and costs against the young lady. Step-John Rudolph was fined $5. There is strong probability that a slander-suit will grow out of it. If what we have heard is true, Miss Collier should have been permitted to exhaust herself in the clubbing exercise.—Paducah (Ky.) News.

—A second case of cremation has taken place at Milan. The remains of Signora Anna Fozzi, who died in November last, were burnt there April 20 in the presence of her husband and a few persons representing the medical faculty, the municipality, and the Cremation Society.

—"How shall we settle the labor question?" exclaimed a member of the Georgia legislature, in the midst of his speech. "By all going to work and earning your living honestly," thundered a spectator in the gallery. The sentiment brought down the house.

Regulate the Bodily Functions.

This advice should be especially heeded by those who suffer from an irregular habit of body or disorders of the bladder or kidneys. Inactivity of the bowels, or of the urinary organs, is speedily rectified by that wholesome aperient and sterling invigorative diuretic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters; and, as all affections of the organs of discharge have a strong tendency to become chronic, and that very rapidly, the use of the Bitters should not be delayed a moment longer than is necessary. The action of this inestimable corrective upon the bowels differs widely from that of a drastic purgative, since it is never violent or abrupt, but always gentle and natural, and its effects upon the bladder and kidneys are strengthening as well as mildly stimulative. The healthful impetus which it gives to digestion also renders it a most desirable general tonic.

Why suffer from that cough when Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam will speedily and surely cure you? Sold by all druggists.

LYON'S KATHAIRON prevents the Hair from falling out or turning gray, renews its growth, and gives strength and vigor. It is delightfully perfumed, and makes a splendid dressing. It is the cheapest and most desirable Hair Tonic ever produced. Used by the elite. Price only 50 cents. taugs76eod&w

LINCOLN BUTTER POWDER.
Good Fresh Butter All The Year Round.
BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.
Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the butter counties around Philadelphia.
In hot weather this Powder makes butter much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cotton seed, etc., and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

THE YEARS.

Why do we heap huge mounds of years
Before us and behind,
And scorn the little days that pass
Like angels on the wind?
Each, turning round a small sweet face
As beautiful as near,—
Became it is so small a face
We will not see it clear.
And so it turns from us, and goes
Away in sad disdain;
Though we could give our lives for it,
It never comes again.

—Miss Mulock.

—A Salt Lake paper in speaking of a person lately deceased, mentions some plans which he had in hand and adds: "But the hand of death has stepped in."

—A correspondent of the Rural New Yorker says: "Set a tomato plant into each hill of cucumbers or melons, and you will have no trouble from the striped bugs, that are so destructive to these plants. The plants can be tied to stakes, and if well pruned both subjects can proceed with their fruiting without detriment to one another."

—Some shepherds at the village of Ivan, near lake Bulaton, Hungary, recently came to Pesth to sell some curious golden ornaments, and were arrested as thieves. It turned out however, that they had found in the forest, on the site of ancient Veszprim, a shaft descending into the earth. It proved to be the tower of a ruined castle, over which latter sixty feet of earth had by some means gathered. The building is supposed to antedate by hundreds of years the inroads of the Huns, and to be an old Roman provincial castle. The Hungarian Parliament has taken the matter in hand, and the underground building found to cover an area of two acres, with walls of stone and brick, and to be two stories high, and to be filled with furniture, armor, ornaments and all the paraphernalia of life in a structure that was evidently both palace and stronghold. The Hungarian minister has asked for one hundred thousand florins to dig it out entire.

CONDITION PILLS!!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, Cured by Kidney Pills that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay nearly two weeks. About this time I saw your pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I am regarded as well cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have always received praise for them. I enclose one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.

SAMUEL PLASTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Trouble for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Cosmopolitanist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Wall Street Speculation.
The reliable house of ALEX. FROTHINGHAM & Co., No. 12 Wall Street, New York, publish a handsome eight page weekly paper, called the Weekly Financial Report, which they send free to any address. In addition to a large number of able editorials on financial and business topics, it contains very full and accurate reports of the sales and standing of every bond, stock and security dealt in at the Stock Exchange. Messrs. FROTHINGHAM & Co. are very extensive brokers, of large experience and tried integrity. In addition to their stock brokerage business, they sell what are called "privileges," or "Puts and Calls," now one of the favorite methods of legitimate speculation. Their advice is very valuable, and by following it many have made fortunes.—New York Metropolis.

Another Democratic Sorrow.

Robinson, the Arkansas witness whose evidence was to crush Mr. Blaine, testified on Wednesday that he once took a package of something from Boston to Washington and gave it to Mr. Blaine; didn't know what it was; had no information that it was of value; Mr. Blaine gave no receipt for it, and laid it down carelessly; never knew what was in the package, and does not know now; does not even know the people he is said to have told he gave Mr. Blaine bonds; never gave him any bonds, and never told anybody so; in short, Mr. Robinson's evidence completely disgusted Mr. Blaine's pursuers. Mr. Robinson was asked by a Mr. Caldwell of Boston to take a bulky roll (open at both ends) of papers of some kind from Boston and deliver it to Mr. Blaine at Washington, and did so, but never for a moment supposed the package contained railroad bonds. But it seems he at some time incidentally mentioned doing the errand for Caldwell, and the democratic "investigators" made a gallant jump and reached the conclusion that the bundle must of course have contained bonds—for what other papers, save railroad bonds, would a Speaker of the House be likely to receive? Gen. Eppa Hunton, the Virginians brigadier who commanded the rebel forces which slaughtered so many Union troops at Balls' Bluff, is chairman of the committee engaged in trying to smirch Mr. Blaine; and the impartiality with which he allows thieves and blacklegs to tell anything they suspect or have heard of against Mr. Blaine, and then prevents their answering Mr. Blaine's cross-questions on the ground that "hearsay evidence" isn't good for anything, is most admirable,—and a fair example of the just and honorable manner in which all the democratic investigations are conducted.

News and Notes.

Cotton manufacturing and iron working are in a very depressed condition in England. Mills and workshops are idle and many people out of employment.

In Rochester, N. Y., on Wednesday night, John Calhoun shot and killed his wife and himself, and tried to kill his wife's brother.

On Wednesday, near Montreal, a man and boy were killed and three others badly hurt by being run over by a train while trying to cross the track in a carriage.

Ugly reports about Theodore Tilton are frequent in the Western newspapers. The Cleveland Leader charges distinctly that during his lecture at Wellington, Ohio, recently, he was irresponsibly drunk on the platform and at his hotel. A similar report comes from Meadville, Penn., and from other places. In several instances he is said to have insulted his audience and engaged in noisy dispute with individual auditors.—New York Tribune.

A Mexican girl twelve years old, twenty inches high, weighing about five pounds, well-formed, healthy and intelligent, has been holding "receptions" in New Orleans. Tom Thumb is a giant compared with her.

Thirty-two miners have been killed within a few miles of Custer City by the Indians within a few days.

Political.

Hon. Shelby M. Cullom has been nominated for Governor of Illinois by the republicans.

The Illinois delegates to the Cincinnati convention are for Mr. Blaine, with one or two exceptions, but are uninstructed.

The Nebraska delegation to Cincinnati, six in number, are instructed for Mr. Blaine.

Tilden's strikers have money to spend in the South. They are tampering with the professional politicians to secure delegates in his interest, and the editor of every newspaper whose support can be purchased knows that he can obtain money to "whoop up" for Tilden. The Southern masses are not in sympathy with any eastern candidate. They desire Tilden least of all.—Memphis Avalanche.

The Michigan democrats have sent a Tilden delegation to the St. Louis convention, and declared squarely for hard money.

If the democrats do not nominate for President a candidate on a platform pledged to what is called the greenback money, for all persons alike, we shall oppose their candidate by the use of every talent and ability Almighty God will give us. —Pomeroy's Democrat.

Woman's Duties.

"The British Association for the Protection of the Franchise against the Encroachment of Women" has its origin in the conviction that we remember to have heard stated with a great deal of unction, that the duties of a woman are those of a wife and mother. This assertion has at least the fortification of one great truth, which is that nobody but a woman can be a wife and mother. That is a cardinal fact upon which Mr. Bouverie is immovably planted. From that position he cannot be driven by argument or seduced by blandishment. And what, then, is his next step? Simply that a woman ought to be a wife and mother, and nothing else. What could be more logical? See how clear it is by applying the same logic elsewhere. The truth that woman only can be wife and mother is no more evident or incontrovertible than that man alone can be husband and father. Consequently men ought to be husbands and fathers and nothing else. It is their Heaven-appointed sphere, as is beautifully remarked in the case of women.—English paper.

Regulate the Bodily Functions.

This advice should be especially heeded by those who suffer from an irregular habit of body or disorders of the bladder or kidneys. Inactivity of the bowels, or of the urinary organs, is speedily rectified by that wholesome aperient and sterling invigorative diuretic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters; and, as all affections of the organs of discharge have a strong tendency to become chronic, and that very rapidly, the use of the Bitters should not be delayed a moment longer than is necessary. The action of this inestimable corrective upon the bowels differs widely from that of a drastic purgative, since it is never violent or abrupt, but always gentle and natural, and its effects upon the bladder and kidneys are strengthening as well as mildly stimulative. The healthful impetus which it gives to digestion also renders it a most desirable general tonic.

Why suffer from that cough when Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam will speedily and surely cure you? Sold by all druggists.

LYON'S KATHAIRON prevents the Hair from falling out or turning gray, renews its growth, and gives strength and vigor. It is delightfully perfumed, and makes a splendid dressing. It is the cheapest and most desirable Hair Tonic ever produced. Used by the elite. Price only 50 cents.

HAVING NOTICED

The statements in the city papers, that certain persons have been injured by eating pressed corned beef put up in Chicago, and feeling that if not explained these facts will result in injury where it does not belong, did as after a thorough investigation we find that the beef complained of is in every instance beef packed in rolls and enclosed in tin foil by parties unknown to us, and not at all similar to canned beef: therefore we, the undersigned, in simple justice to the public and to the reliable firm that pack the canned article, wish to state that we have for a long time sold Pressed CANNED Corned Beef and Beef Tongues packed in 2, 4, 6 and 14 lb cans, by Messrs. Libby, McNeil & Libby of Chicago, and we cheerfully recommend this brand of goods as a safe, nutritious and economical article of food.

Langdon Park

Was duly inaugurated, with public ceremonies, on Thursday afternoon. A procession of which Col. William H. Sise was Marshal, and consisting of the Knights of Pythias and the Daughters of Rebekah, with the City Guards, Capt. Haddock, for escort, and with Harlow's Marine Band, marched from Market Square down Richards Avenue to the entrance to the Park on South street, closely followed by the Kearsarge Cotton Mill operatives, with the Agent and other officers, with the Drum Corps for music.

The Board of Trustees, and "all the people," it would seem, received the procession at the Park; and after music by the Band, Mr. Frank W. Miller, chairman of the Board, introduced Rev. Dr. Alden, chaplain of the occasion, who earnestly and eloquently invoked the divine blessing upon the exercises of the day and the future of the Park.

Mr. Miller then announced that in accordance with the special request of Rev. Alfred Elwyn, present heir to the Langdon estate, and agreeably to the well known preferences of the late Mrs. Elizabeth L. Elwyn, the Trustees had unanimously decided to change the name from Elwyn to Langdon Park, under which it was hereby dedicated to the public use forever, and the new flag being run up to the masthead, was saluted by Capt. Marvin's Light Artillery, whose field pieces were stationed on the hill adjacent.

Rev. Mr. DeNormandie, orator of the day, then delivered a finely written address, in which he evinced his usual research and thorough acquaintance with his subject, both special and general. We hope to be able to publish it entire.

The chairman introduced ex-Governor Goodwin and Rev. Daniel Austin, who after brief remarks from the stand, proceeded, on behalf of the trustees, to plant a tree in front of the same, as a symbol for the occasion. The Governor related how he saved the present beautiful Park grounds in 1834, from being the location of the Almshouse; and prophesied, as also did Mr. Austin, that a bridge which has been so long talked of, will now be built across the South pond.

Mr. Miller then stated that the venerable and venerated Mrs. Pritchard, in her 96th year, was on the grounds, and would plant her own beautiful white birch tree near the centre of the Park—which she presently did, with appropriate and interesting remarks, which were closely listened to by a large circle. We intended to publish her speech, but have not a copy at hand.

The chairman also stated that the venerable Mrs. John Laighton, who is in her 91st year—mother of the poet Albert Laighton, the lovely old lady, whose presence is a benediction, and whose gift to our city of the poet, her son, and other worthy children, is a benefaction — was on the grounds on Wednesday, and herself planted a chestnut tree, with three others in a group, to be called the Laighton group, with a linden in the centre, selected by her son, and sent with a couple of beautiful verses, which were read by the chairman, but which we also somehow mislaid in the haste of the occasion. The groups of trees set by Gov. Goodwin and Mr. Austin, are mentioned in our detailed record elsewhere.

Rev. Alfred Elwyn was next called upon, and spoke with full approval of the Park, and the change of name to Langdon, and with best wishes for the success of the enterprise.

Hon. C. L. Woodbury, who was then introduced as of Portsmouth and Boston, favored his fellow-townsmen with one of his jolly, able, and always interesting speeches; but must, as usual with him, say a word in favor or toleration of rum and tobacco, in connection with the well-known anecdote of John Langdon's patriotic seventy hogsheads. Mr. W. said he did not favor excess, but he would have us of to-day treat respectfully the rum and tobacco which won us our freedom—to which the chairman replied, that he would agree with him so far as to keep them at a respectful—a very respectful distance.

It was then announced that a weeping elm had been planted by the trustees, in memory of the late Hon. Samuel Cushman, at the request of his daughter, Mrs. Tilton, to be known as the Cushman elm. The chairman referred to his long and valuable services in connection with our public schools; also to the late Rev. Dr. Burroughs, who lived and died in the John Langdon house; to Mr. Elwyn and Col. Albert L. Jones, the late chairman of the Board—and the band gave a beautiful selection appropriate to the memory of the departed.

James P. Bartlett, Esq., responded in his usual earnest and cordial manner, to the call of the chair, and spoke for himself for the new Park and energetic management, and bright prospects, for the public schools, our forefathers, the present.

This closed the exercises at the stand—Dr. J. F. Hall, who was expected to speak, being unexpectedly called to attend professionally Mr. Curtis, who was wounded by the gun accident.

Letters were read regretting inability to be present, from Hon. A. R. Hatch of this city, C. W. Tuttle, Esq., of Boston, Nowell Brothers, Col. Daniel Hall, and others.

The operatives of the Kearsarge Mills then planted a tall and mysterious tree. The ceremony was interspersed with good chorus singing, selections by the drum corps, and most appropriate remarks by Mr. Briant, one of the Overseers. The Mill people, including the managers, were all clothed in smiles, and many of them armed with large and rare bouquets—and they, like everybody else, made a day of it, and were bound to have a good time generally. And they did. This occasion was evidently regarded on all hands as an event. Business generally was suspended, the stores closed, and the people flocked to the grounds by thousands.

The Reform Club also had appropriate service at their temperance grove, Rev. Mr. Goss making a brief address; Sir Knight Charles W. Gardner addressed the Pythians most happily at their beautiful bower; and there were perhaps other services.

The occasion was a happy one, the only drawback being the rather high wind. The scene presented was charming indeed, for a considerable portion of which the public were indebted to the owners of the South mill, for consenting to forego their business for the day, and keeping the pond full of water; and to Mr. Thomas S. Gay, who voluntarily decorated the speakers' stand, the gate and grounds with flags and streamers, but whose tasteful work the stiff breeze very much disarranged.

Jottings.

The last half of Mr. Lamprey's dancing school commences on Saturday.

The dwelling house owned and occupied by Mr. Jonathan K. Plaisted, in York, together with all its contents, was destroyed by fire on the night of the 12th. It caught from a spark on the roof. Mr. Plaisted lived alone, and the fire had full control before he awoke. Loss $1200; lightly insured.

Persons, and more particularly families, bound for the Centennial, will do well to consider the advantages of the all-rail route via the New York & New England Railroad, by which they can go from Boston to Philadelphia without change of cars. A card in another column signed by a large number of well-known and prominent citizens of this State and Massachusetts, and others, recommends it as "the most convenient and pleasant route between New England and Philadelphia, particularly for family travel."

William S. Collier's shop, on Penhallow street, was broken into on the night of the 24th, and five pairs of custom-made boots stolen therefrom.

Schooner Robert Rantoul, Jr., of Boston, Quinn, master, from Portland for Gloucester with shooks, while between the Isles of Shoals and Gloucester, was found to leak badly, the heavy sea having caused the vessel to roll and open her seams. She put into this port Wednesday, recaulked, and Thursday afternoon left for Gloucester. The Robert Rantoul, Jr., was formerly a packet schooner running between Dover and Boston.

While the salute was being fired at the Park on Thursday, by the Light Artillery, one of the guns went off prematurely, just as Mr. Joseph R. Curtis had inserted the rammer. Had he received the full force of the explosion he would have been killed; as it was he was stunned for a few moments, his right thumb was broken, and he received some bruises and a slight scorching. The rammer was sent into the middle of the Millpond.

—One of the strangest stories that ever beguiled a Winter's night was that of the disappearance of a stone house in London while its owners were journeying in the Holy Land. This could scarcely happen in these days of telegraph and steam. Neighbors who saw the great gate taken away, the furniture removed, and every brick and stone carried off in broad daylight, never imagined the workmen were robbers, and so did not interfere.

LINCOLN BUTTER POWDER.

Good Fresh Butter All The Year Round.

BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.

Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the butter counties around Philadelphia.

In hot weather this Powder makes better much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cotton seed, etc.; and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

ACHSAH:

A New England Life Study.

BY REV. PETER PENOT. 12 mo, cloth.....$1.50.

The manly, whole souled, and devoted young clergyman is no lancy sketch; Deacon Sterne, the sanctimonious hypocrite; the plain-dealing old maid sister; the awaking, saying maid, are life-like and real, while the heroine, ACHSAH, is a lovely character, with whom the reader is in deep sympathy. These, with the various other characters of the story, are so combined as to produce a book full of interest, entirely lasting to one.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1875, and the demand for them has grown so fast their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse fast, and I felt I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained some for them, and they report one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.

SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE.—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have gotten away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only these pills and can say anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, six dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty or Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to sleep to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be indebted to my friend. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health Restored at 64 than 44—Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Rockendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Messrs. FROTHINGHAM & Co are very extensive brokers, of large experience and tried integrity. Portsmouth Chronicle.

—The late John Forster is described by Blanchard Jerrold as having been remarkably pompous and dogmatic. Once a cabman called for him at 2 A. M., to convey him home, but could not remember his name, and said to the porter "You know who I mean—I mean that there barbitary cove." The porter went direct to Mr. Forster's room, and told him his cab was waiting. This is sufficient proof of his peculiarity—and Mr. Jerrold illustrates it by stating that once at Dickens' table, somebody asked the host how many children he had. "Four," said Dickens. Whereupon, Forster interrupted, with an air of great authority: "Dickens, you have five children." "Upon my word, Forster," Dickens expostulated, "allow me to know the number of my own family." "Five, my dear Dickens," was the firm rejoinder. When it was proved that four was the correct number, Forster gave in with a laugh. One would hardly choose a man like this as the biographer of one's self or friends, and it is little wonder if, as is stated, the friends of Dickens were not pleased with Forster's life of the great novelist.

SATURDAY, MAY 27, 1876.

Unan.

Among the New Hampshire republican papers, the Nashua Telegraph, the Amherst Cabinet, the Claremont Eagle, the Exeter News-Letter, the Lake Village Times and the Manchester Mirror are for Bristow. The Lancaster Republican, the Keene Sentinel, the Concord Monitor and the Portsmouth CHRONICLE are for Blaine.

We clip the above from the Boston Journal. In our issue of March 28th we expressed our preference for Mr. Blaine. At that time the tide set strongly in his favor in this part of the State. But we believe that a public journal should bow in deference to a public sentiment, and there is no disguising the fact that a change has come over our people; many of our prominent republicans who were for Mr. Blaine then are now advocating the claims of Mr. Bristow. We believe the most earnest desire of the masses of the republican party is a thorough reform administration, and to insure that something more than signal "party services" are necessary. If either Bristow or Blaine receives the nomination at Cincinnati we are confident the party would give him a most cordial, united and enthusiastic support.—Coos Republican.

Now let's hear from the Monitor and CHRONICLE. We might as well make it unanimous.—Manchester Mirror.

The delegates elected to the Cincinnati convention are said to be seven (and perhaps nine) for Blaine and one for Bristow. —Monitor.

Is the Mirror willing to make it unanimous?

News and Notes.

Hon. Edward F. Beale, of the District of Columbia, is appointed Minister to Austria.

The annual report of the Warden of the New Hampshire State Prison has been published. The total earnings for the year have been $36,399, and the expenses, $15,821, leaving a balance of $20,598. From this sum there is to be deducted a discount allowed the prison contractor, and the expenses of a new boiler, leaving an actual gain for the year of $13,731. There are no outstanding claims against the prison. The assets are $48,801, which includes the amount due from the contractor. The contract price of labor per day has been reduced from ninety-five cents to sixty-three and one-third cents, and it is probable that a further reduction will be made by the State in view of the hard times and the depression of business. Mr. Cumins' counsel says he is ready to pay all he owes the State.

Roscoe Conkling is Decoration Day orator in New York.

A white murderer was judicially executed at Holly Springs, Mo., on the 24th, and a negro was lynched in Lynn county, same State and day, for outrage on a woman. Also, on the same day, a mob in South Carolina shot to death four men who were under arrest for murdering a man and his wife a week previous.

The town of Nelson is to have a beautiful Italian marble Soldier's Monument, which is to be finished and dedicated on the Fourth of July.

Samuel J. Frost was hung, at Worcester on Friday, for the murder of his brother-in-law. His head was broken off by the fall, and death was instantaneous. He asserted his innocence of willful murder to the last, and died like a stoic.

Thomas W. Piper was hanged on Friday. He met his fate firmly.

J. J. Patterson of New Jersey is to be doorkeeper of the House, vice Fitzhugh, "jerked" out. Patterson is said to be a much better man than Fitzhugh, though his war record is not so good as the latter's and he was never indicted for either grand larceny, perjury or arson.

A small pleasure steamer suddenly sank in Suncook river on Thursday evening, with sixteen ladies and gentlemen on board. Three men, named Ira C. Swain, Thomas Wainwright, Jr., and John Millette, were drowned. Wainwright and Millette were unmarried; Swain leaves a wife and three children.

The report of the Emma Mine investigating committee acquits Gen. Schenck of fraud or intent to defraud, but censures—and justly—his speculative dealings as being "ill-advised and unfortunate, and inconsistent with the obligations and dignity of his official position."

Frank Peralto, the Mexican mustang rider, rode 155 miles in seven hours on the Fleetwood Park, New York, Thursday, taking nothing for nourishment but milk and water.

The wreck of the "Jane Young," formerly owned by Messrs. Troop & Son, of this city, has before been announced. The master and crew of the vessel have now arrived at Halifax. Capt. McDonald reports that he left Ardrossan on the 4th of April, for Quebec, in ballast (300 tons coal.) On the 11th of May, at 4 A. M., during a thick fog, the vessel suddenly struck on a cliff on Miquelon, St. Pierre. The vessel went side on to the cliff, and tremendous breakers dashed her to pieces in a very short time. The first boat lowered was stove to pieces; but better luck attended the launching of the second boat, and the captain and crew—ten all told—got in. The crew managed to effect a landing at the foot of the cliff, but were in momentary danger of being washed off. One of the men scrambled up to a footing at the side of the cliff, taking with him the life line. In this perilous task he was assisted by Capt. McDonald, and together they succeeded in attaching the line so that the rest were enabled to climb to the side in safety—a climb of some 400 feet. Near by where the "Jane Young" went to pieces, was a French schooner, the "Bessie," then almost on the rocks, being held by five anchors. The captain of the "Bessie" succeeded in getting a cask of bread to the shipwrecked crew, but for which they must have starved. After being on the cliff some time, and suffering from cold and exposure, the crew got on board the "Bessie" and were taken to Sydney.—St. John (N. B.) Globe.

Political.

The Boston Herald thinks the nomination of Adams and Bristow "would send an electric thrill over the country." A barrel of clams would furnish more electricity than Charles Francis Adams.—Lowell Courier.

Is "Don" Cameron a sample of what President Conkling's Cabinet would be?

The Quincy (Ill.) Whig recommends Blaine and Bristow as the wisest thing by all means that the Cincinnati convention can do.

The republicans of the First District of Maine have chosen Hon. John B. Brown of Portland and Hon. E. H. Banks of Biddeford as delegates to the Cincinnati convention.

The republican State convention of Kansas instructed the delegates to Cincinnati for Blaine.

The first ballot at Chicago in the ever-memorable convention of 1860 stood: Wm. H. Seward 173; Abraham Lincoln, 102; Simon Cameron, 50; S. P. Chase, 49; Edward Bates, 48; with scattering from 14 downwards.

Mr. W. C. N. Swift, who monopolizes the live oak growth of Florida, and furnishes it to the United States Government at a round profit, is a well known democrat of Massachusetts. Congressman Whitthorne of Tennessee, chairman of the House investigating committee on naval affairs, who in his backwoods wisdom thought it best to sell some of the navy yards to promote economy and the interests of the democratic party, seems to have thought that Swift would be tender material to operate on for the purpose of proving fraud against Secretary Robeson. He had no idea that Swift was a democrat, and when Swift appeared as a witness before the committee, Whitthorne, being desirous of making political capital out of Swift's testimony, ventured the question whether Swift had ever contributed money for political purposes. "Yes," was the answer, "I paid $5000 for the election of James Buchanan, $1000 toward the election of Capt. Marcy in New Hampshire, $500 toward the election of Gov. Gaston in Massachusetts, and $500 for Gov. Tilden." Whitthorne was staggered in his further explorations in that direction, and "the subsequent proceedings interested him no more."

The statements in the city papers, that certain persons have been injured by eating pressed corned beef put up in Chicago, and feeling that if not explained these facts will result in injury where it does not belong, and as after a thorough investigation we find that the beef complained of is in every instance beef packed in rolls and enclosed in tin foil by parties unknown to us, and not at all similar to canned beef; therefore we, the undersigned, in simple justice to the public and to the reliable firm that pack the canned article, wish to state that we have for a long time sold Pressed CANNED Corned Beef and Beef Tongues packed in 2, 4, 6 and 14 ℔ cans, by Messrs. ADDRESS

Of Rev. JAMES DeNORMANDIE at the Dedication of Langdon Park, May 25th, 1876:

It often falls to the lot of one generation to repair the destructions of the preceding. What the necessities of an early civilization require us to cut down, the equal necessities of a fuller culture may plead with us to restore. The forests which covered this surrounding space as far as our vision can reach, and met the yearning gaze of our first settlers, called forth their wildest praises, and became a large part of their wealth.

It is 274 years since the spirit of enterprise for establishing colonies, and exploring the fabled riches of this continent, which was most active in the French, English, Spanish and Portugese in the 17th century—drew near to our harbor. At that time there was no European family along the whole line of the sea from Florida to Greenland. In March, 1602, Gosnold, an adventurer associated with the distinguished Sir Walter Raleigh, sailed for America, with a small vessel, sighted the coast of Maine, gave the name to Cape Cod, and after some discouragements gave up his plan and returned with a cargo of Sassafras root, then one of the most prized among medicines, and bringing such extravagant prices that it was one of the most valuable freights that could be taken to the sick of the old world. It is in memory of this first vision of our shore, as well for its own beauty that I have tried to find a fine specimen of the Sassafras tree, to set out in this park. The voyagers were enraptured by the landscape of our coast, and one of them after returning, wrote, "we stood awhile as ravished at the beautie, and delicacy of the sweetness."

In 1613 another expedition, this time from Bristol, came across the ocean, and in the month of June entered our harbor, and left, if not a permanent settlement another testimony "to the goodly groves and woods" along the banks of our river. In 1623 this spirit of enterprise took for us a more definite form, and with results lasting unto the present day. There were two persons, Sir Ferdinando Gorges and Capt. John Mason, conspicuous in energy, adventure, and faith in the final success of planting colonies here. "I doubt not," writes Gorges, "it will prove a very flourishing place, and be replenished with many fair towns and cities, it being a province both fruitful and pleasant." A prophecy which has had ample fulfilment.

Perhaps we shall never know beyond doubt, the name of the vessel, or the day or mouth which brought the first colony to the mouth of our harbor. It may have been a barque belonging to the father of young Francis Champernowne, who afterward owned extensive possessions in Greenland and Kittery, from whom on the early maps, Chauncy Creek was called Champernowne Creek. It surely was close to this season of the year. The traces of that settlement, the foundation stones of Mason's Manor Hall, of the blacksmith shop near by, the stones which mark the graves out of which great trees, worthy of the primeval ones, have grown, nourished by the dust of our ancestors—are all easy of access, at Odierne's Point, where, an unusual thing in our land, the eighth generation is still found on the homestead of the first.

The settlement fairly begun, the necessity of fires and houses, of pastures and gardens and boats, required that the first labor should be the clearing of these forests. It seemed a ruthless destruction, but self-preservation, the comforts of life, the pursuits of commerce, the progress of civilization all called for it. Man turns all nature first to his necessities, and then to his enjoyments. Beginning on yonder coast, slowly the forest mass fell before the invading axe. The trees turned into log cabins from Little Harbor to Strawberry Bank. Up to the first rude chapel on Pleasant street, just across the pond, and by goodly groves, many a Sunday the worshippers came in their boats to the Episcopal Service by Pastor Gibson. There was no need of parks then for recreation, or grand trees for shade or shelter—the continent was a park. A clearer vision, lest perchance an Indian was behind some friendly oak, and room for the kindly fruits of the earth, were more needed.

So matters have gone on for two centuries. When we have gathered all we can from the treasures of the woods, when we have all the ground we want for agriculture, when the increase of wealth gives to a community more leisure, or the pressure of business and toil its attendant weariness, when we learn that the temperature, the rains, our crops and our health are somewhat influenced by our forests, man begins in the interests of pleasure, and of preservation, to restore the destructions his necessities once made. We respect the plan of nature as we know more of it, and by nature's own generous help we bring back her harmonies, "for Nature is made better by no means but Nature makes that means."

One of the first sentences in the old Latin reader is this: "The true husbandman plants the tree, a berry of which he will never behold." We begin to-day a work whose chief benefits after generations shall enjoy. We plant for posterity. Under the shade of these trees our children's children may rest and be grateful. There is something in the steady and increasing growth of the forest for so many years, solemn and suggestive. There are trees of the myrtle class in the valleys of Australia, surpassing in height the dome of St. Peter's, while on the island of Teneriffe is the Dragon tree, older than any date ascribed to the pyramids,—so that the ancients regarded trees as immortal, or as old as Time. The great oak of Saintes in Southern France is 90 feet in girth, and at least two thousand years old, whose leaves stirred before the tread of the cohorts of the first Cæsar, and heard the laments over the fall of the last Napoleon. There is the Cowthorpe oak of England, over eighteen hundred years old, which has looked calmly down upon all the revolutions and developments of that wonderful island. There is the Linden of Wurtemberg, called "the great" six centuries ago, and there are olive trees on the slope of Olivet which were, not improbably, witnesses to the birth of Jesus. There are species of pine in our California forests of which Prof. Gray says, "it is possible that close to the heart of some of the living trees may be found the circle which records the year of our Saviour's nativity. There are cypress trees which by the most moderate calculation, have attained the venerable age of at least four thousand years, as unchanged as the Oriental civilizations they have witnessed. (Science Monthly, July 1873.)

In the fact of these great ages, which are being more and more fully established, it may be, too, that the great oak of Abraham, now standing on the plains of Mamre is the very one which shaded the patriarch, for as far back as history goes it has the weight of the tradition, and has welcomed to its living shrine a procession of pilgrims reaching through unnumbered centuries. Stately and alone on the plain stands this immense tree. As we drew near, we found a company of pilgrims holding a religious service beneath its spreading branches, while children climbing among them dropped down little twigs, which were gathered at the close for the venerable bishop to bless. Grand old tree to have witnessed the birth of Hebrew monotheism out of the worship of Chaldean stargazers, to have heard the Psalmist of Israel, to have been a silent witness at the birth of Jesus, and to hear the hymn of prayer from the unceasing throng still cherishing the memory of the "Friend of God." So we learn a lesson of permanence and growth from trees. They grow more slowly as they grow old, but as long as they live, they grow, and the foliage which comes forth on this spring day is as new as that which adorned them an hundred or a thousand years ago.

But we are asked in our overmastering spirit of utilitarianism, "Will it pay?" That question was asked of an Hibernian about the Hoosac Tunnel, and he replied "that whether it would pay or not, it was doubtless a great ornament to society." The returns of a Park may never come in any pecuniary benefits, which can be touched or handled. Doubtless there are some forebodings of new claims upon the city treasury to end what has been well begun. Doubtless some may ask what need of any Park in a town so small, that amidst the surrounding groves, and walks, and drives, the ocean beaches hard by, and the banks of this chiefest of rivers, it is easy for any one to find the rest and charms of nature's glory. Our reply is, that nature having done so much for us, it is our place to add to these natural advantages all that we can. Our reply is, that one of our chief needs, near every city is some retreat easy of access and free as the forests to our first settlers, where those who are confined by the business and labor of the week may come with their families every holiday, and a part of every Sunday, and find grateful rest, as in the flight into Egypt the old artists represent the holy family beneath some sheltering tree, whose fruitful branches are bent by angel hands to their hungry lips. Our reply is that the most useful things are often those which bring us the least perceptible, and least immediate returns, but returns which, like the growth of a forest tree, reach through generations. Last Sunday afternoon I passed through the Public Garden and Common of Boston, and I never felt so intensely the usefulness of such resorts. In the genial air of that first day of Summer, thousands were sitting, strolling, talking, resting by the statues, the flowers, the fountains, under the elms, and I, a clergyman, feeling as keenly as any one the emptiness of the sanctuary, could not but confess that many found there the most helpful worship. It is true that nature does not of itself give the taste of beauty, the culture of knowledge, or the sense of reverence. The Indian among the grandest scenes of earth was savage still, and early worship amidst the grandeur of the universe was supremely of fear rather than trust,—but when these faculties have once been aroused and taken through other revelations a right direction, all outward things of beauty give some strength to better emotions, some silent rebukings of the lower, and one in whom religion has found a lodgement at all, can hardly roam or meditate amidst such surroundings "without some sense of a dew falling upon him out of the sky."

There is one way, however, in which the planting of trees may become useful in the lowest meaning, and not only useful but benificent. I mean by setting out, with shade trees, nut and fruit trees whose products should be free to all. In our parks, along our common highways for miles and miles we might have rows of these, giving, with hardly any cost, fruit enough to supply all those who seldom have it abundantly. The managers of some of our railroads might atone for their ignorance or dishonesty in business matters by lining these roads with the apple and pear, the peach and walnut, and berries too, whose loaded boughs should year by year drop a blessing into the thousand homes whose little earnings they have taken unto themselves, or into those other thousands to whom good fruit is only the temptation in their neighbor's garden—and I will trust all the boys of Portsmouth to let the trees grow and the fruit mellow as surely as the children of Warnerton and Gibbins, Sherburne and Sloper, Pickering and Cotton, Cutt and Vaughn, Odierne and Penhallow, and of many a nameless settler, let the wild berries ripen upon Strawberry Bank, two hundred summers ago.

All literature is full of the part the groves and forests have played in civilization; poetry, art, religion have turned to these for analogy, illustration, the secrets ofnature, the records of history, and the handiwork of importance. Among the Greeks they were sacred, for that reverential people thought they were filled with divinities to meet and bless them at every stop—whereas to Dante the idea of a forest is repulsive, and in the middle ages they were held to be the resort of robbers instead of deities, until the poets of England, Chaucer, Spencer, and Shakespeare restored them to their glory, and sent their favorites into the woods for pleasure, for meditation, and there the Knights and ladies are always represented as singing, or making love, or finding there the rest and joy of life. (See Ruskin, Vol. 3d, page 215 Modern Painters.

Among all trees perhaps no one has sewed a better or more frequent purpose in literature or in life, than one native to our soil, the pine. Placed nearly always among scenes disordered and desolate, it brings them into all possible elements of order and precision. Lowland trees may lean to this side or that, though it be but a meadow breeze that bends them, or a bank of cowslips from which their trunks lean aslope; but let storm and avalanche do their worst, and let the pine find only a edge of vertical precipice to cling to it will nevertheless grow straight. It desires nothing but rightness. Tall or short it will be straight. Small or large it will be round. Softer than the bodies of other trees though its struggle of life is harder. Whether the magnificent pines which have had room and nourishment to attain the proportions of the California trees, or the dwarfs on whose tops you can walk among the storm-swept rocks of Mt. Washington, they are pines still,—as whether sheltered from temptation, and nourished by all the opportunities of culture, or driven by the storms of passion, we are human beings still.

"The grandeur of the forest tree
Comes not by casting in a formal mould,
But from its own divine vitality."

In religion too what a part have groves and forests played, as the scene of man's earliest worship, or furnishing its treasures for his temples. Take that beautiful nature-hymn of Willis,

The perfect world by Adam trod,
Was the first temple built by God,
His fiat laid the corner stone
And heaved its pillars one by one.
He hung the starry roof on high
The broad illimitable sky.
He spread its pavement green and bright
And curtained it with morning light.
The mountains in their places stood,
The sea, the sky, and all were good.
And, when its first pure praises rang
The morning stars together sang.

In the scripture how manifold and significant the references to trees, from the one of Knowledge and of Life at the opening of Genesis, to the one at the close of Revelations whose leaves were for the healing of the nations. The juniper tree which heard the despair of Isaiah; the godly man like the tree planted by the rivers of waters, the groves of the idolsters, the cedars of Lebanon which the Lord hath planted, the trees of the field which clap their hands, and the woods and wilderness in which the flock of Israel were to dwell and safely sleep—and Eden and Gethsemane were not so much gardens as the Park of Paradise by the Euphrates, and the olive fields across the Kedron.

Let us rejoice then that we are to have a Park. Year by year let us do what we can to make it more and more attractive, as year by year the silent forces of nature carry on the work we begin to-day. Let us bear in kindly memory him, through whose patriotic ancestors, and love of nature, and of preserving from traffic and destruction her growths, we have received this gift. Let us pay our tribute to those who with enthusiasm, energy, and generosity have made this day's dedication so successful. Here may toil find rest, meditation reverence, childhood a place for its sports, youth for its sentiments, age for its reflection, and may Almighty God grant that the trees we plant to-day, still fresh when we have all faded, when the century comes round, may shelter better men and women than we are, and see brighter days for our loved Fatherland.

Jottings.

The Journal has a labored article favoring a further appropriation from this city for the payment of the debt of the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad. The tax-payers will not consent to the proposed increase of the city debt for any such purpose; $300,000 is enough for the city to throw away in one decade.

Oscar Joseph Pfeiffer of this city, of the junior class of Dartmouth, is to be a member of the Dartmouth University crew at Saratoga this Summer.

Rev. J. K. Aldrich of Rye has declined a call from the Congregational church of Swanton, Vermont.

The Riggs House, a new hotel, has been opened in Washington, D. C., by J. P. Plumer, a son of Portsmouth, and C. W. Spofford, formerly of the Revere House, Boston. The Riggs House is named for one of the leading bankers of Washington, and is situated at the corner of G and Fifteenth streets, facing the garden of the Treasury Department, and near various lines of horse cars, so useful in the city of magnificent distances. The house is fitted up and furnished with elegance and artistic taste, the colors in each room harmonizing exquisitely. In the ladies' parlor is a Chickering grand piano, and the walls are adorned with paintings from Mr. Plumer's private collection. Both of the landlords have had practical experience which has admirably fitted them for their respective stations, and cannot fail to make the Riggs House a popular hotel, especially among New England visitors.

The Heavy Artillery Company has been accepted and assigned as Co. K., First Regiment. Capt. Frank Williams, and Lieuts. David Urch and Shirley B. Cunningham, have been commissioned.

The adjourned meeting of the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad will be held at the Common Council room on Monday, at half past eleven o'clock, A. M.

Housekeepers troubled with black ants can, we are assured, find an excellent banishing remedy by cultivating spearmint around the house.

Rev. Charles A. Holbrook, Rector of St. John's Church, baptised on Thursday evening ten persons. Right Rev. Bishop Niles will administer the rite of confirmation to twenty-seven candidates on Sunday evening.

On and after June 1st the general delivery at the Post Office will be open daily from 7:30 A. M., to 7:30 P. M., except on Sundays, when the hours will be from 9:30 to 10 A. The Great Falls Free Press pays a just compliment to Col. Kent as a candidate for Sheriff of Rockingham county, saying: "He has been a very efficient and faithful officer in the United States Secret Service."

Posted in a store in Seabrook is this notice: "It is better to wear a calico dress, without trimmings, if it is paid for, than to owe the shopkeeper for the most elegant silk, cut and trimmed in the most bewitching manner."

Steamer "Isaac Bell" will leave Newburyport for Philadelphia this afternoon at three o'clock, returning June 3d and allowing six days for excursionists to attend the Centennial Exhibition. Tickets for the round trip, including board, $30 to $50. See advertisement.

Rev. John A. Goss addressed the Daughters of Rebekah at the Park dedication, Thursday, and not the Reform Club, as we reported. In our notice of the proceedings, also, we inadvertently omitted to mention that the procession was pioneered to and from the Park by the city Marshal, Assistant Marshal and police force in a body, and in uniform.

Mrs. Elizabeth Pritchard, the oldest lady in the city, now in her 96th year, at the dedication of her tree at the Park, said: "I bless the gentlemen who so kindly presented me with this beautiful tree in my old age. May it live and thrive, and may they and theirs have the pleasure of sitting under the shadow of its branches for time to come May the blessing of the good God ever attend all the officers of this Park in their good and noble work, and may they be blessed in all their undertaking. I believe this park will be, must be a blessing to the city and the community."

Albert Laighton, Esq., contributed the following:

Dear Friend: This linden-tree I send;—
Find for it some green spot,
Some sheltering slope where stormy winds
May pass and harm it not.
Be tender of its budding charms;
Give it the amplest room,
That wooing airs may some day come
And kiss it into bloom.

Memorial Day.

The observation of Memorial Day next Tuesday will be more general than ever before, and the various committees are rapidly perfecting arrangements. Citizens are desired to send liberal contributions of flowers to the hall early Monday and Tuesday forenoons. The floral offerings will be carried in the car instead of by individuals, which will be finely fitted up for this special purpose. All special decorations should bear suitable cards and be left with the committee appointed to receive them in the upper Franklin Hall.

The procession will consist of the city government, marine corps, two companies of boys from the training ship, four military companies, floral car, fire department, temperance and other organizations, probably three bands of music and two drum corps.

The committee on flags, to whom has been entrusted the marking of graves, will be at the South Cemetery this (Saturday) morning at 8 o'clock, to attend to that duty. Parties interested in graves which have not been designated by flags in years past, are requested to be present at that time and point out the same.

The proprietors of the street sprinklers have offered to sprinkle the streets through which the procession is to pass, gratuitously, and the generous offer has been accepted with thanks.

The exercises at Harmony Grove Cemetery will consist of music by the Marine Band; an oration by Col. Russell H. Conwell, of Boston, a veteran of the rebellion; and an ode written for the occasion by Albert Laighton, to be read by Miss Susie P. Spalding, and afterward sung by the audience to the full accompaniment of the band.

To the Ladies.

The Floral Committee on Decoration Day invite the ladies to assemble in the banquet-room of Franklin Hall (entrance on Fleet street) at 10 o'clock this (Saturday) morning, and any time thereafter until the noon of Memorial Day, to assist in working on evergreen. Everything necessary will be provided at the hall. PER ORDER OF COM.

—A Lowell youth was a little chagrined, recently, when a spark from a pipe he had just put into his pocket burned a hole so large that his whiskey bottle slipped out on the sidewalk, just in front of the rooms of the reform club, and in the presence of several ladies.

—The painting of the royal arms of England, which formerly hung over the Speaker's chair in the House of Representatives at Hartford, Conn., and was taken down one hundred years ago, is now at the rooms of the Connecticut Historical Society, and is well preserved.

—"Landlord, didn't you ever have a gentleman stop with you before?" "Are you a gentleman?" "Yes, I am." "Then I never had one stop with me before."

LINCOLN BUTTER POWDER.

Good Fresh Butter All The Year Round.

BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.

Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the butter counties around Philadelphia.

In hot weather this Powder makes butter much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cotton seed, etc., and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

Daily Chronicle.

—Well, we are lazy in Norfolk, that's a fact. But there is no need of working here. If a man has energy enough to dig a worm he can take a pin-hook and sit down on the wharf and catch fish enough in one day to last him two. If he is too lazy to dig a worm he can tie a piece of flannel rag on a string and catch enough crabs to last him a day or two; and, if he is too lazy to tie a piece of flannel to a string, he lays down on his back on the sand at ebb tide, opens his mouth, and when the tide comes in the crabs run into it. What need is there for work in a country for which nature has done so much?—N. C. Economist.

—A Washington man, who was used as a reference to establish a friend's character, did it thus comprehensively: "I am happy to inform you that Mr. Smith stands at the very top of respectability here. He owns a fast horse, a New York judge, and intends to steal the first railroad he sees lying about loose."

—A cynical old bachelor says, "ideas are like beards; men only get them when they are grown up, and women never have any."

Liver and Blood Diseases.

By R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Author of "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser" &c.

A healthy liver secretes each day about two and a half pounds of bile, which contains a great amount of waste material taken from the blood. When the liver becomes torpid or congested, it fails to eliminate this vast amount of noxious substance, which, therefore, remains to poison the blood, and be conveyed to every part of the system. What must be the condition of the blood when it is receiving and retaining each day two and a half pounds of poison? Nature tries to work off this poison through other channels and organs—the kidneys, lungs, skin, etc., but these organs become over-taxed in performing this labor in addition to their natural functions, and cannot long withstand the pressure, but become variously diseased.

The brain, which is the great electral center of all vitality, is unduly stimulated by the unhealthy blood which passes to it from the heart, and it fails to perform its office healthily. Hence the symptoms of bile poisoning, which are dullness, headache, incapacity to keep the mind on any subject, impairment of memory, dizzy, sleepy, or nervous feelings, gloomy forebodings, and irritability of temper. The blood itself being diseased, as it forms the sweat upon the surface of the skin, it is so irritating and poisonous that it produces discolored brown spots, pimples, blotches, and other eruptions, sores, boils, carbuncles, and scrofulous tumors. The stomach, bowels, and other organs, cannot escape becoming affected, sooner or later, and we have, as the result, costiveness, piles, dropsy, dispepsia, and diarrhœa. Other symptoms are common, as bitter or bad taste in the mouth, internal heat, palpitation, teasing cough, unsteady appetite, choking sensation in the throat, bloating of stomach, pain in sides or about shoulders or back, coldness of extremeties, etc. Only a few of the above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time. The liver being the great depurating, or blood-cleansing organ of the system, set this great "housekeeper of our health" at work, and the foul corruptions which gender in the blood, and rot out, as it were, the machinery of life, are gradually expelled from the system. For this purpose, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, with small doses daily of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, are pre-eminently the articles need ed. They cure every kind of humor from the worst scrofula to the common pimple, blotch, or eruption. Great eating ulcers kindly heal under their mighty curative influence. Virulent blood poisons that lurk in the system are by them robbed of their terrors, and by their prompt use, in some what protracted use the most tainted systems may be completely renovated and built up anew. Enlarged glands, tumors, and swellings, dwindle away and disappear under the influence of these great resolvents.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first year, their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks, and in a short time I saw your bills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and received thirty them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can repeat for myself, that one package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained from orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find price of three packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and do doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,

Care Watson & Gannett.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, so that I was unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in my appearance, it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they should prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Lynn, and one in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years of experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lungs trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

—AND

Croup,

Diphtheria,

DATE SLIPS,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE—

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

French Army Life.

Among the several extraordinary, but happy evolutions at present taking place in France, the civic or domestic influences that are rapidly gaining ground in the army, merit to be studied. The military spirit of the nation is as intact as in the time of Cæsar, but it is gradually becoming less adventurous, more prudent in a word. This change is the natural consequence of the new army reorganization schemes, and which aimed at two essential ends—compelling every able-bodied citizen to be a soldier—to be equal before the defence of the country as before the code, and to make military life settled instead of nomadic. The realm is divided into eighteen military zones, each sub-divided into eight districts. There is an army corps corresponding to every zone, which is a kind of fixture. An officer can thus settle down, become like German soldiers, a family man, and this is just the evolution that is being accomplished. Home regiments will no longer be sent to foreign parts; Algeria will be defended by special troops; and as there are no dynasties to crutch up, the country can no longer be dragged into wars for ideas, or expeditions to extend the Latin race. In case of European war, the lawyer and the grocer have to run the same risks and perils, as officers and soldiers on active service. The officers having acquired stability of residence, commence to long for a domestic fireside of their own; the attractions of a cafe, its smoking, its swiping necessities, and its "garrison love," are already on the decline. Fathers with marriageable daughters no longer view an officer-husband in the light of a catastrophe, being no more birds of passage; officers can make permanent relations.

The Result of Selfishness.

The Great Falls Free Press and the Exeter News-Letter are unduly exercised over the rejection of Hon. Charles Doe as a delegate-at-large to the Cincinnati convention. The Press says: "That the great mass of the party will hang their heads in shame at being tricked out of the election of Judge Doe, and being falsely placed before the country as deliberately opposing it, there can be no doubt." The News-Letter expresses itself in the same strain, as follows: "The name of Judge Doe does not appear upon the list of the delegates chosen. In part his own desire to remain at home is the cause, but we cannot shut our eyes to the fact that the people were fairly juggled out of the candidate who of all others was calculated to give character and influence to the delegation." There is more evidence of chagrin than good sense in the above extracts; more of spite than good will. Judge Doe was neither "tricked" nor "juggled" out of an election. He had repeatedly declared himself unwilling to be a candidate and not desirous of attending the Cincinnati convention. He was beset by eager politicians who wanted his game for use in forwarding their private schemes, and to use their own words indicated finally only a willingness to go "should the convention decide against his wishes in opposition to his desire, and in a manner approaching unanimity." These over-zealous champions knew that the Bristow men had no prospect of electing a ticket headed with delegates known, like Judge Doe, to prefer the Kentucky Cabinet officer over other candidates. They offered him as one compromise ticket. The Blaine leaders, knowing they had an undoubted majority of the delegates, refused all compromise and declared their intention to place a ticket of their own selection in the field. Then was the time for the unwise Bristow men to withdraw Judge Doe as a candidate—but instead they insisted on forcing upon the convention both Judge Doe and Ex-Gov. Straw, knowing that the former was much stronger personally than the cause he represented, and hoping by his personal popularity to retrieve their fallen fortunes. Many of the Blaine men and all the Bristow men voted for him and yet he lacked forty votes of an election. The issue was clearly made and understood; there was neither "trickery" nor "juggling," but a fair, open ballot. The defeat of Judge Doe as a candidate against his own good judgment and wishes, lies at the door of those who insisted upon using his name to cloak their own personal schemes.

News and Notes.

Harry Allen of Exeter had been imbibing too freely, and consequently felt as ugly as a Sioux Indian on the war path. He made a sortie on a lot of gamins on Franklin street and scooped up one, a boy about five years old and a distant relative of Harry's, whom he deposited in the chilly depths of Fresh river. This appeared to satiate his appetite (for blood) and he sought his wigwam. The boy was rescued by his mother, who "went over" Mr. Allen in no mild way.

At Alfred, Me., Saturday afternoon, a jury rendered a verdict against the Boston & Maine Railroad in favor of a Mrs. Lord of Biddeford, for $2000, for damages alleged to have been sustained by her, caused by a fall at Old Orchard Beach while getting out of the cars, the evidence showing that the cars did not stop a sufficient length of time for her to get off with safety.

A Hanover dispatch says: Six years ago John Bartlett, a farmer living a few miles north of Norwich Village, suddenly disappeared and has never been heard of since. He left a property which was at once taken possession of and sold by a man who has been ever since suspected of being the murderer. It is rumored that sufficient testimony has been obtained and the suspected man arrested.

As L. Woodbury Colbath, of Stratham, was with a pry assisting to move a rock from its bed recently, the chain to which a pair of oxen were attached slipped, and the lever struck Mr. Colbath under the arm with such force as to hurl him some twenty feet. Strange to relate no bones were broken.

Elbridge D. Sargent, a young man of 25 years, shot police officer Taylor in the neck at Newburyport on Friday, while under the influence of liquor. Taylor will recover.

Barques National Eagle, bound from Boston for Rio with a cargo of ice, arrived at Newport on Friday with the captain, two mates and three seamen of the Novia Scotia brig S. M. Collamore, which vessel was run down and sunk in a fog by the barque, off Nantucket Shoals, May 23d. The captain's wife and three seamen were drowned.

Piper, some days before his execution, made a supplementary confession, acknowledging his motives for murdering Bridget Landergan and Mabel Young—motives too sickeningly vile to be particularized in our columns. His motives in attempting to murder Mary Tynam was to get back the $5 he had given her the night before, and the assault was committed with a plumber's hammer Piper had taken from the Warren Avenue church; this hammer he buried in the church cellar, in a spot designated by him, but it was dug up some days before the execution and is now in possession of the Boston police.

The famine of small change is easily explicable, since only $7,000,000 of silver has been issued.

Charles Cates, William Coombs and William Keene, while sailing in Gloucester harbor Friday evening, were capsized, and Cates and Coombs were drowned. Keene, after being in the water almost two hours, was rescued by help from a coaster at anchor in the harbor. They were about 18 years old, and belonged in East Gloucester.

Rear-Admiral Alexander Murray will relieve Rear-Admiral John J. Almy of the command of the North Pacific station on the 1st of July next.

A company known as Col. Storrs' squad were attacked by Indians near Custer City a few days since and eleven out of twenty-two were killed. They were sons of wealthy Cincinnatians and went on the trip more for frolic and sight-seeing than anything else.

The U. S. S. Vandalia has gone to Aspinwall from San Domingo; The Marion is under orders to the Mediterranean, and will sail in July.

Political.

Isn't it about time that press associations ceased telegraphing about the country what Carl Schurz has to say on different subjects? The wheel will have to turn without that hub some day, and it could probably do it now.

Congressman Frye of Maine does not have to work hard to keep his seat. His constituents have nominated him four times by acclamation. He tells them they may if they feel like it, but he shall not feel at all hurt if they prefer some other man.

Forty-one of the forty-two delegates to Cincinnati from Illinois are claimed for Blaine, the other being for Washburne, first, with Blaine for second choice.

A prominent republican, who has recently returned to Washington from Ohio, sheds some light on the political situation there. During his visit in the State he dined with Governor Hayes, who said he believed that Blaine would be nominated at Cincinnati, and that he hoped for such a result. He was not anxious himself for the nomination. He had been approached by Blaine's friends with a proposition that he take the second place on the ticket, and he indicated that he would accept the place. He favors Blaine in preference to any other candidate named.

Speaker Kerr is "under fire" now, charged with having sold his influence to get a man appointed to a position in the regular army, for $600, in 1866. The story may be true, but the evidence in its support is rather thin, so far.

And now it is openly charged that the Pacific coast lobby paid three hundred thousand dollars to obtain the passage of the Hawaiian treaty bill through the democratic reform House. This is awful.

Speaker Blaine appeared before the investigating committee on Friday and asked to be sworn as a witness, and, his request being granted, he made a most positive and sweeping assertion that he had never received a Fort Smith bond from Robinson or any one else, and swore to the truth of the entire statement which he made on the floor of the House. He admitted receiving the package sent from Caldwell by Robinson, but declared that it was a bundle of maps and descriptive papers of the coal lands lying along the road, which were sent to him as a sort of prospectus to show that the buying of these lands was a profitable speculation, and to induce him to invest. He acknowledged that he examined the papers with an eye to investing, as any man had a right to do, but declared most positively that he never did invest a dollar. His manner was positive. A Boston Post dispatch says it seems utterly impossible to believe but that he has told the truth.

Dakota Territory declined to instruct its Cincinnati delegation.

Should the Cincinnati convention nominate Blaine & Bristow, Blaine & Hayes, Bristow & Wheeler, Wheeler & Bristow, Washburne & Wheeler, Sherman & Wheeler, or Sherman & Hayes, the republicans of the whole country ought to be well satisfied.

The republican convention to nominate a Representative to Congress from the First Maine District will meet in Portland June 29.

The West seems to have trumped the President's highest card with amazing promptness and vigor.—N. Y. Tribune.

Regulate the Bodily Functions.

This advice should be especially heeded by those who suffer from an irregular habit of body or disorders of the bladder or kidneys. Inactivity of the bowels, or of the urinary organs, is speedily rectified by that wholesome aperient and sterling invigorative diuretic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters; and, as all affections of the organs of discharge have a strong tendency to become chronic, and that very rapidly, the use of the Bitters should not be delayed a moment longer than is necessary. The action of this inestimable corrective upon the bowels differs widely from that of a drastic purgative, since it is never violent or abrupt, but always gentle and natural, and its effects upon the bladder and kidneys are strengthening as well as mildly stimulative. The healthful impetus which it gives to digestion also renders it a most desirable general tonic.

Why suffer from that cough when Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam will speedily and surely cure you? Sold by all druggists.

BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.
Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the butter counties around Philadelphia.
In hot weather this Powder makes butter much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cotton seed, etc., and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

HAVING NOTICED
The statements in the city papers, that certain persons have been injured by eating pressed corned beef put up in Chicago, and feeling that if not explained these facts will result in injury where it does not belong, and as after a thorough investigation we find that the beef complained of is in every instance beef packed in rolls and enclosed in tin foil by parties unknown to us and not at all similar to canned beef: therefore we, the undersigned, in simple justice to the public and to the reliable firm that pack the canned article, wish to state that we have for a long time sold Pressed CANNED Corned Beef and Beef Tongues packed in 2, 4, 6 and 14 lb cans, by Messrs. Libby, McNeil & Libby of Chicago, and we cheerfully recommend this brand of goods as a safe, nutritious and economical article of food.

Langdon Park.

For many years—perhaps during all his life—having heard the matter talked of at home probably, in his youth—the late Mr. John Elwyn desired a bridge and road to be built across the South mill pond, from Pleasant or Court street to South street. For this purpose he in 1869 gave the land now known as Langdon Park, though his idea was to have merely a wide road, and he preferred the name of Mall rather than Park, but Mall being with many most doubtful of pronunciation, and less agreeable than Park, the latter, with Elwyn prefixed, was adopted by the board of trustees.

But the discovery, by Rev. Mr. Elwyn, heir to the estate, of the following letter, among the papers of his late uncle, John Elwyn, and his own request, in accordance with the evident strong preference of his late great aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Langdon Elwyn, as expressed in her letter below, of date 1850, caused the trustees of the Park to change the name to Langdon—"in the name of justice and patriotism," as Mr. Elwyn truly and pertinently says: for the estate, every dollar of it, was accumulated or owned by Governor John Langdon, and the lands, every acre of them, were his, and never belonged to the Elwyn family but by descent; and John Langdon's eminent and efficient patriotism is undoubted.

Rev. Mr. Elwyn having informed the park trustees of his finding Mrs. E. L. Elwyn's letter, and requested the change of name, and the board desiring some written request for the change, Mr. Elwyn prepared the following letter:

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 19, 1876.

MR. TREDICK: Dear Sir: Your favor is received, and I hasten to comply with the request of the Park-trustees, as conveyed by you.

It seems to me that nothing can be more authoritative than the stipulation made by Mrs. Langdon Elwyn, the late Gov. Langdon's daughter, in a letter found by me among Mr. John Elwyn's papers. Mr. Foster has kindly copied that portion of it pertinent to the subject in hand, which he will lay before the Board.

Accordingly, in the name of justice and patriotism, I beg to express the earnest wish that, on the coming day the land be named "Langdon Park," and so named be presented to the citizens of Portsmouth.

Thank the trustees for affording me this privilege, and believe me

Yours very truly,

ALFRED ELWYN.

The following are the extracts from the letter referred to:

NEW YORK, Nov. 15, 1850.

Dear John: Yours of 18th received, etc. * * * Will the road destroy the rising ground in one field and the trees in the other, which I have loved to look at from my infancy? My father always wished a bridge to be built over the pond. * * * Provided the bridge be built to your satisfaction, and the road marked out not to my injury, I will agree to your proposition and give the land requisite for the making the road — stipulating, however, that if it be named for any person it may be the owner of the land seventy years since; no one of the other name ever owned those lots—nor would I give the one hundredth part of an inch of ground were that name to be even thought of.

I shall like to see a pretty bridge across where I so often heard it talked of in childhood, and to drive over it and through or over the very spot first thought of for the house now overlooking it on the other side the stream. Let me hear again, and do all for the best—I am in earnest as well as you. Affectionately,

ELIZA LANGDON ELWYN.

Following are the remarks of James P. Bartlett, Esq., at the Park dedication:

It seems to me eminently fitting that this budding and blossoming season in this most celebrated year should have been chosen for the opening, and so to speak the dedication of this charming spot, which has been voluntarily donated to our city through the generosity of one whose memory we revere, marking at it does at this interesting period, the birth of a new recreative pleasure, open to all the citizens of our town. In this year of jubilee we have every reason for profound thankfulness as we survey the past, and exultant hope as we look forward to the future. Long have we looked forward to the coming of this year, with anxious yearnings to participate in its rejoicing festivities, well knowing that but one such year in our country's history can occur within the limits of one human life.

To-day we stand as it were upon an elevated plateau in the life-path of our nation, and as we look back upon the road, alternately bestrewn with thorns and flowers, which has led us on and up to where we now stand, our hearts swell with love and gratitude to those brave men who, a hundred years ago, achieved and established constitutional government by the people, which by the blessing of heaven has come down to us unimpaired—aye, better than that; purified and cemented as it has been in the late war by the best blood of this generation of our countrymen, it stands to-day upon a broader and firmer foundation than ever. We never have had more strong reason for faith in the permanence of our free institutions than we have to-day; we have never had a fairer prospect of possessing "Liberty and Union, now and forever, one and inseparable," and we may well feel proud and happy.

Sir, I believe in the gratitude of communities. The flight of years cannot eradicate the feeling of gratitude which a people cherish for the men or women who have rendered a service which has contributed to the welfare of a nation, or of the community in which they lived. The very names of Washington, Samuel Adams, Hancock, John Langdon and hundreds of others, of the brave soldiers, emancipators and defenders of our beloved country of a hundred years ago, never fail to stir within us a feeling of love and gratitude. We never visit the grave of a soldier who has died in the cause of his country,—we never look upon the faces of those (some of them before us now) who bear the scars of honorable wounds received in the defence of our country without a lively appreciation of the service which they have rendered to us all.

I well remember, as doubtless others here present do, the visit of Gen. LaFayette to our old town many years ago,—with what demonstrations of affectionate regard the whole population flocked to meet him, to shake his hand, that hand which had drawn a sword for the cause of our country in the hour of her poverty and peril. I was then but a child, too young to give voice to the patriotic spark which the scene kindled in my small bosom; and like all the other small boys of the town, I wore upon the frontlet of my beaver, the bright blue badge with the sentiment of the day emblazoned upon it in golden letters, "Welcome Lafayette." In later years I remembered that welcome of joy, and I do not forget to-day, that there is such a thing as a nation's gratitude; aye, such a thing as gratitude in our beloved old town of Portsmouth, for we do revere and cherish the memory of our home patriots, and of those who have been active and generous in the promotion of our home interests.

I know it is the custom to speak of the virtues of our fellow-men, only when they have passed away. We wait until the eye that ever kindled with joy at the happiness of others, is closed,—until the ear that was never shut to the calls of duty, can hear no longer, and the heart which ever beat in quick response of human sympathy, is stilled forever, before we give utterance to our sentiments of praise, for certain of our fellow-citizens. I see around me here to-day, men and women whose presence with us for many years has been a cheering encouragement to every benevolent enterprise, open-handed, free-hearted and full of sympathy for every good cause. I will not diverge from custom so far as to name or eulogize them here, but I will say this for you, Mr. President, that we owe you a large debt for your unflagging energy in the prosecution of this worthy enterprise. May you live long to enjoy it; the fruits of your honest endeavors here, will outlive us all; —and standing here now upon this dedicated ground, the very portion of the inheritance of his fathers which he devoted to his townsmen and their heirs forever, we would not suppress the gratitude and respect which we feel for the memory of our late beloved townsman, John Elwyn. Our regret is that he cannot be present to-day, to witness the enthusiasm of all classes in the hearty reception of his gift—to see these trees planted—each tree either a personal tribute or the offering of some of the associations of men and women; not the least among them the tribute of the boys and girls of the High School,—yonder graceful larch, and the poetical linden that stands near, the offerings of the youthful part of this generation—with the others they shall henceforth find companionship with those grand old elms planted by the Langdons a century ago—their united, cooling shadow shall fall upon the happy ramblers in this Park, like a benediction of the past and present.

One of the lessons which we learn to-day, in accepting this beautiful slope of ground from the generous donors is that we ought not and must not live for ourselves alone. Self-preservation it is true is the first law of nature, and our first duties are those we owe to our families and the kindred who are dependent upon us. But there is room above and beyond all this for an outreaching benevolence that shall encompass our town, our State, our country, our race, aye, all mankind, and even the dumb animals, our cousins less fortunate than we are in the scale of existence, —— benevolence which shall touch not only our living fellow beings but shall reach forward to embrace coming generations yet unborn.

Our forefathers did not live to themselves wholly, but largely for others, for us,—they rest from their labors, and we are enjoying the fruits thereof, and we cannot at this hour thank them in any way more appropriately, than in the purpose for which we have assembled. For this plat of ground is not for our own gratification alone—and whatever adornment we may deck it with now or hereafter has far more reference to the happiness of our children and of their children than to our own.

With this view then let us lay it out, adorn it, plant our trees upon it, fill it with pleasant walks and shady groves, with restful seats beneath, where the weary in soul or body may find quiet recreation and rest from the toils of the day, that it may be a bequest worthy to be made by us, and accepted by posterity.

Then may we in the eloquent words of the immortal son of New Hampshire—bid them—

"Advance then—ye future generations, we hail you as you rise in your long succession to fill the places which we now fill, and to taste the blessings of existence, where we are passing and shall soon have passed our own human duration. We bid you welcome to the healthful skies and verdant fields of New England; we greet your accession to a great inheritance which we have enjoyed. We welcome you to the blessings of good government, and of religious liberty, we welcome you to the treasures of science, and the delights of learning. We welcome you to the transcendent sweets of domestic life, to the happiness of kindred, and parents, and children, we welcome you to the immeasurable blessing of national existence, to the immortal hope of Christianity, and the light of everlasting truth.

The following additions and corrections should be made to the list of trees already published, as having been set in the Park:

Concord Railroad employes in Portsmouth, 1 large beech, S E side.

Joseph Foster, U. S. N., 1 purple beech, S W front.

D. B. Macomb, U. S. N., 1 rock maple, in grove.

Oliver Manson, 1 elm, S E hollow.

William J. and Maud B. Mendum, 11 rock maples, in grove, etc.

Capt. John S. Pray, 1 white oak, S E side.

Portsmouth Horticultural Society, 4 linden, with flowers and shrubs, centre of Park.

St. Andrew's Lodge, F. and A. M., 1 elm, 2 hickory, 1 red oak.

Lieut. Frank D. Webster, U. S. M. C., 1 rock maple, to note the centennial of the Marine Corps; also 1 rock maple, memorial to Henry C. Webster, who fell in action during the rebellion.

The whole number of trees now considerably exceeds six hundred, and when you are in the Park there are "trees to the right of you, trees to the left of you, trees in the front of you;" but it does not yet appear that anyone "has blundered" in the matter. On the contrary, all has gone on very successfully, and promises thus to continue.

Jottings.

On Thursday morning as a lady drawing a child in a carriage passed by the flower stand on Market Square, an undressed doll fell from the carriage. The doll was picked up by a physician, who, some time since, advertised that he had retired from practice, and quickening his pace overtook the lady, and with a graceful bow, presented her the doll. "Ah, Doctor," said the president of the First National Bank, "I am glad to see that you are resuming practice."

Co. K, First Regiment New Hampshire Militia, otherwise known as the Portsmouth Heavy Artillery, have received invitations to parade on Lection Day at Concord, and will doubtless accept. The Amoskeag Veterans of Manchester will also be in line.

The Board of Mayor and Aldermen has authorized the Mayor and the committee on fire department to contract for a new steam fire engine.

The city fathers are having estimates made as to the probable cost of reservoirs at the head of Puddle Dock, and at the foot of Vaughan street.

The Marine Corps was organized Nov. 10, 1775, and is older than the regular Army or Navy. Lieut. Frank D. Webster with a squad of marines under his command planted a rock maple in Langdon Park on Saturday in Centennial recognition of the fact. Lieut. Webster also planted a handsome rock maple in memory of his deceased brother, Henry C. Webster, who was killed while an officer in the navy, on a gunboat in an engagement in Virginia waters.

The March farm at Greenland has been leased to Mr. Nathaniel Wiggin.

William E. Hadley, Esq., has purchased the Horace Webster house, near the Eastern depot, for a residence.

One more case of small-pox and one of varioloid or small-pox are reported in the family of Mr. L. Woodbury Lord on North Road.

The Woman's Temperance League will dedicate their tree at Langdon Park this evening at half-past six o'clock. Rev. John A. Goss will assist.

The adjourned meeting of the Portsmouth & Dover railroad will be held at the Common Council room this forenoon at 11:30 o'clock.

The female operatives of the finishing department of Jarvis & Co's hosiery mill planted a tree at Langdon Park, by moonlight, on Wednesday evening of last week.

Persons who have been at the trouble and expense of planting trees in the Park, should see to it that they receive proper attention in the way of staking, mulching, necessary watering, etc.

A snake was seen on Seavey's Island (at the navy yard) on Saturday morning, as large around as a piece of three-inch rope, and fully as long.

The new reservoir will be located on Miller Avenue.

The pear trees in this vicinity are white with blossoms, and it is prophesied by the fruit growers that unless unfavorable weather intervenes between now and harvest time the fruit crop of all kinds will be very heavy.

About $800, instead of $10,000, were found on the premises of Mr. Hiram Spinney of Eliot after his death.

City Physician Sherburne is comforting himself with the reflection that the thief who stole an overcoat from his office lately will be sorry if he finds his corpus covered with corpuscles. The coat was worn in treating the recent small-pox cases.

Holiday to-morrow.

Bird houses have been erected in Langdon Park by the energetic S. P. C. A. people. The birds will declare dividends regularly.

We are glad to learn that Mr. Joseph R. Curtis received no injuries by the accident at the Park that will disable him. The charge had not been rammed home when fired; otherwise Mr. Curtis would have been sent to "kingdom come" with express speed. He thinks the accident was caused by a spark from the first gun alighting on the cartridge as it was being placed in the muzzle, the wind having blown the smoke and sparks toward the gun he was at work on.

Six large three-masted schooners arrived in this port on Saturday, May 27th, from Philadelphia, bringing upwards of three thousand tons of coal, nearly all of which will be landed at the Concord Railroad wharf and forwarded to Manchester and Concord. Seventy-eight cars were loaded with coal at that wharf on Tuesday, May 23, being the largest number ever loaded in one day. The coal weighed eight hundred tons, and was loaded in seven hours. The despatch with which vessels are unloaded at the Concord Railroad wharf is so satisfactory to captains of the large coasters that they express a decided preference for charters for that wharf.

Exeter develops a candidate for every office in the disposal of the Governor and Council, and because Col. Kent chooses to enter the field for Sheriff, the News-Letter complains, on the ground that Mr. Odlin of Exeter, who is a candidate also, had not served a full term when removed by the democratic legislature of 1873. Our contemporary evidently forgets that Sheriff Moulton was removed before the expiration of his term by the democratic legislature of 1871, and that the fact that his term was incomplete did not give him a re-appointment in 1872, when his claims were overruled and Mr. Odlin appointed.

The Post Office lawns have been nicely turfed and are as green as youthful bay trees.

Mr. J. M. Tibbets is building a house on Miller Avenue, opposite the residence of Mr. Thomas S. Nowell. Mr. Charles Davis has bought the lot between the young ladies' seminary and Mr. George Stackpole's residence, and Miss Young has purchased the lot between the seminary grounds and Richards Avenue,—both, we are informed, intending to put up houses immediately.

The whole number of ratable polls returned on the check-lists of this city is 3103, as follows: Ward One, 460; Ward Two, 414; Ward Three, 601; Ward Four, 216; Ward Five, 535; Ward Six, 570; Ward Seven, 307. Keene has 1870, Nashua 2960, Dover 2994, Concord 3992, and Manchester 8275. According to these figures Keene would be entitled by law to 6 Representatives, Portsmouth, Nashua and Dover 10 each, Concord 13, and Manchester 27, were there no division of the cities into Wards. By such division, however, each Ward is allowed one Representative for 150 ratables, all additional Representatives, as in the case of all towns, requiring 300 ratables each. At the recent election Keene chose 7 Representatives, under this law, Portsmouth, Nashua and Dover 11 each, Concord 15, and Manchester 32—Keene, Portsmouth, Nashua and Dover gaining one Representative each, Concord two, and Manchester five.

The body of Frost, the murderer hanged at Worcester, Mass., was interred at Dover the same night.

A Presidential proclamation invites public attention to the resolution passed by Congress, that the counties and towns should provide on the Fourth of July for a centennial oration, and transmit a copy of the same to the office of the Librarian of Congress.

The Temperance Reformers are rejoicing in the fact, that the ten delegates elected for Cincinnati are all temperance men of the first water. So they will be no rum at the headquarters of the New Hampshire delegation.—Dover Dem.

Mr. John Ira Rand, of Rye, laid a large golden russet apple on our table on Saturday, and remarked that it had seen two winters and was nearly two years old. It was one of a barrel that had been in an open cellar, exposed to air and light, and yet showed no signs of decay. Our cellar don't keep apples like that.

Portsmouth had a little two-cent earthquake, Sunday night, just about the time the young men were starting out on their usual visits to places of worship—a few minutes before eight o'clock. There was a very respectable roar, like muffled thunder, and a tremor of the earth was plainly felt by many persons.

Death of Benj. Norton, Esq.

We regret to announce the death of Benjamin Norton, Esq., who died at his residence on Austin street, Sunday morning, of diabetes, having failed rapidly after the disease had so far obtained the mastery as to be pronounced incurable. Mr. Norton has filled various positions of trust. At one time he was City Marshal, and later, for a term of years, was Superintendent of the City Farm. Genial in nature and ever ready to make his surroundings enjoyable, his family and friends will miss him sadly. So pleasant has been the home-side of his life that neither wife or children can recall a time when he has spoken a harsh word to either—a remarkable exception to the general rule.

Dangerous Assault.

A serious affair occurred on board the schooner J. Ricardo Jova, Capt. Little, now lying at the Concord Railroad wharf, on Saturday night, by which one of the crew, named John Buchanan, was badly injured. The circumstances as reported to us are as follows:

At about half-past 10 o'clock the police heard (or heard of) the row, and on their way to the scene of the disturbance met the wharf watchman and another man bringing in Buchanan, who was in a pitiable condition, having been very roughly treated by the schooner's steward and three of her seamen. He had a pistol-shot wound (said to have been inflicted by the steward) on the top of his head, a bad cut from a knife on the left cheek, extending from back of his eye to beneath the jaw bone, and two bad bruises on his head and a very bad one on his arm, evidently from blows struck with some heavy weapon—a capstan-bar, as reported to us,—and he was drenched with his own blood. Proceeding to the schooner the police asked permission of Capt. Little to board his vessel to arrest the men, which was promptly granted, and the four were escorted to the station and safely caged. Buchanan's wounds were dressed by Dr. Whittier; whether they are dangerous or not we are not informed, but should suppose they might be, for a man who is shot with pistols, chopped with knives and pounded with capstan-bars must be pretty tough to stand it. The captain and mate of the schooner were below, turned in, when the disturbance occurred, and it was over before they could get on deck.

The accused will be arraigned in the Police Court this morning.

Partisan Slanders.

Fierce and indiscriminate blame has been the bane of our politics, and not only the bane but the cause of much of that decay in honesty in high places under the obloquy of which the country now suffers. Partisans and newspapers began years ago to freely accuse every opponent of dishonesty, with or without grounds for so doing. Little or no discrimination was made between good men and bad men; everybody was accused with equal vehemence; peculation and maladministration being treated as no grover offences than difference of opinion or party affiliation. To be in office on the other side was to stand confessed as a rogue, and to the view the public gave its much too ready acquiescence. It became naturally Impossible under such a condition of affairs for men of upright character and sensitive honor to remain in office or to follow politics as a career. This most disastrous course on the part of partisan leaders threw office into the hands of the unscrupulous; it had the effect of sending into private life the better class of citizens, and of so bringing forward the less scrupulous—of transferring the public affairs to those who are indifferent to censure, or who were determined to compensate themselves for a bad reputation by stealing as freely as they were accused of doing. It is evident that some remedy for official dishonesty must be found. Unless we do so political chaos will overwhelm us. The country cannot prosper; it cannot even politically held together, unless honesty, probity, and efficiency preside over affairs. And among the measures necessary to bring this needed reform about none are more urgent than a policy by the natural operation of which capable and honest men will be brought forward. This will never be done until there is greater justice in public censure—until blame and praise are administered with regard to the facts and concern for the truth. Reckless and unjust censure, ungrounded accusations, scandals of all sorts—these things must come to be looked upon with reprobation, as crimes scarcely less serious than dishonesty itself. The wholesale lumping together of all opponents—the invective as fierce for a Greeley as a Tweed—cannot go on as heretofore if we are ever to lift our politics from its present mire. There must be right doing on the part of the people if right doing on the part of office-holders is to be secured. Wrong judgment is dishonest judgment, and dishonesty of this nature is just as certain as any other kind to breed its bad results.—Appleton's Journal.

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first bottle their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon arrived more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was troubled with constipation, my back ached, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking about half a box felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several my friends and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE.—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it, much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials you have said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 16, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, with Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you about April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop and pick up a pin. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them for three times their cost. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,

MRS. R. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia Cured, Liver Complaint Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two girls in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefitted. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. R. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the luxurious climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

— USE —

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Promptly Attended To.

A Unique Affair.

The Elegant Centennial Show-Case of Messrs. D. Lawrence & Sons--A Beautiful Specimen of American Workmanship.

One of the most unique exhibits which America has yet produced for the Centennial Exhibition is the elegant show-case for the display of samples of Medford Rum from the old house of Daniel Lawrence & Sons, Boston. It is a beautifully carved affair, about seven and a half feet in height, and perhaps two and a half feet in width, the very best of French walnut being used in its construction. Messrs. Lawrence & Sons gave to the manufacturers a carte blanche order, and Messrs. E. Hixon & Co., of Boston, well established as their reputation has been for many years, have finished nothing more ingenious or more creditable. Samples of the Medford Rum, for so many years a specialty with Lawrence & Sons, are presented in the form of a pyramidal castor, made of beautiful glass flasks of original design, the manufacture of the Mount Washington Glass Company, of this city. At the top is a well-accredited sample of old Medford, made as long ago as 1776, which was purchased with the distillery from a former proprietor; then there is a sample of the same standard article, made during the war of 1812; another, bearing the date of 1824, indicates the period at which, the distillery becoming their property, the present firm of D. Lawrence & Sons began its existence. Samples of their manufacture in 1832, 1850, 1858, and in successive years down to the present time, are included in the exhibit, which will certainly attract much attention at the Philadelphia exhibition, aside from the elegant and unique case in which it will be shown. The exhibit rests upon a beautifully carved pedestal, the supporting pillars being made in the form of grillins, admirably executed. Over the pyramid of samples is raised an elegant canopy of veneered French walnut, also beautifully carved with representations of birds, leaves, etc. By a rolling screen of polished wood the display can be at once covered from view. There is some fine silver work in the case, from the establishment of Jesse Hurtling. The whole design rests upon a base of ebonized wood, protected by a silver railing. As a specimen of American manufacture, it is certainly worthy of the heartiest praise. Its cost was upward of $8,000; but Messrs. Lawrence & Sons feel no occasion to regret this outlay for the proper presentation of their specialty at Philadelphia. Their Medford Rum is universally recognized as the standard brand, and is fast supplanting all inferior manufactures. Lawrence's Medford Old Rum, long celebrated for its chemical purity, superior quality, and mellow maturity, is the choicest in the world.—Boston Daily Globe.

Blaine and Bristow.

O. C. Moore, Esq., the able editor of the Nashua Telegraph, has been on a tour to Washington, and although a decided advocate of the nomination of Gen. B. H. Bristow for President, received information which leads him to think Mr. Blaine's nomination probable. He estimates the vote on the first ballot at Cincinnati as follows: Blaine, 284; Bristow, 167; Morton, 126; Conkling, 55; Hayes, 44; Hartranft, 58; Scattering 24.

The Telegraph further says: With such a lead, Mr. Blaine seems reasonably sure of the nomination. Should his opponents combine, however, on Bristow, Hayes, or the Great Unknown, he will certainly fail. Is such a combination probable? That will depend on the situation when the decisive hour arrives. At the present outlook Blaine and Hayes, possibly Blaine and Bristow, promises to be the winning ticket both in June and November.

It is not difficult to trace in Washington the sources of Mr. Blaine's magnetic power. He is emphatically a man of the people. He is a man of stalwart powers, both physical and intellectual. He reads men as he would read an open book. His long and brilliant career as Speaker of the House has given him an acuteness in judging of men that has seldom had a parallel in American history. He does not assert a leadership. He is a leader. Men do not come under his leadership as under a yoke. They take their position and he takes his, leader and led, as naturally and inevitably as an army divides between the one will that controls it and the other wills that yield to it. There is no friction and no jealousy. There may be more courage and ability, and sometimes more brilliancy in the lieutenants than in the chief, but Mr. Blaine does not labor under any such disadvantage. He is a master, not a pretender, in his position. He would take the command of the White House with as much ease and sureness as he would retake the Speaker's desk.

Mr. Bristow is an equally stalwart and self-poised man. He is a younger man by three years than Mr. Blaine, and has not had quite so much civil experience. In what he has had, however, he has shown a positiveness and a capacity unsurpassed by any man in public life in this country. Like Mr. Blaine he is a great worker, and when he grapples with a problem he does not leave it though he burns midnight oil to solve it. He does not seek the Presidency, but attends exclusively to his public duties, except when the character assassins assail him, when he turns aside long enough to prove his own innocence and their guilt and vindictiveness. Mr. Bristow has no organization or following except what springs spontaneously from the people. Were not his rivals older and better known republican leaders, his would be a very formidable name at Cincinnati. But the acutest observers in Washington, though wishing in many instances that Mr. Bristow might be nominated, think that he will not be. That he would take the independent vote there is no question, but the counterbalancing consideration arises from the fact of his residence in a Southern democratic State. At the West mere than at the East does this consideration weaken Bristow and strengthen Blaine. It is a consideration that has had more decisive influence on many minds than is generally understood. That it is groundless makes no difference with the fact.

A Democratic Court.

Ever since Mr. Blaine became a prominent candidate for the Cincinnati nomination, the democrats in Congress have been struggling, like drowing men, to find or feign some charge that might damage so formidable an opponent. They have offered rewards to informers. They have, on hearsay evidence, summoned men at great expense from distant States. Now, within three weeks of Mr. Blaine's probable nomination, when every charge against him is not only not proved but is disproved—when Blaine is made stronger before the country for their groundless accusations, the detachment of the general committee charged with the duty of destroying Mr. Blaine determined, as no legal evidence can injure him, to admit hearsay evidence—evidence on which they know a man could not, in a court of law, recover the value of a peck of potatoes. An appeal from the ruling of the sub-committee was taken to the full committee, and it is reported that the committee of the House has decided that the sub-committee are not to admit hearsay evidence.

The plan of the sub-committee reminds us of the report of a trial had in Mississippi many years ago. A planter lost a horse, and had a stranger arrested on the charge of having stolen it. The accused man was brought before the court, and pleaded "not guilty;" and having waited some time for the prosecutor and proof, without either appearing, the respondent enquired—as there was no proof against him in court and none could be produced—if the Court would not discharge him? For answer the Judge (with quite as much anger as became his position) said: "I will let you know, sir, that the cause of justice is not to be defeated for lack of witnesses—this Court has the power to appoint a witness!" Soon after, the "appointed" witness took the stand, and was asked if he knew the prisoner? He answered: "I don't know him, but I know of him. He lives in Hurd county, about thirty miles from here." Question—"From what you have heard of him do you think he would be likely to steal a horse?" Answer—"Perhaps so; I heard one of his neighbors say he liked a good horse!" The Judge—"That will do; all the law requires is that a man shall produce the best evidence he has."

Ye Exeter Dictator.

HAMPTON FALLS, May 23d.

The Exeter News-Letter think it 'most too bad that Col. J. Horace Kent, of Portsmouth, should enter the lists as a candidate for sheriff of Rockingham county. Sho! One would suppose the News-Letter capable of assuming the dictatorship of State and National affairs, by the way it toots its horn and sounds its notes of alarm abroad; and one would naturally imagine it had taken the job by contract, to nominate Mr. B. H. Bristow as candidate for Presidential honors. Just as though people of common intelligence did not live inside as well as outside the circulation of the Exeter News-Letter. Just as though the name of James G. Blaine is not graven in the hearts of millions of free born thinkers to-day, being that of a man who has been tried in many a fiery furnace only to shine more pure after each scathing ordeal; and whom they know to-day stands the peer of any living statesman. His record in Congress has been long and brilliant, with not one blot to mar his fair fame, or cause the blush of shame to mantle the cheeks of his constituency. We have not yet outlived the Rebellion, the horrors of which are, and will be for years and years, a National scourge. We want a President who can fling "traitor!" into the teeth of southern Ben Hills, and upon the graves of our dead soldiers whose bones are mouldering in southern swamps and plains. Such a man is, and would be, James G. Blaine; and we think that New England's delegation to Cincinnati will go solid for him from first to last; the Exeter News-Letter notwithstanding.

We have nothing against B. H. Bristow; there is no doubt but that he is a splendid fellow, and all that,—simply because he has done his duty; but as he was placed in that position for that very reason, and has self-respect enough to maintain a dignity that ten thousand other men in his position could have maintained as well, backed by the power of our National Government, we can see no special reason why he should be held up as superior to all others for Presidential honors; and indeed we should not so soon forget the humiliating scenes that occurred during the term of Andy Johnson.

We do not wish to disparage Mr. Bristow, but we conceive it a duty we owe to our heroic dead, who to shield National liberty gave up the last drop of blood in their veins, and went down to their graves in the land of their enemies, far from home, friends, and all they held most dear, with nothing left to fill the aching void but consecrated tears to their memory,—we conceive it a duty for many long years to come to fight shy of the South! we have had one taste of their hot blood; we want no more surely, for this generations. PAINE.

News and Notes.

Bro. Roche, of the Amherst Cabinet, has had a pocket-book handed him bearing this inscription: "Nathan Cheever, his book—1743."

Considerable excitement has been caused in Manchester, by the prosecution of liquor dealers, instigated by the Reform Club.

A five-year old son of John Lavee of Bethlehem, was drowned on the 19th.

Wm. A. Stuart, of Gorham, was drowned while fishing at Milan, on Saturday.

Alfred R. Evans, of Gorham, is a candidate for Assistant Clerk of the House. Lewis Jenkins, an active republican of Gilmanton, is a candidate for Assistant Door Keeper.

At a hearing in Nashua, Saturday, in the case of the State against W. Barrett, solicitor of Hillsboro' county, the evidence tended to show that he had retained money, falsified and done other improper acts.

Political.

The prospect at St. Louis seems to be fair for Hendricks or a split.—Terre Haute Express.

Senator Cameron objects to Bristow. Good thing for the Kentuckian.

The assessors at Nashua have completed the work of appraisal and assessment with the following result: Total valuation of real estate and personal property, $8,534,522; total number of ratable polls, 2946, valued $294,600, making a total valuation upon which to levy tax of $8,829,122. The total amount of tax to be raised is $120,107.28, and the amount per cent. per hundred is $1.50. The foregoing figures are made under a new law which requires property to be assessed at its full value. Last year the total valuation was $6,636,332, the assessment $119,077.36, and the rate $1.85 per hundred.

Blaine is a man of superior ability. His mind is quick, clean-cut, comprehensive, vigorous, and combative. He is capable of learning, and he endeavors to learn. None of our public men are more industrious; none are more popular. There is no assumption about Blaine. He puts on airs, but is a democrat socially, and meets every man on a footing of agreeable equality. His range of information is extensive. He has talent for conversation, is lively, almost witty, always entertaining, and often instructive. Thus it happens that Mr. Blaine has become a very popular man.

The Indianapolis Sentinel says that its editor has been shown by the proprietor of one of the leading weekly papers in Indiana a communication from a New York advertising agency, in which editorials from leading papers favoring Tilden are sought to be reproduced as reading matter, for the payment of a stipulated sum of money, from now until the convention.

The late tremendous strides made by Mr. Blaine in the Presidential race have had a very exhilarating effect on his friends in Congress and the Departments, as well as those who are visiting here. Those closest to him say they have no doubt that he will be nominated on the first or second ballot, and they give what they say are authentic reasons for the belief that is within them. Their figures are striking and interesting. They say that with his large support in other sections New England will give him her solid support on the first ballot.—82 delegates. He then has the following delegate support: New Jersey, 18; Delaware, 6; Maryland, 16; Virginia, 18; North Carolina 10; Georgia, 12; Mississippi, 5; Tennessee, 5; Texas, 3; Oregon, 6; California, 10; Colorado, 4; the Territories, 18; Kansas 10; Nevada, 6; Missouri, 16; Minnesota, 10; Wisconsin, 22; Illinois, 41; Michigan, 16. In addition, Mr. Blaine's confidants say he will receive from Iowa 22 votes, and from Florida, 6. These are counted for on the first ballot, and number 362, which will lack only 15 of a majority of the Convention. In case the votes credited for Mr. Bristow are received by him, which some of Mr. Blaine's friends doubt, these figures will be reduced between 20 to 30. The friends of the Maine statesman seem to have good cause for rejoicing.—Tribune Dispatch.

The strongest argument against the nomination of Judge Davis is that he fills a whole seat in a buggy, and bulges out a little over each end of the cushion. Away with him! Now we understand why he was sent to the bench; the chair won't hold him.—Burlington Hawkeye.

The republicans of the Springfield (Mass.) District have just shown their respect for the Springfield Republican's opinions. They have chosen two delegates to Cincinnati, one from Pittsfield, the other from Springfield itself, and both Blaine men.

Stephen A. Douglas' son is a delegate from North Carolina to the Cincinnati convention.

Conkling's emissaries are already canvassing the Southern delegates, and using money and the promise of public patronage to secure their votes for Conkling in the Cincinnati Convention after the first ballot. As the body of the Southern republicans are office-holders and negroes, it is expected that they will be able to swing nearly the entire Southern delegation, which, with New York and Pennsylvania, would give Conkling about 350 votes, and in that event his ultimate nomination would almost be assured.

All these attacks, says Mr. Blaine, "are intended to impress the people with the belief that I have a large wealth and it has been acquired since I entered Congress. The moderate property which I own was almost wholly derived from fortunate investment in coal lands in my native Monongahela valley in Western Pennsylvania, made some years before I first ran for Congress. I notice many papers, whose editors never saw and know nothing of my affairs, glibly put my property down at a round million. The utmost my property would bring to-day would not amount to a fifth part of that sum. I can say, with the strictest truth, that, all things considered, I am not to-day as well off pecuniarily as I was the day I entered Congress, in December, 1863. Had I not remained in Congress I would to-day, in my judgment, have had a large fortune, as business enterprises which were at my command, if I could have attended to them, have resulted most favorably. But every friend who knows me knows that neither my income, nor my expenditures, nor my habits of life imply or suggest the possession of a fortune, or of anything, indeed, beyond a moderate competency."

Yesterday was a day of triumph for Blaine. Republican conventions met in six different States, and, in effect, he swept every one of them. Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, Missouri and Illinois seem to have gone for him, nothwithstanding the fact that formal pledges were not made, and although New Hampshire failed to instruct in his favor, seven out of ten delegates are in his interest. His friends are jubilant, and the prospects now are that he will receive the nomination at Cincinnati. It is clear that there is a strong undercurrent of sentiment in his favor throughout the republican party, and that it has been guided and controlled with rare political skill. The many rumors set afloat touching his personal honesty, and the investigations set on foot by his political rivals, have not hurt him in the slightest degree with his party. On the contrary, they appear to have advanced his cause, making him popular on account of the persecution of which he seemed to be the object. It is plain also, either that Blaine is not an object of enmity at the White House, or else that he is strong enough to bid defiance to Grant.—New York World, 25th.

HAVING NOTICED

The statements in the city papers, that certain parties have been injured by selling pressed corned beef put up in Chicago, and feeling that if not explained these facts will result in injury where it could not belong, and as after a thorough investigation we find that the beef complained of is in every instance beef packed in rolls and enclosed in tin foil by parties unknown to us, and not at all similar to canned beef; therefore we, the undersigned, in simple justice to the public and to the reliable firm that pack the canned article, wish to state that we have for a long time sold Pressed Canned Corned Beef and Beef Tongues packed in 2, 4, 6 and 14 lb cans, by Messrs. Libby, McNeil & Libby of Chicago, and we cheerfully recommend this brand of goods as a safe, nutritious and economical article of food.

E. G. PEIRCE, Jr., Chief Marshal.

"Woodman, Spare That Tree."

On Friday the workmen engaged in levelling off and turfing over the granite-enclosed plat on the State street side of the Custom House building, thought they would be in the fashion and do a little tree planting on their own account. So they visited "Bean Pole Alley," in the rear of the North church, selected two big poles with nice, bushy tops, and planted them with appropriate ceremonies—said ceremonies consisting principally of the drilling of two holes with a crowbar,—and having thus satisfied their patriotic aspirations, went on laying turf and patiently awaited the approval of their fellow citizens. Pretty soon the "trees" attracted the attention of a gentleman, who remarked, "Well, by thunder! If the United States Government can't furnish better trees than those they'd better sell out. The fellow that furnished 'em ought to be investigated—by Clymer's committee, too!" Next came a bevy of young ladies, who walked entirely around the grass-plot so as to get the best possible view of the astonishing productions of nature set up in its middle, and as they went away one was heard to say, "I wonder where they got those ugly-looking things? They are not half so nice as ours at the Park." Several small boys expressed derision in language more forcible than choice; and such sarcastic enquiries as "I say, gentlemen, where do you find that breed of trees?" and "Do you know whether those trees are paid for out of a regular appropriation?" were common. Finding their humble efforts at beautifying the city so poorly appreciated, the workmen finally pulled up the big beanpoles, carried them back to the place whence they came, and a refined public taste in trees was no longer outraged.

The Kane Divorce Suit.

The proceedings in the suit, before the Supreme Court of Kings County, New York, of Nellie C. Kane vs. Chaplain James J. Kane, U. S. N., for a limited divorce, are made public. Mrs. Kane is a daughter of Naval Constructor Samuel M. Pook, and was married to him while both were residents of this city, in September, 1870, the bride being considerably younger than her husband, and being his second wife. They lived together amicably for four years, and then went to live with a mother-in-law, when trouble began, as the husband alleges.

Mrs. Kane's complaint alleged that the defendant had treated her unkindly, and on several occasions had spoken crossly to her. She further alleges, that on an overland trip to California, in a Pullman car, he had two nights compelled her to sleep in a double berth with two children, while he selfishly luxuriated in the upper single berth and refused to take one of the babies to bed with him, on the plea that he did not "ship" for a wet nurse. Another allegation is that defendant went into her bedroom against her wishes, and spoke unkindly about the want of her domestic economy, etc. Several other complaints were made, all of the above nature.

Shortly after taking up his residence with the mother-in-law his health broke down. The Navy Department accorded him a leave of absence, and he went to Europe, where he was absent for several months, and on his return last Spring was served with the papers in the suit which had been commenced against him by his wife. His answer was a general denial of the allegations, as he had letters from his wife to prove that she left him, stating in a confession she made to him, that she never loved him, and had played the hypocrite for four years, professing to love him when it was all a fearful round of hypocrisy, and that she could not carry on the deception any longer. She also stated that she asked for no further support.

Last May the defendant, by the advice of physicians, took a second trip to Europe, on last August, while living in London, and old wound, which was received while he was an Ensign during the war, reopened and ruptured an artery, in consequence of which he very nearly bled to death.

When the case was called, counsel for defendant asked that trial be suspended against his client while he was so ill. In making the motion, he produced a certificate, signed by an eminent physician of England, setting forth the enfeebled condition of defendant and his total inability to travel. A voyage across the ocean at this season would imperil his life. The certificate shown the Court was endorsed by the United States Consul at Manchester, England.

Connsel for Mrs. Kane stated that the case was previously postponed for the reason of the illness of defendant. He asked that the Court set the case down for trial peremptorily in May, and that it be referred to a referee atonce. The Court considered that the defence had offered reasonable and just cause for the adjournment of the trial, and in the absence of the defendant in Europe, said that it would make no especial order in the case for May, but that the trial would be called that month, and advised counsel to stipulate and have a commission to take defendant's testimony in Europe, the defendant being now in Italy.

The defendant's brother was in court, and had with him first-class return tickets to Europe by the Guard Line of steamers, made out in favor of the plaintiff, her two children and maid servant, and made the offer to Mrs. Kane, through her counsel, to escort her to her husband in Europe, assuring her that he would forgive and forget her past conduct, and provide her with a residence on the Continent of Europe, for the better purpose of educating their children. No notice whatever was taken of the offer, but the action was pressed for trial in the defendant's absence.

Pull & be D. R. R.

The adjourned meeting of the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad was held at the City Council Room in this city on Monday morning; and after a brief session, was adjourned to Wednesday July 19th, at half-past 11 o'clock, at the same place.

Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett was called to the chair, and the committee appointed at the previous meeting, (Messrs. Geo. F. Hobbs, John Bracewell, Charles H. Horton, W. H. Y. Hackett and A. R. Hatch,) made the following report, which was accepted and adopted:—

To the Stockholders of the Portsmouth and Dover Railroad:

Your undersigned committees, having considered the matter referred to them, report; That the Railroad is without any funds adequate for the completion of its depots; that it cannot assess its stockholders; that it has no means of raising funds to meet such legal claims as exist against it; that the cities of Portsmouth and Dover cannot under existing laws make further advances in behalf of said Road; that the stock limited and remaining unsold cannot at this time be sold at par, as required by law; and that we therefore recommend that an effort be made to secure such legislation as may be deemed essential to enable said cities in the exercise of their discretion to meet all just and legal claims against said Railroad Corporation now existing, and to complete the construction of necessary depots, either by taking more stock or by allowing the rental and dividends on said stock due all the stockholders to be appropriated to the payment of all present just and legal claims against said Railroad and for the constructions of such depots, with such further modifications as may be deemed advisable.

Mr. Hatch made an earnest speech in favor of the road, and said that he regarded his $2000 invested therein as good as any other 6 per cent. investment. The road has cost more than he thinks it ought to have cost; but it was built under control and direction of the Eastern Road, when they were supposed to be rich and to know what they were about; and even as things are, and have been and are like to be, he thinks the guaranty of the Eastern Road in New Hampshire is good at any rate, and that all concerned will yet feel satisfied with the P. & D. Road, and grateful to those who built it. He regards it as a great public improvement and benefit; and while he would hope that the present individual stock-holders, or others, will take the additional stock requisite to pay the debt, still he is in favor of endeavoring to secure additional legislation, so that the two cities of Portsmouth and Dover can if necessary raise the money, by the issue of new bonds, or in some other way. No other remarks were made. It was then "Voted, That the committee already appointed be a committee to obtain such necessary legislation as will enable the Corporation to make provision for the payment of the outstanding debts of the Road."

Jottings.

NO CHRONICLE to-morrow.

Business generally will be suspended today.

The general delivery at the Post Office will be closed to-day from 12 o'clock, noon, to 6 o'clock P. M. The box office will be open all day, as usual.

The old powder house has been undergoing repairs. Stored within the walls is a quantity of powder belonging to no one knows whom. Cartridges prepared in the war of 1812, on which are written, "This is for the heart of General Hull," "This is for the heart of General Gates," etc., are lying in the house. These missiles seem not to have performed their work of death, but have slept in quiet for over sixty years.

A commitee of the Portsmouth Piscataquaco Chowder-Heads have planted a centennial grove at Gerrish's Island. The old camping ground at the "point" is the spot selected. The grove will be dedicated with appropriate ceremonies at a future day; due notice will be given. A "good time" may be expected.

The general committee on Memorial Day have received notification from the leader of the Rye Cornet Band,—an excellent organization,—kindly volunteering their services for the afternoon, which have been accepted.

The Portsmouth Veteran Artillery Association have been presented with an elegant flag and staff surmounted with an eagle, by Quartermaster Sergeant John H. Wells.

Rev. Franklin Davis, who has been pastor of the Congregational church in Newington for nearly twelve years, has resigned. Rev. Mr. Hadley, of Peterborough, will succeed him.

The case of the sailors of the schooner J. Ricardo Jova, for fighting on Saturday night, was before the Police Court on Monday. Two of the assailants were placed under $300 bonds to appear at the October term of the Circuit Court and another man under $100 as a witness. In default of bail, all will go to jail.

Mr. George Hutchins of this city has in his possession a pitcher which can claim veneration if age is venerable. It originally came from Scotland and is from 350 to 400 years old. It is a curiosity as a relic of "ye olden times," not only by reason of its age but also from the quaintness of its construction. It is called a puzzle pitcher, and one might get thirsty several times before learning the secret of drinking from it without spilling its contents. Mr. Hutchins has also a barrel made of cut glass, which holds about a gallon. It is placed upon an antique stand made of mahogany, marked "1776." It is said there were only two brought to this country, and the mate to this is owned by a gentleman in New York city. Were all the old relics, paintings, books, etc., that are scattered about our city collected together, they would make a very respectable museum. Why not gather them in?

The reported cases of small-pox at the house of Mr. L. Woedbury Lord are pronounced measles.

Dr. Sherburne has recovered his coat.

Parts 17 to 20 of the new edition of Zell's Popular Encyclopedia are received from the publishers. Persons desiring to act as agents may address Horace King, Thompsonville, Conn.

There was a thunder shower at Rye, Sunday evening, between half-past seven and eight o'clock, and the earthquake reported here about that time was probably a clap of Rye thunder!

The Philadelphians are bound to have the exhibition open on Sunday if there is anything in agitation and perseverance.

Rev. Thomas W. Brown of Dover has received an invitation to become the pastor of the Unitarian Church at Eastport, Me., also a renewal of a similar call to the pastorate of the Unitarian church in Wilton, N. H.

Mose Skinner's Centennial Book, published by the New England News Company, is the silliest thing of the season. Price fifteen cents. Don't buy it!

Now is the time to begin to bottle up enthusiasm for the coming Fourth of July Centennial Celebration. The advice of patriotic John Adams, as to how the Fourth should be celebrated, will certainly be adopted this year as never before; and, in this connection, we should like to call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Banfield, Forristall & Co., of Boston, in another column. They are one of the oldest and most reliable houses that deal in Fire Works, and this year they have an assortmant calculated to set all Young America frantic with joy.

The People Hand-Book is a volume of about two hundred pages issued from the Concord People office, and containing a great amount of statistical information, including the votes as returned by town clerks for Governor, Railroad Commissioner, Councillors, Senators, County officers, and Representatives at the recent election. It has besides, the vote of the States for President in 1872, and a large amount of general information. The Hand-Book supplies a long felt want and will be a convenient work of reference the coming year. For sale at the bookstores.

The funeral of Frost, the Petersham murderer at Dover, was very quiet, and only the immediate relatives followed the remains to the grave on Pine Hill. One person, executed for a like offence, has previously been buried there.

To the Ladies.

The Floral Committee on Decoration Day invite the ladies to assemble in the banquet-room of Franklin Hall (entrance on Fleet street) at 10 o'clock this (Saturday) morning, and any time thereafter until the noon of Memorial Day, to assist in working on evergreen. Everything necessary will be provided at the hall. PER ORDER OF COM.

Too Fast by a Year.

"It is common to speak of the present year (1876) as being a century since the Declaration of Independence, made in Philadelphia, July 4, 1776. If so, is it proper to call the present a Centennial year? A child is not a year old till its second birthday; so the nation will not be a century old till its 101st birthday, which will not take place till another year. D."

The above communication is published by an exchange, in which we also find the following:

"We are pained to announce that the Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia, now in progress, will have to close! It is altogether too premature—just one year ahead of the time. So we say to the Centennial Managers, 'Stop the show! stop the show!' All the Governors and other distinguished men, and even the President of the United States, have been fooled nicely. But tear down the massive buildings, tip over the peanut stands, plow up the beer gardens, and sow Fairmount Park with green peas for the Fourth of July. What a blow it will be to the hotels and boarding houses, that have had such great expectations. How it will cripple the numerous American eagles that orators of every grade were just getting in training to soar aloft, spread their wings, and— and—! Our venerable and aged correspondent 'D.' whose communication may be found in another column, has made the discovery, all at once, that this is not Centennial year!—that the nation will not be one hundred years old till next year; and all this talk about the nation being a century old, is the worst blunder. We are sorry that our correspondent has kept this terrible secret to himself until now, that he has locked it up in his bosom to let it out now. Why, it is like telling to a man surrounded by a numerous family, in a grand Thanksgiving festival, or family reunion, that his marriage was illegal. We shall look with terrible misgivings for the effect this handwriting upon the wall will have upon those who are partaking of the great feast at Philadelphia. Still we cannot suppress a feeling akin to pride that a citizen of Augusta should be the first to make this great discovery!"

—When Hon. S. S. Cox was looking at the great Corliss engine at the Centennial, he asked the guard standing near what horse power the engine had? The reply came, with an amazed look, "Why! you darned fool! it don't run by horses; they use steam?"

Daily Chronicle.

The other day we met a "reformer," which has come to mean a political growler. He was very pathetic over the shortcomings of the republican party, and very positive in his demands for new leaders. Imagine our surprise when we learned that he had held a sinecure revenue office for twelve years through the influence of a high treasury official who "held over" from the Buchanan administration; and only discovered that party managers were corrupt when they abolished his office and sent him out into the world to earn his bread and butter. Having cared for him twelve years the fellow had come to the conclusion that the party was instituted for that sole purpose. Hence his denunciation and pathos. —Portland Press.

Liver and Blood Diseases.

By R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Author of "The People's Common Sense Medical Advisor."

A healthy liver secretes each day about two and a half pounds of bile, which contains a great amount of waste material taken from the blood. When the liver becomes torpid or congested, it fails to eliminate this vast amount of noxious matter which, therefore, remains to poison the blood, and be conveyed to every part of the system. What must be the condition of the blood when it is receiving and retaining each day two and a half pounds of poison? Nature tries to work off this poison through other channels and organs—the kidneys, lungs, skin, etc., but these organs become over-taxed in performing this labor in addition to their natural functions, and cannot long withstand the pressure, but become variously diseased.

The brain, which is the great electral center of all vitality, is unduly stimulated by this unhealthy blood which passes to it from the heart, and it fails to perform its office healthily. Hence the symptoms of bile poisoning, which are dullness, headache, incapacity to keep the mind on any subject, impairment of memory, dizzy, sleepy, or nervous feelings, gloomy dizzy forebodings, and irritability of temper. The blood itself being diseased, as it forms the sweat upon the surface of the skin, it is so irritating and poisonous that it produces discolored brown spots, pimples, blotches, and other eruptions, sores, boils, carbuncles, and scrofulous tumors. The stomach, bowels, and other organs, cannot escape becoming affected, sooner or later, and we have, as the result, costiveness, piles, dropsy, dispepsia, and diarrhœa. Other symptoms are common, as bitter or bad taste in the mouth, internal heat, palpitation, teasing cough, unsteady appetite, choking sensation in the throat, bloating of stomach, pain in sides or about shoulders or back, coldness of extremeties, etc. Only a few of the above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time. The liver being the great depurating, or blood-cleansing organ of the system, set this great "housekeeper of our health" at work, and the foul corruptions which gender in the blood, and rot out, as it were, the machinery of life, are gradually expelled from the system. For this purpose, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, with small doses daily of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, are pre-eminently the articles needed. They cure every kind of humor from the worst scrofula to the common pimple, blotch, or eruption. Great eating ulcers kindly heal under their mighty curative influence. Virulent blood poisons that lurk in the system are by them robbed of their terrors, and by their preserving and somewhat protracted use the most tainted systems may be completely renovated and built up anew. Enlarged glands, tumors, and swellings, dwindle away and disappear under the influence of these great resolvents.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Billiousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first they derived their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About the time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself well cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did me no good, finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Company paper. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wished to try your medicine; I gave her a little pill, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than ever---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

With a Large Assortment of Display Type

— — USE — —

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

LINCOLN BUTTER POWDER.

Good Fresh Butter All The Year Round.

BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.

Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the butter counties around Philadelphia.

In hot weather this Powder makes butter much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cotton seed, etc.; and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

A Wonderful Undertaking.

Mr. Henry C. Jarrett, of the enterprising theatrical firm of Jarrett & Palmer, managers of Booth's Theatre, is busily engaged in perfecting a railroad project, the consummation of which will identify the firm name with one of the most memorable enterprises of the Centennial year. The first intimation of the scheme was incredulously received, but now it is apparent to the most skeptical that the idea of reaching San Francisco, 3,317 miles away, in time to dine on Sunday—the train having left New York on the previous Thursday—is soon to be a fact accomplished.

The time usually occupied by the gigantic trip is seven days, but in order to reduce this to the proposed one-half the Jarrett & Palmer train is bound to keep up a maximum rate of speed night and day continuously, and with no stoppages, until the Pacific coast is reached. Relays of engines must be in waiting in frequent stations, and the entire signal force of each road over which the train is run, aggregating over 6,000 men, will be required for service, by day with flags, and by night with lanterns. Every other train must give this special fast train the right of way.

That no accident may be possible, Mr. Jarrett has given consideration to every suggestion leading to the safety of the passengers, and to this end all the telegraphic stations will be kept open, and pilot-engines sent on in advance of the approaching special locomotive.

The train will consist of one combination baggage and mail car, one superb day coach, now being built by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company expressly for the trip, and one magnificent Pullman Palace Hotel Car, the mate of which is now on exhibition at the Centennial Fair. But twenty passengers will be carried, and of these four are invited guests, including Mr. Lawrence Barratt, the tragedian, who is under engagement to Messrs. Jarrett & Palmer to appear as principal in Shakespeare's spectacular tragedy of "Henry V." the night after his arrival in San Francisco; special correspondents of the Paris Constitutionnel; Bull Run Russell, of the London Times; and correspondents of the New York Herald, Tribune, Times, Frank Leslie's Illustrated, and Harper's Weekly.

It is believed that the party will reach Pittsburg in about ten hours, Chicago in twenty hours—where New York papers of the same day's issue will be delivered to agents of the American News Company for distribution—and cross the Mississippi on the evening of the same day they started from New York.

The tickets gotten up by Mr. Jarrett are very unique, the coupons being elegantly engraved leaves of a sterling silver book, the title page of which contains the inscription; "Jarrett & Palmer's Special Fast Train—Continental Train, New York to San Francisco, leaving New York Thursday, June 1, 1876." It is illuminated by a picture representing the train turning the Horse Shoe on the summit of the Alleghanies, near Altoona.

The route adopted is over the Pennsylvania Railroad from Jersey City to Pittsburg; from Pittsburg to Chicago, over the railway of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Company; from Chicago to Omaha by the Chicago and Northwestern Railway; from Omaha to Ogden, over the Union Pacific Railroad; and from Ogden to San Francisco by the Central Pacific Railroad.

The excitement created by the competing Western agencies in Chicago for the honor of running the train was very great; but, after careful consideration of its advantages, Mr. Jarrett concluded to adopt the Chicago and Northwestern Railway route. The President, General Superintendent and all subordinates of this great corporation, being pleased by the selection, have since entered fully and enthusiastically into the spirit which animates Jarrett & Palmer. The principal officers will accompany the party over their road to Omaha, and personally direct the special arrangements made for their safety, comfort and expedition.

The day selected for the start is Thursday, June 1, and early enough in the morning to give the passengers a view of the glorious scenery between New York and Chicago. The majestic scenery of the Rocky Mountains will also be viewed by daylight, and the whole trip, it seems, has been organized with the view of making it delightfully exciting.—Graphic, May 13.

—The latest nuisance in the shape of a juvenile toy consists of a leaden ball, of the size of an English walnut; with a nipple on its surface, on which a percussion cap may be placed. The ball is held by a string so attached that when the ball is dropped upon the pavement the cap explodes. It is an admirable contrivance for frightening horses and children, and is becoming quite popular with American youth.

—A Philadelphia man has discovered that a house may be heated by reflection. We hail the discovery with joy, and hope to see the time when every man may sit down and reflect a few burning thoughts to warm up his domicile for the day, and then go down and dance a jig of exultant defiance before the office door of the starving coal dealer.

The Conkling conference recently held at the Delavan House in Albany was one of the weakest demonstrations known for many years. This Hotel is most popular with the better classes of travellers, is kept on the European plan, and affords unusual advantages. It is centrally located, is in a quiet part of the city, its accommodations are of the very best, while the prices are no higher than at other hotels.

Senator Anthony, of Rhode Island, has been renominated by the republicans.

—A correspondent of the San Francisco Chronicle, writing from Nevada, describes what he justly characterizes as the most wonderful and extensive formation of salt on the continent. The formation is on the Virgin River and is in fact one of the mountains of salt—hard rock salt, which is blasted and quarried out like quarries of granite and marble. Commencing six miles up the Virgin river, these mountains of salt extend for thirty or more miles up the Virgin and Muddy rivers. There are openings now made from six to twenty miles up the Virgin river at different places. From six to twelve miles up these openings uncover a species of dark gray salt, 92 per cent. pure, presenting to the casual observer the appearance of common coarse gray granite. These openings are all on the east side of the Virgin river, from one-fourth to one-half a mile from its banks. At a point twenty miles up the river and on its western side is a mountain of pure, white crystalized salt, white as the driven snow and transparent almost as glass.

PILOT BREAD.

This kind of bread having come into extensive family use, it has been my purpose to furnish, from choice materials, an article which should meet the approval of the most fastidious as to neatness, looks and taste. Whether I have succeeded in giving to the public a Pilot Bread superior in excellence, the consumer may be the judge; that the quality will not be suffered to depreciate, the past with the present is my best pledge. That I can compete with all the various qualities of Pilot Bread in the market, as to price, I make no pretensions,—but in price, all things being equal, I for so competition.

BUCKEYE MOWING MACHINE.

The subscriber has for sale this celebrated Mower. The manufacturers of it have spared no pains or expense, for years, to bring this machine to perfection, having adopted every improvement of real merit. They now might well challenge the world to produce a Mower so light of draft, so easily managed and so durable; these are the essential qualifications for a good Mower, and we believe are more fully attained in the BUCKEYE of 1876 than in any other machine. The one horse is sufficiently light of draft for one man to draw it, cutting a full swath in grass of a ton and a quarter to the acre. Either of the machines can be raised to any desirable height to pass obstructions, or be folded completely over by the driver without leaving his seat.

Let all who are about to purchase take a few hours and examine this machine at the residence of the subscriber. E. B. PHILBRICK.

Memorial Day

Was one of the finest of the season, pleasant and cool, the heat and showers of the preceding day being succeeded by a clear sky and cool southerly wind. Thousands of strangers were in the city, and the streets were thronged with spectators during the marching of the procession, while Harmony Grove Cemetery was well filled with a living population bent on doing honor to the heroic dead whose graves were designated by flags and decorated during the afternoon with wreaths and flowers. The observance of the day was more general than ever before, business being suspended and a holiday decided upon. The arrangements of Chief Marshal E. G. Pierce, Jr., and his able assistants were very complete, and were carried out faithfully, the procession forming promptly at half-past one o'clock, P. M., and moving a few minutes past two o'clock, the first and second divisions being in line on Congress street, the right resting on Pleasant and Fleet streets, and the third division on Pleasant street, right resting at Rockingham Bank

The battalion from the navy yard, consisting of a company of marines commanded by Lieut. David Whipple, U. S. M. C., and two companies of boys from the training ship Sabine, commanded by naval lieutenants W. W. Rhodes and Andrew Dunlap, the battalion being commanded by Lieut. Comdr. Francis A. Cook, U. S. N., were received at the navy yard landing by the Heavy Artillery and escorted to their position at the right of the line. This "naval contingent" was a fine feature of the procession, the marines making their usual display of good discipline, and the sailor boys marching and "evoluting" with a steadiness and precision most creditable to themselves, and giving good witness to the interest and ability of the officers of the Sabine. If the boys recently enlisted in the navy, on the other training ships, are of as good material and as judiciously trained as those on the Sabine, their introduction among the older seamen will be a powerful assistance to the officers in the perfecting of drill and discipline on board ship.

The Heavy Artillery, Capt. Frank Williams, made a splendid appearance, and evidenced careful drilling and earnest attention to it. Their uniform is very handsome,—dark blue, trimmed with scarlet and gold; epaulets—blue field, with scarlet crescent and white fringe; and a very neat fatigue cap,—the full uniform head dress being a helmet, with a scarlet plume. Their soldierly appearance and fine marching won the approving notice of old military men; and if the company keeps up its past rate of improvement it will soon be second to no military organization in the State. The City Guards, Capt. Jacob Haddock, made their usual creditable appearance. The Veteran Artillery Association, under command of Capt. Geo. W. Towle, made their first public appearance on this occasion, having in the ranks many who took part in military affairs in the days when the old Rockingham Guards and Portsmouth Greys used to parade our streets. The Light Artillery, Capt. T. E. O. Marvin, was not in the procession on the march to the cemetery, being engaged in firing a salute from the hill near the Park, but fell into line with two field pieces on the return. The battery attracted much attention, each gun being drawn by four horses, and Capt. Marvin mounted.

The Fire Department was represented by the Chief Engineer, Assistant Engineers, Dearborn Engine Co., No. 1, and Kearsarge Engine Co., No. 3. As usual (on parade and elsewhere) the firemen made a creditable appearance. The veteran soldiers and sailors, many of them bearing beautiful floral offerings, were a most interesting feature of the procession, and the Odd Fellows, in the handsome uniform of the Encampment, made a fine display. The police force in uniform, with the City Marshal on horseback, headed the procession. The force made a good appearance, and did good service during the day—in the line of keeping streets clear, etc., for we are happy to say that we neither saw nor heard of either drunkenness or disturbance.

A notable feature of the occasion was the music, three Bands and the Drum Corps being in the line. The Naval Band played some of their finest selections of marching music, and Col. Conwell declared it to be one of the best bands of its size he ever listened to. The Portsmouth Cornet Band made its first public appearance in procession, appearing under great difficulties, being without Mr. Critchley, their talented leader, who was debarred from occupying his position by reason of illness. The Band, however, furnished very good music, as did the Portsmouth Drum Corps, (Abraham Kay leader,) whose soul-stirring music of piccolos, flutes and drums was a very enjoyable feature. The Rye Cornet Band, Col. G. Harrison Jenness leader, which had kindly volunteered for the occasion, also furnished excellent music, heavy, harmonious and popular. The Band is an honor to the town it represented and to its leader.

The floral car, representative of the Army, and bearing the wreaths and flowers which were afterward placed on the graves, and carrying a symbolic monument bearing the inscriptions: "Their deeds survive them" and "We live by their sacrifices;" and the floral barge, representative of the Navy, manned by twelve boys in sailors' dress and bearing the names "Farragut," "Pearson," "Thornton," "Storer," were designed under the active management of Mr. Oliver M. Knight, and were finely decorated. The fine landaulet in which the orator of the evening and members of the Press were conveyed to the cemetery is a new and elegant carriage just purchased by R. H. Beacham, Esq.

The route was as follows: down Market street to Deer, through Deer, Bridge, Islington, Cabot, Middle, State, Pleasant, Daniel, Mulberry, State, Pleasant and South streets, and Sagamore road, to lower entrance to the cemetery. Here a hollow square was formed near the soldiers' monument, and services were commenced with reading of the Scriptures and a prayer by Rev. John A. Goss, which was followed by a brief address by Rev. Charles A. Holbrook, Rector of St. John's Parish. As the wind was blowing fresh and the hollow square large, the speaker labored under considerable difficulty in endeavoring to make himself heard; but his clear voice and distinct enunciation overcame this difficulty to a great extent. The address was patriotic in tone and was a fervid appeal to all present to place love of country above love of self. He spoke of the annual decoration of the graves of the fallen soldiers and sailors as alike a pleasure and a duty, and commended the observance of Memorial Day as tending to patriotic inspiration of youth while it renewed sacred memories in the breast of all who in the dark days of strife had given up fathers, brothers, lovers and friends for the salvation of the country. The heroes who had given up their all, their life, had performed their whole duty, and the present generation and those who come after us should keep the fires of patriotism constantly burning in their hearts.

At the conclusion of the address the ceremonies of decorating the graves were performed by the veteran soldiers and sailors, who placed garlands of evergreens and bouquets on 167 graves, the veterans separating by squads to perform this tribute to their departed comrades. A very pleasant feature of the occasion was the planting of a white rosebush upon the grave of Henry Richards, (to whom Portsmouth is indebted for the line of noble trees which adorn Richards Avenue,) by Col. Russell H. Conwell, the orator of the evening, whose practice it is to carry with him on Memorial Day, wherever he is to speak, a bush of this kind to mark some grave of prominence, or which may have been overlooked among the many. The grave of Mr. Richards was by no means neglected, but considering the great good done in peace and war by this noble soldier, the committee advised Col. Conwell to select his grave for especial recognition. In planting the bush he was assisted by Miss Emily S. Fernald and Miss Florence P. Sise, to whom Col. Conwell committed its care, a trust which will be faithfully kept.

During the marching of the procession about the city a salute was fired in the field east of the cemetery by the Light Artillery, Capt. T. E. O. Marvin commanding. After the decoration of the graves a volley was fired by the battalion of marines commanded by Lieut. David Whipple. The procession was again formed and took up its line of march through the main avenue of the cemetery, Richards Avenue, Middle and Congress streets to Market Square, where the three divisions closed in mass, and Chief Marshal Pierce promulgated orders for the evening memorial service at the Temple, and dismissed parade.

The memorial services at the Temple were highly interesting and largely attended, the parquet being crowded and hundreds being unable to obtain seats in the lower hall. Nearly all of the seats in the gallery were occupied and the stage crowded with veterans, speakers, singers and representatives of the various organizations which had appeared in the procession. The Naval Band kept the audience in good humor by some of their finest selections before the commencement of the regular exercises. The appearance of the venerable Ex-Governor Goodwin, who had consented to preside, was a signal for general applause, which increased in volume when Major E. A. Tilton arose, called the gathering to order and introduced our noble hearted War Governor, "Honorable—thrice honorable—Ichabod Goodwin," who made the following very brief address, which was warmly applauded:

Ladies and Gentlemen: I consider it an honor to be called to preside over this meeting, gathered here to-night in remembrance and commemoration of those brave and noble men who gave up their lives and all that was dear to them in this world, in defence of our Government, of our civil rights, of freedom, liberty and the rights of humanity.

How beautiful are these memories! monuments raised in our hearts, more lasting than pillars of stone or marble, upborne and sealed by holy faith. I trust that through all time, generation after generation, our children and theirs, may be so imbued with these memories as to perpetuate these most patriotic and tender ceremonies—and when we shall have finished our course in this world, that we may meet our departed heroes, where there will be neither strife nor war, but love and peace prevail evermore.

By special request the Drum Corps, which had won much praise during the day at all hands, were then called on and responded with a selection played in such perfect time, and the picolo and flute solos with such rare and inspiriting harmony, that the audience burst into warm applause for an encore, allowing the worthy President hardly time enough to be heard long enough to request the Drum Corps to give the applauders "another touch," at which the audience became merry with delight. The encore was given with a will. The first selection by the Naval Band was rapturously applauded, being the new and soon-to-be-popular Centennial medley, in which about a score of the melodies of past days are introduced, the gems of the performance including trombone solos "Way Down on the Swanee River" and "Katy Darling." Keller's American Hymn was sung by a chorus of about forty ladies and gentlemen in wretchedly bad time with band accompaniment, the chorus lagging sadly behind the accompaniment. An impressive prayer was then offered by Rev. James Noyes, Chaplain of the evening, after which the chorus sang with good effect, "The Soldier's Farewell." Gov. Goodwin next introduced the orator of the evening, Col. Russell H. Conwell, of Boston, who, speaking extemporaneously, as is his custom, with occasional reference to notes when wishing to be exact in matters of statistics, delivered one of the most eloquent and thrilling orations it has ever been our good fortune to listen to; which held the audience spellbound from commencement to close, exciting enthusiasm for the noble cause he represented, and admiration for the talents of the impassioned speaker. The theme, the orator expressed himself as an ennobling one. He pleasantly referred to the successful observation of the services of the day, whereby in honoring the brave dead the living had honored themselves. The occasion had been to him one of inspiration, which even while speaking brought back the memories of days, long gone, when these streets had been the busy scene of other and more stirring events. The graves of the heroes who had been honored were consecrated and rendered sacred and holy by the act; such localities should fill the mind of the thinker with more than passing impressions. The American idea does not sufficiently lead to reverence of association, and the practice of demolishing ancient landmarks and covering up the hallowed histories of the past is too prevalent among our people in this country and in others. He confessed to a feeling of disgust when travelling in Europe, China and the Holy Land, at the want of a proper appreciation of the deeds that had rendered these places famous, when his companions remarked upon the beauty of the weather and the scenery. Waterloo, Palestine and China were sacred spots to him from their association. Thrills of inspiration seized him at Waterloo as the locations of the divisions of the various armies were pointed out, the ravine, the hill and woods from whence opposing armies charged, and the ever memorable spot where Napoleon had his head-quarters. In China where the fires of Confucius had been continually fed and kept alive for five hundred years was to him a sacred locality. The Holy Land was full of sacred memories. The ford where the Saviour was baptised and the Dead Sea which covers Sodom and Gomorrah filled his soul with awe. He had been aroused by an Arab who disturbed his reveries by offering to sell a specimen of Lot's Wife, which he purchased to rid himself of the intruder and threw into the Dead Sea, and which the wretch recovered floating on the water and again offered for sale to him. Palestine was as dreary a spot as he ever visited, yet its sacred associations were full of great interest. The scenes of great deeds of the past should always afford inspiration. His own State of Massachusetts was known in history as the locality where the first blood of the Revolution was shed, and the scene of early patriotism. Yet Portsmouth had furnished earlier examples; these streets resounded with the tread of a procession denouncing the Stamp Act before Massachusetts had dared to be brave. These streets had again been the scene of rejoicing over the repeal of that act a few months after. Boston was proud of Bunker Hill and Lexington. State street had been the scene of the primary conflict in which blood had been shed. But months before, a brave deed had been done in Portsmouth whose consequences were inestimable. No blood was shed, but those who took part in it risked their lives as did those who died at Bunker Hill and Lexington. An armed force of volunteers marched through the streets of Portsmouth and boldly proceeded to take possession of Fort William and Mary, capturing the muskets, cannon and powder, which were afterward sent to Gen. Washington and without which he would have been unable to force the evacuation of Boston by the British. Impartial history would name this locality as the one where the Revolution was inaugurated. The history was not wholly impartial. He half wished his self-complacency had not been disturbed by this visit to Portsmouth. We had to-day been engaged in making impartial history. The victors in the Revolution were private soldiers who generally were credited with very little honor for their deeds. Many filled unknown graves. The officers who commanded then, being better known, were credited with their achievements and though they did their duty received more than their share of praise. Gen. Thomas had told him that he disliked being credited with the victory of Lookout Mountain, which private soldiers had won after he had ordered a retreat. These men burning with an ardor born of inspiration, were ahead of their officers and heeded not their orders, boldly climbing the mountain, bayoneting the cannoniers at their posts, and winning one of the most notable victories of the war. It is a well known fact in history that the greatest Generals have won their first victories through the disobedience of private soldiers, who had wrested victory from the jaws of defeat.

The memories of the scenes of the war should be revived. The speaker here thrillingly asked his fellow soldiers if they could not picture as he could the battles at Gettysburg, at Antietam, and at other places, and live them all over again in detail—the charge of the enemy, the feeling that came in the terrible moment of suspense that they were very near unto death, the desperate valor which caused the repulse of the foe, the wild, maddening, exhilarating charge against their lines and the shout of victory when the fight was over. Such memories if kept bright will serve to keep the throat of the country from the touch of traitor or invader.

Here the eloquent speaker asked a most pertinent question. The dead have given all to their country—have not the living also? The maimed heroes who survive were as brave and as sacrificing. They stood the same chance of honorable death and received wounds and scars. Some lost an arm, some a leg, some both, and others were disabled. We have performed a duty to the dead to-day; let us not forget to perform our full duty to the living, whose sacrifices in company with the silent multitude who saved a country for our full enjoyment demand recognition. Remembering them is but justice, a duty owed which neglect will never make less obligatory. If we forget them we shall not deserve a country. If we aid and protect those who protected us, we shall deserve a lasting condition of political peace and religious rest.

Col. Conwell took his seat amid thunders of applause. His burning words were listened to with the utmost attention, and another hour would have found the audience undiminished had he continued.

The following Memorial Hymn, written for the occasion, was next read by Miss Susie P. Spalding, with expression and feeling, after which the audience joined in singing the Hymn to the tune "America," the Band playing an accompaniment.

MEMORIAL HYMN.

BY ALBERT LAIGHTON.

No trend of armed men;
No lightning-flash, and then
The thunder's roar!
No lifeless form, fast;
No bugle's rallying blast;
The wild, sad days are past;
Peace smiles once more.

Unharmed the banner waves,
Fair as of yore;—
O' Liberty's glad sign!
Rayed with a light divine,
In starry splendor shine
For evermore!

What fields were lost or won;
What daring deeds were done,
Let Valor tell.
True Freedom to secure;
For Justice firm and sure;
For Right that shall endure,
Our heroes fell.

By each green mound to-day,
Your grateful homage pay
O Land of ours!
There, loyal hearts and true,
Your sacred vows renew
In Freedom's name, and strew
The sweet Spring flowers.

Theirs is the wreath of Fame
The Victor's storied name,
Time cannot stain;
Ours is the nobler Land;
The Nation strong and grand;
The Union's broken band
Made whole again.

Thou Giver of all good,
Keep us one brotherhood
From North to South!
Dear Lord! in days to come
Hushed be the battle-drum;
Sheathed be the sword, and dumb
The cannon's mouth.

Major E. A. Tilton in a speech of rare discrimination presented in behalf of the committee a fine silk flag with gold tassel to Miss Spalding as an acknowledgement of her kindness in aiding in the exercises of the evening. Major Tilton also moved that a committee of three be appointed from the floor to nominate a committee of six natives of Portsmouth whose duty it shall be to devise a plan and make arrangements for the erection of a soldiers' and sailors' monument in Langdon Park to be dedicated one year from date. The motion was unanimously adopted and Rev. James DeNormandie, Hon. Ichabod Goodwin and Col. William H. Sise were appointed. The committee retired and the Naval Band played until they returned. Gov. Goodwin reported as members of the committee, Messrs, William H. Sise, Daniel Marcy, Frank W. Miller, T. Salter Tredick, Thomas H. Odion and Joseph Hiller Foster, and also a recommendation that the committee have power to increase the number ad lib. The report was accepted and adopted.

The exercises were concluded with singing "Marching Through Georgia," the audience rising and uniting in singing the air with great effect. Rev. James DeNormandie closed the services with the benediction.

Jottings.

The Sixteenth Massachusetts Infantry Association has accepted an invitation from Mr. Frank W. Hilton, one of its members, to visit this city during the second week in June. The headquarters will be at the Rockingham House, and the programme will embrace an excursion to Appledore Island (Isles of Shoals) a dinner, etc.

Mr. Daniel Senter, the well-known hair-dresser, who was some time since reported to be in a dying condition from inability to take any food, died on Wednesday.

The Reform Club are to visit Newburyport this (Thursday) evening, to attend a mass meeting with the Newburyport Club, by special train at half-past 6 o'clock. Fare seventy cents for the round trip.

The scholars of the Haven School together with the Master R. H. Perkins, Esq., and his associate teachers, propose to devote an hour or two on Saturday afternoon to the dedication of the beautiful elm planted by Mr. Perkins for his schoolars under his charge. The Naval Band has been secured, and several prominent gentlemen have been engaged to contribute to the literary portion of the entertainment. The Principal, Mr. Perkins, will perform the dedicatory ceremonies.

The Supply Depot of the Body.

The stomach is the grand supply depot of the body, upon which it draws for all the elements needed in the composition of bone, muscle, brain and blood. The liver is an important auxiliary of this mighty organ, and the two are so intimately connected. Nothing so certainly ensures the harmonious action of these viscera, and so completely removes the disorders which simultaneously affect both, as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the most popular American specific for all complaints to which the stomach, liver and bowels are subject, and the foremost tonic on this side of the Atlantic. Indigestion, costiveness, inactivity and congestion of the liver, poverty of the blood, debility of the bladder and kidneys, and many other ailments produced by or causing weakness, are entirely removed by its use.

Stamp speakers do not always tell the truth; they would tell it exactly if they said that Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam is the best remedy in the world for hoarseness, coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs.

☞ That yellow tinge of the complexion is a sure indication of bile in the blood. It is effectually removed by using GILBERT'S EXCELSIOR LIVER LOZENGES.

Pyle's Dietetic Saleratus.—Universally acknowledged the best in use. Each pound bears the name of JAMES PYLE. None genuine without. tje76

Important to persons visiting New York or the Centennial. The Grand Union Hotel, New York, opposite the Grand Central Depot, has over 350 elegantly furnished rooms. Elevator, steam and all improvements. European plan. Carriage hire is saved, as baggage is taken to and from the depot free. Guests can live better for less money at the Grand Union than at any other first-class hotel. Stages and cars pass the Hotel constantly to all parts of the city, and to the Philadelphia depot. dawlw12'77

Daily Chronicle.

—Here are two items that read strangely when we "run them in" together: "Thousands of Hindoos in India annually perish from exposure and want of food, the lower classes being especially destitute of the comforts of life." The gifts received by the Prince of Wales in India are much more numerous than had been reckoned on, being valued at $2,500,000. One sword alone is estimated at $40,000 in gold.

—One of the rules of Mount Holyoke Seminary, forbidding one lady to introduce a gentleman to another lady, was neatly avoided, the other day, by a Northampton girl, who, when her father came with a trunk to her room, while her friend, a Miss Blank, was present, said, "Father, I am sorry I cannot introduce you to my friend, Miss Blank of Blank, but the rules forbid it!" "Yes," said the father, shaking hands with the young lady, "and I am sorry too."

Which Shall I Take?

This is often a serious question with the invalid. He finds the market flooded with proprietary medicines, scores of which are recommended as certain cures for his peculiar ailment. He reads the papers, circulars, and almanacs, and finds each sustained by plausible arguments setting for its virtues and specific action. The recommendations are as strong for one as for another. The cures claimed to have been wrought by one are as wonderful as those claimed to have been wrought by another. In his perplexity and doubt, the sufferer is sometimes led to reject all. But it should be borne in mind that this condition of things is one that cannot be remedied. In a land where all are free, the good—the truly valuable—must come into competition with the vile and worthless, and must be brought to public notice by the same instrumentality, which is advertising. In such a case, perhaps the only absolute proof that a remedy is what it claims to be, is to try it. The "test of a pudding is the eating of it." "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good," is the apostolic injunction. There may however, be stronger presumptive evidence in favor of one remedy than there is in favor of another, and this should be allowed its due weight. A due regard to this may save a vast amount of experimenting and a useless outlay of money. As presumptive evidence in favor of Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines, the Proprietor desires to say, that they are prepared by a new and scientific process by which the virtues of the crude plants and roots are extracted without the use of a particle of alcohol. Not a particle of this destroyer of our race enters into the composition of either his Golden Medical Discovery or Favorite Prescription. This consideration alone ought certainly to rank them high above the vile compounds saturated with alcohol, Jamaica rum, sour beer, or vinegar, which are everywhere offered for sale. Again, they are of uniform strength, and their virtues can never be impaired by age. They are also made from fresh herbs and roots, gathered in their appropriate season, when they are fluid with medicinal properties. In support of these claims, the following testimony is offered;

R. V. PIERCE, M. D., NEWARK, N. J.

Dear Sir,—I have sold a great deal of your excellent remedies, and I prefer to sell them before others, because they give good satisfaction to those who use them. I hear such remarks as "Sage's Remedy completely cured me; it is a splendid thing;" or, "Pierce's Discovery is just what I wanted; I feel better than I ever did." One of our celebrated singers uses it for strengthening her voice, and says "there is nothing equals it;" and so I might give scores of remarks said about your preparations. A colored woman was using your Discovery, and after taking three bottles was completely cured. She, being in the store, said to me, "I don't want no doctors 'round me so long as I can get the Discovery; it beats all your doctors." And so I might go on.

I am, most respectfully yours,
ATHA B CROOKS.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and thought I took my last dose. I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and received to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to many of my friends and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.

SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, ME., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE.—Dear Sir.—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials you publish they say their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you that April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. R. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. This will be Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

LINCOLN BUTTER POWDER.
Good Fresh Butter All The Year Round.
BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.
Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the butter counties around Philadelphia.
In hot weather this Powder makes butter much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cotton seed, etc.; and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

"Old Diverse."

The Fayetteville (Miss.) Chronicle gives the following account of a colored exhorter's variation of a Bible story: Some time ago a few of us "white trash" were invited to attend the funeral of an old servant of the ante bellum days. The exercises took place in the neighborhood of "Hominy ridge," in this (Jefferson) county. When the preacher in charge had concluded he called upon a tall, lean, lank-looking fellow from Franklin county, by the name of Dan Knapp, to conclude, when he rose and delivered himself of the following characteristic jargon, which can be attested by several reputable witnesses, your correspondent among the number:

"De occasion ob mi appearin' befo' you, my lubbed sisterin an' brudderin, am de death ob sister Judy. An' all flesh am grass, an' all grass am flesh, ah; an' der grass am cut down, and dry up, an' go to its long home, ah. An' in dis here 'cas'n we are 'minded of the certain fac' that man am of few days, an' so is de woman! Yes, my Lord! An' dis minds me ob a circumstance long time ago—'fore de flood; yes, 'fore de flood, ah!

"Der blessed book told us dar war a man—rich man, and his name was Diverse, and dat man lib in big house, ah, and hab nice grabble walk all round dat house, and roses and twinin' vines and flowers, and little green bushes and nice little iron fence all round dat yard. Yes, my Lord! And de he hab a big yard that run down on de public road dat hab high plank fence t him and a big gate. Yes, my Lord! An in dar he had big trees wid der tops cut ol sheeps, and calfs, and 'mudda grass,' an ebberything the heart could wish, ah! Yes, my Lord! And old Divers he lib up dar in all the sumptuousness ob der season, and he hab der maid servant and der man servant; and he hab a big fine carriage, and he ride out ebery day, and when he hab on de carriage a fore nigga and a hind nigga, one to open der gate and one to shut der gate. Oh, my Lord! and when he out he hab all der good tings of dis world handed round by der yaller gals! And none ob yore half split pork meat like dose country stores gib us now. No, my Lord! and a poor man name Lazaras he come along, an' he were hungry and tired, and sick and naked, and he hab sores all ober he back, for da had been a-whaling him. Yes, my Lord! And he stopped at dat big gate an' sent a little nigga to Diverse to git some cold supper, and to git to stay all night in de barn stable! Oh, my Lord!

"An' what he done? Did he let him stay in dat stable? Diverse, when he got dat word, he just pick up de double-barrel gun, and call at him dogs an' went down to dat gate a-cussin an' a-runnin'. An' when Lazaras seed dat he bruck down dat road, ah! Diverse he lam away with bof barrels of de gun, an' den all de dogs took after Lazaras—he run and day run! And he run, and Diverse he slap his hands and sot de dogs on, and de dogs da were too much for poor old Lazaras, and da cotch him and tore up poor old Lazaras. Yes, my Lord! And poor old Lazaras he were a nigga like our sister Judy."

Democratic Logic.

A democratic exchange, referring to the recent arrest of ex-Gov. Bullock, of Georgia, on a charge of having during his governorship paid $10,000 to a car-company for cars that were never received by the State, says; "The people of Atlanta seem to have confidence in his ability to prove that he is innocent of the offences with which he is charged, and it is said that he could have secured bail to the amount of a million dollars. But whether he is innocent or guilty the very fact that he is accused is a mortification to the American people." If that last sentence means anything at all—and we presume it aims to convey some political meaning, for we clipped it from a political article—it implies that Bullock, even if innocent, is blamable for "the mortification to American people" occasioned by his wrongful accusation. The article referred to closes as follows: "For the first time in our history the Senate is engaged in trying an officer of the Cabinet for criminal offences and a State court has an ex-Governor under arrest for fraud." That isn't because there haven't been enough officers of the Cabinet who deserved being tried for criminal offences. John B. Floyd, the democratic Secretary of War who stole guns, ammunition, arsenals and munitions of war by the million dollars' worth and the democratic Secretary of the Navy who handed over to the enemies of the Union nearly all the naval property of the country, are instances; and then there is the bond-stealing democratic Secretary of the Interior, Jake Thompson, who awaits in calm patience the democratic committee which is to investigate him. As to arresting an ex-Governor for fraud, we suppose that stealing a State Senate and fraudulently disfranchising thousands of legal voters are not indictable offences at criminal law; if they were, we shouldn't have to go so far as the State of Georgia to find an ex-Governor to arrest for fraud—and a fraud all the more contemptible because as the law stands it is punishable only with the hearty contempt of all honorable men.

The National Convention.

Old Exposition Hall will close its long and eventful existence on the 14th of next month, when the republican National Convention will occur in it, and the "Great Unknown" will appear. Then it will pass away, though the memories of the great, memorable and stirring events that have happened within its historic walls will never die.

The hall is the same in which Greeley, was nominated, in 1872, and in which the democratic rag-baby was born again, a week ago to-day. It has 6,000 seats, and standing room on the floor and in the galleries for 3,000 more. It is to be handsomely decorated with flags, State arms, and various patriotic devices. The stage is to be arranged very much like that at the Philadelphia Convention, but the raised seats on the stage behind the President, 540 in number, instead of being given to the press, are assigned to invited guests. The press is immediately in front of the stage, and ample accommodation has been made for 200 representatives of the leading newspapers. In front of these a space has been allotted for the rural newspaper man, who on these occasions, having nothing to do himself, persists in putting himself in the way of those who have.

The body of the hall is divided by aisles into sections A, B, C, and D. The seats are numbered in numerical order across the entire hall in each row, and the rows are numbered backward in the same order from the stage. The delegates have the first fourteen rows, and the next fourteen are reserved for the alternates. At No. 28 a high, strong railing is erected, with a gate, at which will be an officer, in every aisle, and beyond it no one can get without a ticket.

There are four different kinds of tickets, namely, delegates, press, invited guests, and general admission. The press tickets are good for all days of the convention, and bear upon them the number of the seat, to which the holder is entitled. The general admissions are simply cards for the day, and are of different colors for each day. The others are coupon tickets, each having four coupons, each in a different color, and labeled "Wednesday," "Thursday," "Friday," and "Saturday," respectively, and each good for admission on the day designated. Each has also the number of the seat of the holder, and all are gotten up in such a way that it will be impossible to imitate them. Owing to this perfect system of Mr. Shattuc, the delegates and others can seat themselves without confusion, and as there are no more tickets for seats than there are seats, every one holding one of these will always be sure of his place. The work has been warmly approved by Hon. W. E. Chandler, Secretary of the National Committee, who will have charge of their distribution. Those for the press he must give out at his own discretion, those for the delegates and alternates of course allot themselves, and those for invited guests and general admission he will distribute pro rata among the States. He will be found at the rooms of the National Committee, at the Burnet House, and will early become an object of great interest. But thanks to his good sense in approving the excellent work in the matter of tickets, solicitations will be in vain, and the convention can not help being orderly and comfortable.—Cincinnati Times.

The Whitthorne Committee.

Ever since the rebel brigadiers secured control of the lower branch of Congress, one of their principal aims has seemed to be to "smash" the Secretary of the Navy. This object they have pursued relentlessly and persistently, and with a reckless disregard of even the appearance of honor, justice, honesty or even common decency. Why Mr. Robeson should be the special object of their enmity is not clear; had he taken a prominent part in putting down the rebellion of the democratic slaveholders and their servile worshippers, the reason of their venomous hatred would be apparent; but he did not,—though they seem to hate him just as savagely as though he did. So Whitthorne's committee has raked and scraped for evidence to damage—haply to ruin—Robeson; as in the other so-called "investigating" committees, the man most interested has had no chance to confront and cross-examine his accusers; testimony known to be false has been given to the public as true; statements made by utterly untrustworthy men have been endorsed as entirely reliable; and in many instances, where the whole of a witness' testimony would have done no harm, a portion of it only has been made public and in such a manner as to bear hardly upon the Secretary. Tired of this, at last, the Secretary wrote to Whitthorne—a manly, dignified letter he wrote, too—demanding that he be granted what the meanest sneak thief in the country is assured of—what the late democratic doorkeeper of the House received in Kentucky when he was accused of being a thief and perjurer and fire-raiser—an open trial and a chance to confront and cross-examine his accusers. For answer, Whitthorne says the investigation will still be secret, and that only such portions of the testimony as the committee chooses will be made public; while another democratic member of that precious tribunal virtually says that as the proof shall be made to sustain the charges, it would be all nonsense to give Robeson at fair chance.

An honest man, even though a blunderer, will be respected for his honesty: a dishonest man, if "smart," will have the admiration of many—witness Jim Fisk and Boss Tweed; but a blundering trickster is simply despicable, and blundering tricksters the majority of Whitthorne's committee certainly are.

Referring to Mr. Robeson's reasonable and proper request, and Whitthorne's answer, the Providence Journal says: "This committee is taking as much pains to write its majority down as asses, as it is earnest in preventing the slightest semblance of decency in its work. Were Robeson guilty a thousand times, nobody would believe it on the presentation of such a committee, laboring in such a way; and everybody will believe him innocent, because his square demand for an open and lawful trial is refused him."

And even the Boston Herald, democratic and unfair as it is, can't stand the "investigations" of the rebel brigadiers, and talks thus plainly: "If these committees are right legally in the course of proceedings they have seen fit to take, then are we living under an intolerable despotism. If they have no constitutional grounds for their action, then not a day should be passed without the interposition of Congress to compel them to abstain from the exercise of such an odious tyranny. As the case stands in regard to Robeson, the committee can rake heaven and earth in their investigations as to his supposed malfeasance in office; they may hear witnesses without number, under oath, and afford him no permission to confront or cross-examine, and they may let out the testimony piecemeal as occasions may occur, and as they have done, without giving him any power of rebuttal. Every one knows that there is hardly a reputation on earth that could pass through such an ordeal and escape unscathed; and therefore every body must know that such proceedings are radically and intrinsically wrong. It does not seem to be a very good time in this centennial year, under any circumstances, to revive the proceedings of the old Star Chamber courts, of trials by a committee dealing with civil and criminal cases, unfettered by rules of law, and which our English ancestors so happily abolished more than two hundred years ago; and unless the committee desire to make their proceedings odious and detestable they will hardly hesitate to give the much implicated Secretary an opportunity to confront his accusers and be heard in his own defence. If Secretary Robeson had been guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors, let the evidence be produced in accordance with all the forms of law and under all the Constitutional limitations of legislative authority, and not by any of those tyrannical methods of which Macauley said "the memory is still, after the lapse of two centuries, held in deep abhorrence by the nation."

The Senatorship.

Says the Dover Enquirer: It is our belief that no man of all the able and worthy mentioned would more acceptably and efficiently fulfil all the responsibilities incumbent on the office than Hon. Edward H. Rollins; and we are confident that we express the sentiments of the great majority of the thinking republicans in this section of the State also in this belief.

Among our own citizens, where Mr. Rollins has been known from childhood, he needs from us no words of commendation or eulogy. Born within two miles of our City Hall, and growing up with us to early manhood, and amid all the changes since of an active and useful life constantly revisiting the old homestead and passing much of his time with his early friends and neighbors, we have had every opportunity for personal acquaintance and a thorough knowledge of the man. During all these years we have yet to hear the first imputation upon his personal integrity or purity of life. A man of marked energy and determination, quick of perception, and earnest and thorough in all his purposes, in business and in every line of duty, his aim has always been to do well whatever he sought to accomplish, and few men in this respect have succeeded better.

We have seen a disposition in certain quarters to make his position for the last five years as Treasurer of the Union Pacific Railroad a special objection to Mr. Rollins as Senator. In what manner this ought to weigh against his fitness for the Senatorship we altogether fail to see. Mr. Rollins was appointed Treasurer of this road because of the rare business habits and executive abilities of which we have already spoken. These qualifications, with his tried integrity, sound judgment and clear intellect, and above all constitute especial fitness for the important trust in question, and to these alone he owed his appointment. He had voted with E. B. Washburne of Illinois and other economists against the last land grant to this road, and on all questions where the road was concerned had been found with the best men of both parties jealously guarding the public interests. In his official duties to this road his record is above suspicion. He has never owned a share in its stock. No jobbery has ever been connected with his name, nor has he in any way favored or consented to a measure in the slightest degree casting suspicion upon his personal integrity or honor. The whole history therefore of his connection with this road cannot, it seems to us, furnish the slightest objection to or disqualification of him as a Senator. On the contrary, his valuable financial experience acquired through responsibilities so well sustained, and in carrying on the business of this great road under all the embarrassments and difficulties of the past few years, have made him in many respects far more capable of usefulness as a legislator, and of rendering more valuable services to the people, than he could have become through almost any other training.

There are some who object to Mr. Rollins, that he has for many years been an earnest and active politician. We have little patience with the political sentimentality now so much in vogue, that, assuming to itself all the purity and honesty among the people, stamps as a fraud every man of earnest convictions who has gained political prominence through well directed industry and diligent cultivation of his powers and opportunities. In every other sphere of activity and for every other responsible trust, these are the very qualifications that recommend to special confidence and promotion, and few men can gain or retain any eminent position in business, professional standing, literary or diplomatic rank without them. To set up a different standard for political success is to go against all experience and every sound business maxim. The qualities that have made Mr. Rollins successful in so many political conflicts are the surest guarantees of usefulness and fidelity in whatever position he may be placed.

News and Notes.

From the Traveller's Guide, of New York, which by the way is the best authority on hotels and summer resorts, we learn that Leland's new and palatial "Rossmore" is already one of the most popular and liberally patronized of the New York hotels. The Clarendon, of Saratoga, which is also run by Chas. E. Leland, will be opened for a brilliant season in June; price per week for June, $21. The Clarendon is renowned as a favorite among the aristocracy and better classes, and will no doubt have a full register during the season.

The body of a laborer on the Manchester water works, who was drowned two years ago, and buried on the shore of Massabesic Pond, was found uncovered by the action of the water on Sunday night.

The valuation of Manchester is $15,307,948, an increase of $1,112,846 over last year.

Visitors to the Centennial Exhibition are increasing in number every day. People are gradually becoming impressed with the fact that they can't invest a few dollars better than by making a trip to Philadelphia. The exhibition is worth double the price of a journey to Europe. It is almost worth the journey to see Philadelphia itself. Always a lovely city, it is now more than usually so. Everything has put on its holiday dress. Flags and banners wave from every available corner. The stores are attractive and tempting; the thoroughfares gay with handsome equipages, "fair women and brave men;" everything and everybody wearing a bright, happy look, seemingly trying to render the city inviting to the hosts visiting it, and to induce them to remain and spend money, or come again and spend more.

The Manchester Globe gives particulars of an outrage perpetrated some days ago in the outskirts of that city, that was one of the most brutal ever committed. A young woman employed in the Langdon mills, was waylaid by five young villains and forcibly outraged by all of them. She was nearly killed, and is even now in a critical condition. The name of the girl is withheld for family reasons, and the guilty ones are still at large.

—A story told by Captain Malet, of the British army, in a speech recently delivered by him, is worth preserving. He said: A recruit, on being asked by his commanding officer what religion he professed, in order that he might go to his proper place of worship, said: "Please, sir, I have not made up my mind." He probably thought he would get off the church parade, but the officer was equal to the occasion. Turning to the sergeant of his company, he said: "Sergeant, here is a man who has not made up his mind as to what religion he is. We will give him every opportunity. Let him be marched to the Romanist service at a quarter to eight, to the church of England parade at a quarter after nine, and to the Presbyterian service at eleven until further orders." The man soon made up his mind that he was a devout churchman, probably (said Captain Malet) because the service was the shortest; and if, indeed, conviction may be dispensed with in the matter, it would be difficult to find a better ground for final decision.

HAVING NOTICED

The statements in the city papers, that certain persons have been injured by eating pressed corned beef put up in Chicago, and feeling that if not explained these facts will result in injury where it does not belong, and as after a thorough investigation we find that the beef complained of is in every instance beef packed in rolls and enclosed in tin foil by parties unknown to us, and not at all similar to canned beef; therefore we, the undersigned, in simple justice to the public and to the reliable firm that pack the canned article, wish to state that we have for a long time sold Pressed Corned Beef and Beef Tongues packed in 2, 4, 6 and 14 lb cans, by Messrs. Looking Back---and Ahead.

SOUTH BOSTON, May 29

Eds. Chronicle: Taking up an issue of your popular paper the other day, I noticed this item:

On the 18th inst., in Cambridgeport, Mass., Mr. William G. Miller, son of N. D. Miller, Esq., of this city, was presented by the workmen under his charge, with a set of Odd Fellows jewels. Mr. Miller leaves Cambridgeport to go to Charlestown, where he is to assume the foremanship of Messrs. Cook, Rymes & Co.'s establishment.

William G., alias "Bill," Miller,—how distinctly we recall him; the bright-eyed boy, full of good nature and energy, who years ago came to the High School with other Christian Shore worthies and put himself under the care of Israel Kimball, Esq. As we sit here writing this heated May day, the old brick school house comes before us, and we fancy ourselves looking out of the window toward the South to see what the distant dial-hands may say for a tired school boy. We half expect the clock-face we can now see from our window here to turn into the OLD SOUTH dial and tell its tale of relief for a suffering mortal.

How the old days come back, and the boys too, the Bills, and the Bobs, and the Tom's, and the Bens (God bless them every one!) There was Miller, the now dignified wearer of Odd Fellows' jewels, sure to carry off some honorable prize in the future. Rev. J. W. Winkley was a member of our class; also John Haseltine, Esq., now practising law at Suncook, we think, in your State; Samuel Ayers, of the firm of Charles H. Mendum & Co.,; John Treat, President of the Reform Club, and others of honorable standing. We would not forget Laighton, Rev. Joshua J. Laighton subsequently, a young man of refined, cultured tastes, an excellent scholar, for a while Hebrew instructor at Meadville Theological Seminary. None will recall his early death without sincerely lamenting it.

We believe in cultivating old associations, and we have been pleased to hear that the High School Alumni Association may have a gathering this summer. We understand that Mr. Charles A. Hazlett of the Association, ready for every good enterprise, is interested in pushing the movement, and Mr. Clark of the High School kindly engages to cooperate. We were glad to hear that the graduating class gave a reception last year. Now broaden that idea, and let all the alumni and alumnae, the boys and girls, have a chance to come home. Lynn, we noticed, had its twelfth gathering of High School graduates recently. Let not Portsmouth be behind hand.

There are no associations dearer than the old ones,—no boys and girls that can outstand those of the past in friendship. May we have an opportunity to come together once more, for it does us all good to stop amid life's hurry and listen to the far away voices calling us from the past. Some are sweet as bells sounding over the sea in the evening time.

E. A. R.

Police Court.

Judge Page's levee was largely attended on Thursday. The dram drinkers seem to have made an assault in force on King Alcohol on the last day of May, and as usual got the worst of the fight. Thomas Marshall, John Keene, John Kirkwood, James Campbell, John Shuntry, James Kelley, Merrill Wheeler, Jeremiah Murphy and William Hutchins were each offered a chance to contribute $9.90 to the treasury; Wheeler squared up, but the others will take out their reward in kind—at Brentword.

Patrick Bates was arraigned for keeping a disorderly house, and bound over in $400 to appear at the October term of the Circuit Court. In default of bail he was committed to jail.

Elmer Tuttle, aged fourteen years, and Albert Weeks, aged twelve, were charged with stealing two watches and a silver chain from Mr. Malsbenden; plea, "guilty." Tuttle was placed under $200 bonds for his appearance at the October term of the Court, and for his good behavior until then. In consequence of Weeks' youth his case was continued for thirty days on his own recognizance.

"Such a Getting Down Stairs."

On Tuesday, May 30th, Geo. W. Guppy, Esq., of the Times, thought he would kick to one side a bit of orange peel he saw lying on the office stairs, and then go down. This programme was fully and promptly carried out, with gymnastic variations and recitative additions; Bro. Guppy did kick the orange peel, and he did go down stairs; but the end which usually goes down stairs last went ahead on this occasion,—and the end which usually gets down stairs first, on this occasion lagged far—far behind. On arriving at the bottom he concluded to add an afterpiece to the entertainment, and tried to break off a big door-key with his eye; the attempt was ambitious but the aim was not good, and he merely doubled up the key by hitting it with his cheek-bone; had he hit it with his eye he would have smashed something, sure. We understand that he then in the most enthusiastic and impressive manner recited an original poem, supposed by its hearers, from the scriptural quotations and classical allusions it contained, to be an oratorio on the fall of Jerusalem, with fervent aspirations regarding the future welfare of the chap who left the orange peel on the stairs mixed in. Bro. Guppy proposes to stake his reputation as a gymnast on this one performance, and will hereafter go down stairs in the usual manner.

Jottings.

The potato beetle, which originated three years ago in Colorado, has journeyed East until he has struck the sea-coast, reached New Hampshire and settled down as a denizen among the farmers of this vicinity. He is in the full vigor of his youth, smiles at Paris green as an obstacle, and perches in the tops of the potato vine. This is his first visit and it is said he is to be feared less now than next year, yet farmers must pay especial attention to him. His bride deposits the eggs on the under side of the leaf, and it is there that he must be sought out, fought and annihilated. The only sure prevention against his ravages is to pick him off and crush him. If the eggs are found destroy them. It the bugs are numerous use Paris green with water. Destroy the advance guard and a vantage ground will have been assured. The bug is striped, rotund and lively, and resembles an over-grown lady-bug more than anything else. Two interesting specimens of him, from the Hayes farm, may be seen at H. M. Clark's store.

Major M. T. Betton and others are raising a cavalry company.

The Haven School tree dedication takes place at 2 o'clock on Saturday, at Langdon Park, quite a number of our citizens who are interested in schools, and children particularly, having accepted an invitation to be present. Mr. Perkins, the Principal, will preside and will doubtless address the children; others following with short speeches. The Naval Band will sandwich the speaking with lively and appropriate music.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram C. Locke, to the number of about fifty, assembled at their residence on Islington street a few evenings since, and merrily celebrated their crystal wedding. May the silver wedding find both enjoying the confidence of as many warm friends.

Lieut. David Urch, of the Portsmouth Heavy Artillery, has been presented with a sword and belt by his associates.

By invitation of Capt. Robinson, a party of seventy ladies and gentlemen had a delightful trip to the Shoals in steamer Appledore on the afternoon of May 30th.

Col. Russell H. Conwell's little work entitled "WOMAN AND THE LAW," a volume of some ninety pages, is a valuable compendium of information, being divided into nine chapters embracing the law of custom, taxation without representation, fashions and laws, women and the courts, wives and husbands, etc. B. B. Russell, publisher, Boston.

There was a further reduction in the price of discharging coal, on Thursday—from 27 cents per ton to 25 cents. The reduction was made entirely on the men's wages, none being made on the hoisting-apparatus rates; and a strike was the consequence.

Second Lieut. Shirley B. Cunningham, of the Heavy Artillery, was on Thursday evening presented with a very handsome and costly helmet, by members of the company. The helmet is on exhibition at Mr. Cunningham's place of business.

There was a large meeting of citizens at the Common Council Room, Thursday evening, to take measures toward a proper celebration of the coming 4th of July. Col. Wm. H. Sise was appointed Chief Marshal for the day, and a committee of forty citizens selected to arrange all details.

The general committee will meet at the same place at 8 o'clock this (Friday) evening, to appoint sub-committees, etc.

Rochester Grange, P. of H.

A new Grange was organized at Rochester on Tuesday, May 30, by Worthy Master Dudley F. Chase, of New Hampshire State Grange, of Claremont.—Deputy J. B. Smith, Master of Cram Point Grange, of Strafford, Joseph N. Hayes, Master of Cocheco Grange, of Gonic, and Frank W. Miller, Master of Portsmouth Grange, being present and assisting. Seventeen gentlemen and ten ladies were admitted members of the new Grange,—which was named Rochester Grange, and the following officers elected: Master, Isaac W, Springfield; Overseer, Richard T. Rogers; Lecturer, Hannah W. Bickford; Steward, James Corson; Asst. Steward, Wm. H. Woods; Chaplain, John S. Califf; Treasurer, Geo. W. Springfield; Secretary, Dudley B. Waldron; Gate-keeper, Geo. H. Springfield; Ceres, Mary Josselyn; Pomona, Lilla K. Hodgdon; Flora, Clara A. Pinkham; Lady Asst. Steward, Hattie Springfield.

The several Worthy Masters named above also visited Cocheco Grange on Monday evening, and Crown Point Grange on Tuesday evening.

Political.

Louisiana sends sixteen delegates for Morton to Cincinnati.

Iowa has chosen twenty-two delegates to Cincinnati, 17 for Blaine, 3 for Conkling and 2 for Morton.

It is reported now that 15 of the 20 Spencer delegates from Alabama are for Blaine instead of Morton, but there is no evidence that such is the case. They probably didn't think of it themselves until they discovered how near to carrying the Convention Blaine already was. A contesting delegation has a keen nose for the winning side.

It is all up with Gov. Tilden. Col. Blanton Duncan, the originator and conductor of the famous Bourbon Convention in 1872, is out against him in a letter. Col. Duncan would like to have Gen. Hancock, Gov. Allen, Gov. Hendricks, or Senator Bayard for the democratic candidate.

It is a noticeable fact that all the friends of other Presidential candidates are struck with the thought, what a lovely candidate for Vice-President Hayes would make!—Ohio State Journal.

The Cincinnati Commercial, struck by the tidal wave, lets go its hold on Bristow with the remark: "Mr. Blaine's success places him foremost in the Cincinnati convention on the first ballot. He will be very useful in destroying the vain ambition of Conkling."

It is pretty evident that the mud-throwing at Mr. Blaine has greatly helped his prospects. Thus Col. Forney says of the effect in Pennsylvania: "Mr. Blaine has boldly confronted all charges, and we believe is to-day the most unobjectionable of the leading rivals for the glittering prize. If we may judge by republican opinion in Pennsylvania, after Gov. Hartranft has had his chance an overwhelming percentage is in favor of the statesman from Maine."

The Washington correspondent of the Boston Herald hears that Senator Conkling and John Morrissey are intimate friends, and that the latter has been known to drop a letter from his pocket which was written to him by Mr. Conkling and which contained strong expressions of friendship. Does this afford another glimpse at President Conkling's Cabinet? For Secretary of War, J. "Don." Cameron; for Secretary of the Interior, Hon. John Morrissey? How John would show up Christianizing the Indians!—N. Y. Tribune.

Ben. Hill of Georgia is out in a letter favoring Senator Bayard for the Presidency.

Two Massachusetts Congressmen are said to have decided not to accept a renomination—Mr. Hoar of the IXth District and Mr. Harris of the IId.

They think out in Iowa and Minnesota that the ticket of Blaine and Bristow would suit them uncommonly well. Iowa is willing to sacrifice her favorite son, McCrary, to make way for it.

Hon. Godlove S. Orth had an enthusiastic public reception in Indianapolis. He made a speech, in which he confidently predicted his election to the Governorship of Indiana, and closed with a glowing plea in favor of the "grand American statesman, Oliver P. Morton," as the next President of the United States. He said: "We should go to the Cincinnati convention, as we will, by hundreds and thousands, as men in earnest, and try to impress that same earnestness upon our republican brethren wherever we meet them; we should try to impress upon them the fact of the importance of placing Indiana beyond the possibility of failure or defeat, and should impress upon them the fact that the name of Oliver P. Morton at the head of the National ticket will bring the response of 40,000 majority from the Hoosier cabins of Indiana."

The Supply Depot of the Body.

The stomach is the grand supply depot of the body, upon which it draws for all the elements needed in the composition of bone, muscle, brain and blood. The liver is an important auxiliary of this mighty organ, and the two are most intimately connected. Nothing so certainly ensures the harmonious action of these viscera, and so completely removes the disorders which simultaneously affect both, as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the most popular American specific for all complaints to which the stomach, liver and bowels are subject, and the foremost tonic on this side of the Atlantic. Indigestion, costiveness, inactivity and congestion of the liver, poverty of the blood, debility of the bladder and kidneys, and many other ailments produced by or causing weakness, are entirely removed by its use.

Stamp speakers do not always tell the truth; they would tell it exactly if they said that Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam is the best remedy in the world for hoarseness, coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs.

Pyle's Dietetic Saleratus.—Universally acknowledged the best in use. Each pound bears the name of JAMES PYLE. None genuine without. Ug76

Important to persons visiting New York or the Centennial. The Grand Union Hotel, New York, opposite the Grand Central Depot, has over 350 elegantly furnished rooms. Elevator, steam and all improvements. European plan. Carriage hire is saved, as baggage is taken to and from the depot free. Guests can live better for less money at the Grand Union than at any other first-class hotel. Stages and cars pass the Hotel constantly to all parts of the city, and to the Philadelphia depot. dawtr1277

PILOT BREAD.

This kind of bread having come into extensive family use, it has been my purpose to furnish, from choice materials, an article which should meet the approval of the most fastidious as to neatness, looks and taste. Whether I have succeeded in giving to the public a Pilot Bread superior in excellence, the consumer may be the judge; that the quality will not be suffered to depreciate, the past with the present is my best pledge. That I can compete with all the various qualities of Pilot Bread in the market, as to price, I make no pretensions,—but in price, all things being equal, I fear no competition.

JOHN PEARSON, JR., Newburyport, Mass.

In justice to myself, and that those who prefer Pearson's Family Pilot Bread may obtain what is desired, I shall occasionally publish the names of those who keep it for sale in Portsmouth, as follows:

Daily Chronicle.

—A good story comes from Rome, Ga., and is told by the Courier of that city. A party of gentlemen having sat down to dinner, one of them, Col. Waddell, was asked to say grace, and, bowing his head, said: "Lord, make us honest and rich." An editor who was present promptly responded: "Amen. Give the Colonel the former and thy humble servant the latter, as thou seest we need, and do it quickly."

—When the late Judge Underwood reached a small mountain stream which had been swollen by heavy rains, he hesitated to cross in his buggy, and was asked if a good Christian like himself was afraid to attempt the ford? "I have read in the Bible," he said, "that to every man's life there is an appointed end, but I don't want it said of me that I was drowned in a creek called Oonchekefoone."

A wag entered a smoking car on the Vermont Central a few days ago, while the train was in motion, and in an earnest and sympathetic tone said "A lady in the next coach has fainted away. Has any gentleman here any liquor to give her?" Twenty-eight men in that car immediately rose to their feet, each with a flask in his hand. A more eloquent expression of sympathy could not be conceived.

Which Shall I Take?

This is often a serious question with the invalid. He finds the market flooded with proprietary medicines, scores of which are recommended as certain cures for his peculiar ailment. He reads the papers, circulars, and almanacs, and finds each sustained by plausible arguments setting for its virtues and specific action. The recommendations are as strong for one as for another. The cures claimed to have been wrought by one are as wonderful as those claimed to have been wrought by another. In his perplexity and doubt, the sufferer is sometimes led to reject all. But it should be borne in mind that this condition of things is one that cannot be remedied. In a land where all are free, the good—the truly valuable—must come into competition with the vile and worthless, and must be brought to public notice by the same instrumentality, which is advertising. In such a case, perhaps the only absolute proof that a remedy is what it claims to be, is to try it. The "test of a pudding is the eating of it." "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good." is the apostolic injunction. There may however, be stronger presumptive evidence in favor of one remedy than there is in favor of another, and this should be allowed its due weight. A due regard to this may save a vast amount of experimenting and a useless outlay of money. As presumptive evidence in favor of Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines, the Proprietor desires to say, that they are prepared by a new and scientific process by which the virtues of the crude plants and roots are extracted without the use of a particle of alcohol. Not a particle of this destroyer of our race enters into the composition of either his Golden Medical Discovery or Favorite Prescription. This consideration alone ought certainly to rank them high above the vile compounds saturated with alcohol, Jamaica rum, sour beer, or vinegar, which are everywhere offered for sale. Again, they are of uniform strength, and their virtues can never be impaired by age. They are also made from fresh herbs and roots, gathered in their appropriate season, when they are flush with medicinal properties. In support of these claims, the following testimony is offered;

R. V. PIERCE, M. D., NEWARK, N. J.

Dear Sir,—I have sold a great deal of your excellent remedies, and I prefer to sell them before others, because they give good satisfaction to those who use them. I hear such remarks as "Sage's Remedy completely cured me; it is a splendid thing;" or, "Pierce's Discovery is just what I wanted; I feel better than I ever did." One of our celebrated singers uses it for strengthening her voice, and says "there is nothing equals it;" and so I might give scores of remarks said about your preparations. A colored woman was using your Discovery, and after taking three bottles was completely cured. She, being in the store, said to me, "I don't want no doctors 'round me so long as I can get the Discovery; it beats all your doctors." And so I might go on.

I am, most respectfully yours,
ATHA B CROOKS.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden, Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. I then bought one of your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and concluded to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package was no more good than all the other medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained no orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reported himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.
